STATE OF THE JUDICIARY
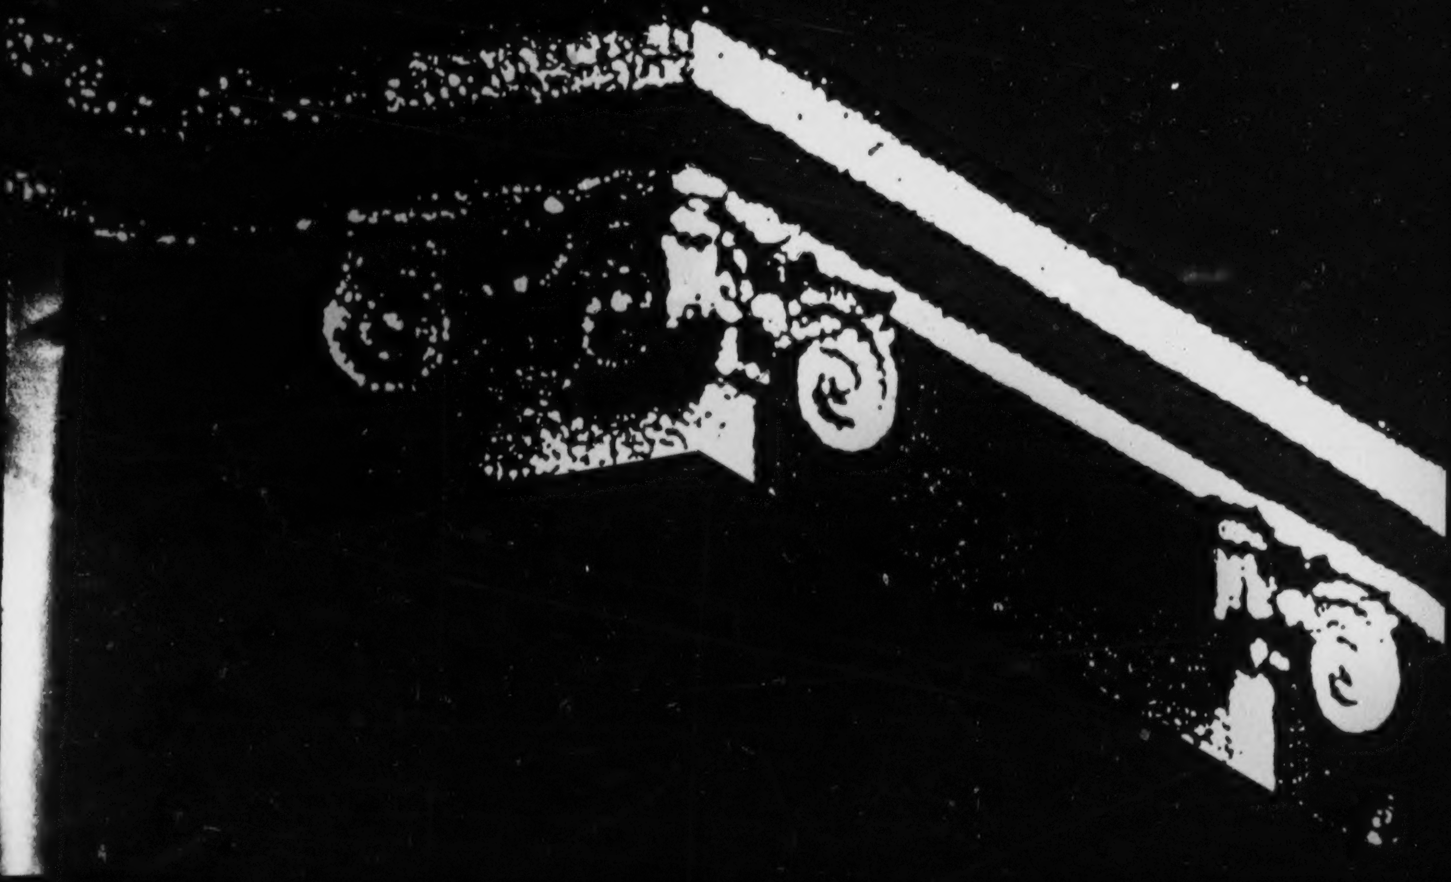
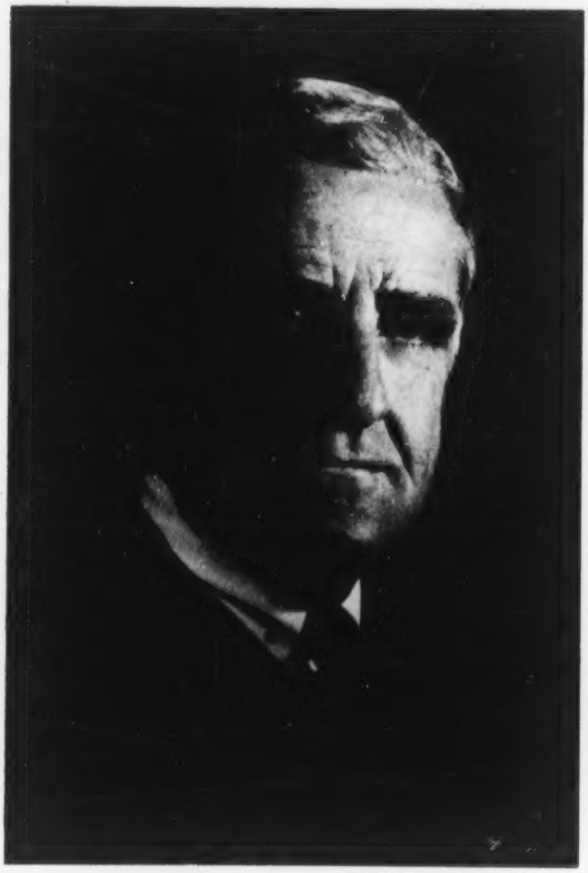
MESSAGE



In this year of Constitutional celebration, let me recite something every American should know by heart:

> WE the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.



With these words, penned two centuries ago, our forefathers created what history has proven to be the greatest political document ever written. Affixing their signatures to the "Great Document," they embarked this country upon an experiment in government which has produced the greatest nation on earth.

The mood at the Philadelphia Convention of 1787 was forecast nearly a decade earlier by Thomas Paine when, in urging the creation of a conference to frame a "Continental Charter," he suggested, "... Let a day be solemnly set apart for proclaiming the charter; let it be brought forth placed in the divine law, the word of God; let a crown be placed thereon, by which the world may know, that so far as we approve of monarchy, that in America the law is King."

When most of the nations of the world live under constitutions less than thirty years old, how has our Constitution endured? The reasons are complex. Our nation has always prospered, but this does not provide a complete explanation for the respect and reverence given the Constitution.

Two contrasting theories regarding the longevity of the Constitution are often cited. Some scholars contend that the durability of the Constitution is due to the fact it is rooted in the will of the people. Others argue that the Constitution has survived because it derives from a natural or higher law.

This latter concept is predicated on the view that there are certain principles which prevail because of their eternal value regardless of what political force happens to be exercising authority at any given moment. Cicero expressed this idea when he said, "True law is right reason, harmonious with nature, diffused among all, constant, eternal..." He also asserted that, "We are born for justice, and right is not the mere arbitrary construction of opinion, but an institution of nature."

A modern observer offers a theory which may explain how both these concepts are inherently embedded in the Constitution. He states, "In the American written Constitution, higher (or natural) law at last attained a form which made possible the attribution to it of an entirely new sort of validity, the validity of a statute emanating from the sovereign people." The same observer cautions, however, that "...even statutory form could hardly have saved the higher law as a recourse for individuals had it not been backed up by judicial review."

Employing the doctrine of judicial review, the courts have historically played roles as the interpreters of the Consitution and the protectors of the sovereign will of the people. As judges, we have contributed to the health of the Great Document, both individually and corporately. We do so in each individual case as we strive with all our ability to interpret wisely and fairly without exceeding our authority. We do so collectively when together we face the challenge of finding new ways to improve the administration of justice.

During the past year, the judiciary of Virginia has taken this challenge seriously. Notably, the judiciary completed work on the 1983-86 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. As of June 30, 1986, 88 percent of that plan had been undertaken. Under the leadership of the Judicial Council, we are now embarked upon the 1986-88 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. That plan identifies 88 specific tasks to be undertaken during the next two years. I am pleased to report that 44 of these tasks are already completed or underway. As examples, let me mention several projects which have been undertaken successfully.

With the vigorous guidance of members of this conference, work is progressing rapidly on collection and analysis of detailed statewide sentencing data. Such data can be used to create voluntary sentencing guidelines should the Conference choose to adopt guidelines. This project clearly demonstrates the concern that all judges share for eliminating unjustified disparity in sentencing and improving this crucial phase of criminal proceedings.

The goal of improving the trial process is further evident in continued efforts, at both state and local levels, to implement the recently adopted Jury Management Standards. I am gratified by the inquiries which have been received from many of you on ways to more effectively manage and utilize jurors. The 1987 General Assembly took action, consistent with the Jury Management Standards, to reduce the number of automatic jury exemptions. This welcome change should restore new vitality and quality to the jury system.

The General Assembly also acted at its recent session to expand the number of public defender offices in Virginia. This step is in keeping with expressed support stated in our Comprehensive Plan for a movement toward a statewide public defender system. Support for this approach stems from the judiciary's desire for the fairest proceedings with the highest quality representation possible.

In order to affirm the judiciary's commitment to improve assistance to crime victims and witnesses, the Judicial Council and this Conference adopted a Statement of Principles and Recommended Judicial Practices to Assure Fair Treatment of Crime Victims and Witnesses. This statement recommends that victims and witnesses be fully informed about how the judicial system operates, what their rights are, what they can expect from the system, what the system expects from them, how their cases are proceeding, and what services and assistance are available to them. The Statement also sets out practices required to implement these principles. Implementation of these practices will help insure fair, courteous, and efficient treatment of all participants.

This past year has witnessed the completion of the Courthouse Facilities Study conducted by the National Center for State Courts. While the Judicial Council has not yet acted on this report, I anticipate that Council will adopt Courthouse Facility Guidelines for Virginia in the near future. These guidelines will be useful to judges, clerks, architects, and local administrators in insuring that constructed or renovated facilities are both efficient and adequate to meet the needs of the courts and citizens now and in the foreseeable future.

Keenly aware that capable and efficient staff assistance to judges is essential for effective operation of the court system, the Judicial Council adopted Judicial Administration Standards which fix minimum levels of staff support for circuit court judges. The Standards recommend provision of increased secretarial and law clerk support which will allow judges to delegate many non-judicial responsibilities and permit them to devote their full attention to substantive matters.

Recognizing the need for self-improvement, this Conference has completed a major portion of the Circuit Court Judges Benchbook. Once more, through the labors of several members of this Conference, an excellent aid for all judges has been produced. Education for the new, refresher for the experienced, and ready reference for all, this benchbook should be extremely valuable in improving the overall trial of cases.

In the area of administration, during 1986 an additional twenty-four courts were added to the Courts Automated Information System (CAIS), bringing the total in the network to ninety-six. In addition to adding courts to the network, the CAIS was further expanded to include a Case Management System for Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts. Implementation of this system represents a major milestone in that it completed the first phase of the systems development effort originally planned. The Financial Management System became available in 1983, the General District Court Case Management System in 1984, the Circuit Court Case Management System in 1985, and now the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court Case Management System. I am pleased to note also that substantial progress has been made on a Case Management System for the appellate courts.

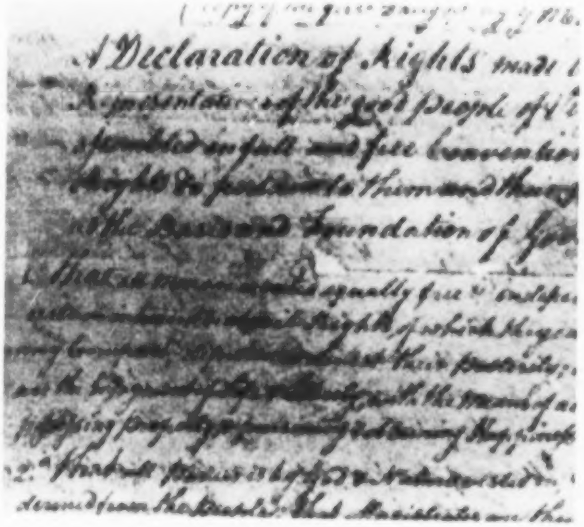
As indicated in my report to you last year, one of the major components of the 1986-88 Comprehensive Plan is the formation of a Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System. Work has begun, but most of the last several months has been spent trying to locate funding sources, defining issues for consideration, and identifying staff and Commission members. I am delighted to report to you this morning that Dr. Robert M. O'Neill, President of the University of Virginia, has agreed to serve as Chairman of the Commission. I could not be more pleased. I think this development, more than anything else, will serve to ensure the success of the Commission's work. We can proceed now to name the other members of the Commission.

The work of this Commission will offer many of the same challenges and opportunities that faced those who started this republic two centuries ago. Although we are concerned with only one branch of government for a single state, we must predict the future and fashion a structure which will withstand the test of time, serve our citizens well, and meet the demands of a changing society. While the task is monumental, we enter it with conviction, enthusiasm, and expectations of success.

I think it is a promising coincidence that we should begin the work of the Commission on the Future in the same year we celebrate the Bicentennial of the Constitution. In this happy coincidence of circumstances, it is natural to reflect upon the origin and purpose of our judicial system. Recalling the accomplishments of the system to this point in its history will help us to evaluate our efforts at fulfilling that purpose. Planning for the future of the system requires that we renew our faith in the principles enunciated in the Constitution and also that we seek to discern how these principles should be applied to the society of the future.

The driving force of the immediate future will be the electronic revolution—the combined technologies of telecommunications, robotics, artificial intelligence, automation, and the rest. Unquestionably, no social institution will be untouched. Indeed, it is likely that the judiciary will be transformed. We can attempt to bury our heads in the sand and hope that change does not come or we can, through education, experimentation, and planning, address the change in a responsible fashion and thus best serve the interests of the citizens and the judicial system.

As we have attempted to define the work of the Commission on the Future of the Judicial System, it has become obvious that the Commission must look at what courts are supposed to do, what they are doing, and what functions could or should be performed through different structures. In other words, it is critical to understand the mission of the courts today and to try to predict their role in the future.



In undertaking such an analysis, we need to consider the possibility that functions will be added to or deleted from the responsibility of the judicial system. Is it possible that the growth of technology will create a need for specialized courts designed to handle only scientific and technological matters? On the other hand what impact will the growth of mediation or the privatization of justice have on the courts? Is it possible that private producers of justice will, through the use of more sophisticated technologies than the public sector can provide, simply take business away from the courts?

Why are people turning away from the courts in favor of arbitration, mediation, or rent-a-judge? Are we not being responsive or is this just a swing of the pendulum back to a time when the courts resolved only legal, rather than social, issues and then only the most difficult and complex kind? These questions must be answered in order for the courts to address the issues of the Twenty-First Century.

History clearly reflects the prominent role played by Virginians in the development of our nation, including the formulation of the Constitution. We should take great pride in the leadership exhibited in the past as we celebrate the Bicentennial of our Constitution. But what of today? In my opinion, the judicial system of Virginia even now continues the tradition of leadership established by our early leaders. Our system offers a model for the nation as a whole to follow. It is effectively organized and efficiently operated by honest, competent judges of the highest integrity. But, notwithstanding the healthy state of our courts, no one familiar with the judicial system can doubt that it must improve. It is to that task we must dedicate our full energies.

Woodrow Wilson once said, "So far as the individual is concerned, a constitutional government is as good as its courts. No better, no worse." To insure that our courts remain strong and viable, we must develop a reasonably accurate vision of the decades ahead. Coupled with the experience of the past, this vision will help us to preserve justice and insure the blessings of liberty for all our people for all time.

JUDICIARY'S YEAR IN REVIEW

JUDICIARY'S YEAR IN REVIEW

Implementation of the 1986-88 Comprehensive Judicial Plan

Substantial progress was made by the judiciary during 1986 in implementing the 1986-88 Comprehensive Plan. In addition, the 1987 General Assembly approved several measures advocated within the Plan. Thus, by early spring 1987, work had been undertaken and/or completed on 44 of the 88 tasks, or 50 percent of the action items it contains. The following report highlights the accomplishment of various Plan objectives between July 1, 1986 and April, 1987.

Indigent Defense

The Plan supported and the 1986 General Assembly funded a 15 percent across the board increase in court-appointed counsel fees. During the 1987 General Assembly session, the maximum fee allowed court-appointed counsel in cases involving potential confinement of more than twenty years was raised from $460 to $500, effective July 1, 1987.

Within the past two years, the General Assembly also has increased the number of public defender offices from four to nine. The Judicial Council has supported expansion of the public defender system in circuits where analyses indicate that such offices would be cost justified. In 1986, additional offices were funded for Richmond and Portsmouth. As of July, 1987, offices will be established in Fairfax, Alexandria, and the area serving Winchester, Clarke, and Frederick.

Adjudication of Family Disputes

During 1986, the Judicial Council held four public hearings across the state in order to receive input regarding any legal or operational problems that exist due to the current division of responsibility between J&DR and circuit courts in domestic relations cases. Nearly 300 Bar members, social services workers, and private citizens attended the hearings. The Council decided to sponsor the meetings after receiving the 1984 report of the Family Court Study Committee. The Committee examined the present system of handling matters relating to divorce, custody, visitation, and child support and recommended that the jurisdiction of the present Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts be incorporated into a new family division of the circuit court.

Transcripts of the testimony presented at the hearings are being reviewed by the Council's Judicial Administration Committee. A report on this matter is expected to be issued in 1987.

Dispute Resolution Services in Virginia

A staff report on family mediation services in Virginia was published and presented to Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court judges during their Spring, 1986 Judicial Conference. The report was issued pursuant to a Plan directive which specified that more information should be provided to judges on the results of such programs in use within Virginia and elsewhere.

The Plan also supports the establishment of a study committee to examine the feasibility, advisability, and cost-effectiveness of developing and expanding dispute resolution services in the Commonwealth. House Joint Resolution 246, adopted by the 1987 General Assembly, creates such a committee to examine mediation in lieu of litigation in child custody cases. A report is expected prior to the convening of the 1988 Session. In addition, the Assembly enacted legislation which permits the establishment of civil mediation programs in general district courts if the program can be funded locally.

Sentencing Guidelines

One of the judiciary's continuing objectives is the provision of fair and equitable sentencing policies in the Commonwealth's courts. In support of this objective, the Council set forth several tasks in the 1986-88 Plan, including the creation of statewide reports on sentences imposed for like offenses in different jurisdictions.

In April, 1986, Chief Justice Carrico appointed a Judicial Sentencing Oversight Committee composed of six circuit judges. The Committee was formed to oversee the preparation of a report of sentencing information for all judges. Utilizing staff from the Department of Criminal Justice Services, the committee examined sentencing data involving 18,591 cases across six judicial regions, the state as a whole, and selected circuits. This systematic data collection and analysis effort was unparalleled anywhere in the country, both in terms of the number of cases studied and the number of variables analyzed. Six regional meetings were held in late 1986 and early 1987 to present the Committee's findings to all circuit judges and to receive the views of the latter concerning the report. Following the regional meetings, the Council's Executive Committee voted to ask Chief Justice Carrico to appoint a similar oversight committee to develop statewide voluntary sentencing guidelines. This was done in early 1987. The guidelines once drafted will be submitted to circuit judges for approval.

Jury Management

The 1986-88 Plan also supported legislation to eliminate all occupational jury exemptions, permitting temporary absences only for hardships. During the 1987 Session, the General Assembly passed legislation which removes many of the automatic jury duty exemptions and deletes from the list many of those who previously could claim an exemption from jury duty.

Salary Increases for Judges and Court System Personnel

A major aim within the 1986-88 Plan is increasing judicial salaries with the ultimate objective being salary parity between Virginia's circuit judges and United States District Court judges. The 1987 General Assembly approved a 6.17 percent salary increase for all judges, effective July 1,1987. In addition, the legislature appropriated funds for a 4.56 percent increase (across the board) for court system personnel. District clerks and magistrates also will be eligible to receive a merit increase of 4.5 percent.

Collection of Fines and Costs

In 1986, a total of $238,638 was collected in unpaid fines and costs through the debt set-off program. Circuit court fines and costs collected totaled $126,096 while another $102,538 was collected for costs and fines owed to the District Courts. Virginia's Circuit and District Courts participate in the debt set-off program in order to collect unpaid fines and costs through levying against state tax refunds. At the end of each month, court clerks enter, on the debt set-off list, warrants (non traffic) unpaid for three months. In November of each year, the courts submit these lists to the Department of Taxation for debt set-off. When the court receives a notice from the Department of Taxation that a defendant owing fines and costs is due a state tax refund, the court sends such a defendant a notice informing him that the refund may be applied against any delinquent indebtedness owed to the court.

The 1987 Assembly has directed the State Department of Planning and Budget, in cooperation with the Supreme Court, to investigate the adequacy of methods used by the courts to collect fines, fees, costs and restitution. A report will be presented to legislators during the 1988 Session.

Assistance to Crime Victims and Witnesses

In order to affirm the judiciary's commitment to improve assistance to crime victims and witnesses, the Judicial Council adopted a Statement of Principles and Recommended Judicial Practices to Assure Fair Treatment of Crime Victims and Witnesses. This statement recommends that victims and witnesses be well informed about how the judicial system operates, what their rights are, what they can expect form the system, what the system expects from them, how their cases are proceeding, and the services and assistance available to them. In addition, the Statement recommends that victims be allowed to participate in all stages of the judicial proceedings, that efforts be made to protect them from harm and threats of harm, that consideration should be given to special or unusual needs of victims and witnesses, and that, to the extent possible, victims and witnesses should be protected from financial and economic hardship. The Statement also sets out practices required to implement these principles. A new pamphlet on the statement was printed and distributed to all courts in 1986.

Study on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System

In order to address long-range issues confronting the judicial system, the Judicial Council adopted action to establish a Study Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System. In his 1986 State of the Judiciary address, Chief Justice Harry L. Carrico proposed that the Commission be composed of members of the judiciary, legislature, court personnel, bar, media, and private citizens. The purpose of the Commission is to define the demands likely to face the Virginia judicial system in the Twenty-First century and to recommend courses of action to meet these demands. The Commission is scheduled to be appointed and to begin work in 1987.

Support for Circuit Court Judges

Recognizing that capable and efficient staff assistance to judges is essential for an effective operation of the court system, the Judicial Council adopted Judicial Administration Standards in 1986. The standards set minimum levels of staff support for circuit court judges at one secretary per judge and one law clerk for every three judges, or in circuits with fewer than three judges, one law clerk per circuit. In addition, the standards call for support from circuit court clerk's staff, bailiffs, court reporters, and probation officers in order to insure proper administration of judicial proceedings. The provision of these levels of support would allow judges to delegate many non-judicial responsibilities such as preparing court orders, reviewing case files, checking service of process on papers served and coordinating case scheduling.

The 1986 General Assembly also recognized the need to provide administrative support for circuit court judges. Legislation was enacted increasing, from $300 to $1,500, the funding for basic office operating expenses for circuit court judges.

Establishment of Local Circuit Judicial Councils

In order to increase communication and coordination among the courts and judges in circuits and districts, judges from six circuits/districts volunteered to serve as pilot areas for the establishment of local circuit judicial councils. These circuits were the Fifth Circuit (Suffolk, Franklin, Isle of Wight, and Southampton), the Eighth Circuit (Hampton), the Twelfth Circuit (Chesterfield and Colonial Heights), the Seventeenth Circuit (Arlington), the Eighteenth Circuit (Alexandria), and the Twenty-Fifth Circuit (Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lexington, Staunton, Waynesboro, Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Craig, Highland, and Rockbridge).

The functions of these councils are to serve as liaisons with criminal justice agencies, the bar, the public, and media, to help resolve complaints within the circuit/district, to coordinate the various clerks and magistrates offices, and to consider methods of improving the administration of justice such as devising methods to increase efficiency in court docketing and scheduling procedures.

Guidelines for Courthouse Facilities

Although the physical environment in which courts conduct their business can either enhance or diminish the dignity of the proceedings and the safety of those who are involved with courts activity, court facilities are often designed by people with limited knowledge of the flow of people and paperwork within the judicial system.

In order to provide assistance and guidance to the courts and to the localities financing courthouse construction or renovation, the National Center for State Courts received a grant from the Virginia Bar Foundation to examine court facilities in Virginia, to review guidelines developed elsewhere, and to draft proposed facility guidelines for Virginia. This study was aided by an advisory committee composed of circuit and district court judges and clerks, an attorney, an architect, and a design director. The Center made site visits to a number of Virginia courts and sent surveys to other courts in order to gain detailed information on courthouse facilities.

Council received a draft report from the advisory committee in December, 1986. The report recommended specific guidelines for such areas of concern as location, parking, handicapped access, building security, design of courtrooms, judge's chambers, jury rooms, witness rooms, law libraries, holding facilities, and clerks' offices. In addition, the report outlined suggested procedures for facility planning for use by those localities considering improving existing facilities or contemplating additional facilities. Consideration of and action on the recommended guidelines and suggested procedures by the Judicial Council is expected in early 1987.

Technical Assistance to Courts

To improve and promote standardized business management policies and practices in the circuit courts, a circuit court technical assistant position was created and filled within the Office of the Executive Secretary during 1986. The role of the technical assistant is to act as resource for circuit court clerks by developing and promoting uniform practices, researching and answering specific inquiries, developing manuals and forms, assisting with automated systems. The technical assistant also will conduct orientation and training programs for circuit court clerks.

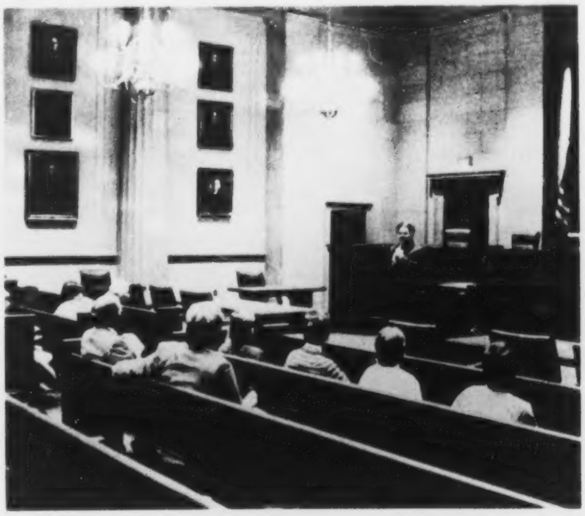
Expansion of Court Docent Program

The Virginia Court Docent Program is an effort to provide middle and/or high school students with a day-long, on-site observation of Virginia's civil and criminal justice system. The program evolved as a result of Chief Justice Harry L. Carrico's interest in law-related education and the results of a 1983 survey by the Hearst Corporation indicating that 50 percent of the population incorrectly believe that one accused of a crime must prove himself or herself innocent.

In 1984, the Carrico Commission on Law-Related Education, comprised of members from local docent programs already in existence, was formed under the sponsorship of the Virginia Lawyers Auxiliary. Its work has consisted of two phases: first, the development of a manual to be used by docents and teachers that provides sufficient information on Virginia's civil and criminal justice system to prepare students to understand the judicial system; second, the implementation of programs in interested localities. Successful programs are in existence in Arlington, Henrico, Norfolk, Richmond and Virginia Beach. Through funding provided by the Virginia Law Foundation, the manual was completed early in 1986.

Following mailings of the manual to all Chief Judges and School Superintendents in the state, letters of interest were received from numerous localities. As a result of a grant from the Virginia Law Foundation, a part-time coordinator position was created as of November 1, 1986 to last through the current school year. Through contracts between Court, school and volunteer personnel, programs are now being actively organized in Roanoke City, Roanoke County, Salem, Botetourt County, Fairfax and Newport News. Judges and school personnel in sixteen other localities have expressed an interest in establishing similar programs.

The 1986-88 Plan advocates the expansion of court docent programs and other efforts to better inform citizens about the operation of the court system.



Development and Publication of Circuit Court Judges Benchbook

In 1986, a joint committee composed of members of the Judicial Conferences' Judicial Administration and Education committees continued work on the development of a Benchbook for Circuit Court judges. The Benchbook is to serve as a tool for both experienced and inexperienced judges in the conduct of judicial business. In addition, it is designed to increase uniformity and thus promote fairness to all litigants. The Benchbook includes sections on the conduct of trials, trial publicity, matters before trial, jury procedures, witnesses, evidence, jury instructions, verdicts, motions, sentencing, and other judicial activities. The document is being prepared in two sections. The criminal section was completed in early 1987. The entire Benchbook is scheduled for publication in late 1987.

Job Task Analysis For Circuit Court Clerks

In response to a request from the Circuit Court Clerk's Association for help in developing education and training materials for circuit court personnel, a statewide analysis of job tasks in the Circuit Court clerks office was undertaken. Virginia law requires more than 700 specific tasks to be completed by these offices. Clerk activities were identified from the Code of Virginia and various clerk reference materials. These activities were submitted to a committee of circuit court clerks in order to determine the tasks necessary to accomplish them. The tasks identified by the committee members were then compiled into a master list and resubmitted to the members in order to eliminate duplication and to have them select the most complete task statements for each activity. The results of the project will be used to assist in the development of education and training requirements for clerk's office staff.

OTHER JUDICIAL SYSTEM ACTIVITIES

Creation of New Judgeships

The 1986 General Assembly created an additional judgeship in the Thirty-First Circuit raising the number of judgeships in that circuit to four. From 1970 to 1980, the population of the area served by the Thirty-First Circuit jumped 50 percent and is expected to increase another 32.4 percent by 1990. In 1985, this circuit had the highest caseload average per judge in the state. The 1986 General Assembly also created new judgeships in the Second Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court and the 15th J&DR court.

In 1987, the General Assembly created 4 new judgeships: one each in the Fifth Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, the Nineteenth General District Court, the Twenty-Seventh General District Court and the Thirty-First Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court. With the addition of a new judgeship in the Fifth J&DR Court, the judges of the First District J&DR will no longer provide assistance on a regular basis to the Fifth. The new judgeship in the Twenty-Seventh District will be effective February, 1988 while the other judgeships will take effect July 1, 1987.

In addition to creating new judgeships, the 1987 General Assembly approved the realignment of the Seventeenth and Nineteenth Judicial Circuits and Districts. As a result of the realignment, the City of Falls Church will, as of January 1, 1987, be served by the courts of the Seventeeth Circuit and District. This change was recommenced by the Judicial Council in the fall of 1986 after a review of the caseloads and other data of the two circuits indicated that the citizens of these circuits and districts would be better served by moving Falls Church under the jurisdiction of the Seventeenth.

Support Enforcement

During 1986, the transfer of reponsibility of support enforcement from the clerk's offices of the juvenile and domestic relations district courts to the Division of Child Support Enforcement in the Virginia Department of Social Services was commenced. Problems began in the transfer of the payment process from the clerk's offices to the Division of Child Support Enforcement (DCSE). Under the new procedures, all payments were sent to a central processing unit in Richmond for data entry on the DCSE computer so that payment could be processed. Unfortunately, there was considerable underestimation of the effort needed to process case abstracts in a timely manner and to process the number of "unidentified" (no case number) payments.

The conversion of payments in existing cases was to be started on a regional basis to permit local training of court personnel and to spread out the conversion to avoid swamping DCSE with case abstracts. The first region was to start sending abstracts on November 15, 1985, and the other regions were to start on January 15, February 15, and March 15, 1986. It was anticipated that each region would take ten weeks to send abstracts to DCSE and an additional six weeks would be needed to complete the conversion process. In fact, most courts in each region started conversion on schedule but took more than ten weeks to prepare and send abstracts because many clerk's offices needed to update their support arrearage calculations in each case.

It became evident by early 1986 that there were problems both in the processing of case abstacts and in processing payments. Substantial public dissatisfaction was expressed by litigants. A lawsuit was filed by some support recipents in federal court with the aid of legal aid groups resulting in a consent order directing DCSE to correct deficiencies in support payment processing. In the meantime, special legislation was enacted in September, 1986, to eliminate some legislative roadblocks to disbursement of funds in some types of cases. In October, 1986, the conversion of payment processing was stopped in those courts with substantial volumes of cases not yet converted to DCSE.

A significant effort was made by juvenile and domestic relations district court clerks and their staff to prepare case abstracts to convert the payment process to DCSE. Instead of receiving relief through reduced work once the payment process was converted to DCSE, the courts were inundated with support payment-related problems. A substantial number of cases were reopened to enter orders that support payment be made directly between the parties. When cases were reopened to take judicial enforcement action after the respondent fell into arrears on support payments, accurate payment records were often unavailable because of payments being posted to the wrong account or payments being posted to a suspense account.

During late 1986 and early 1987, efforts were made to transfer the payment process back to the clerk's offices. While legislation to this effect was introduced in 1987, such legislation was amended to required DCSE to establish offices in each judicial district for case abstract processing and payment processing. In addition, DCSE must submit a plan for improved localized collection and disbursement of support monies by August 1, 1987 for approval by various boards including the Committee on District Courts. The 1987 General Assembly also enacted legislation permitting DCSE to contract with any public or private entity to process support payments.

Judicial Education

Significant expansion in judicial education programs occurred during 1986. The new mandatory continuing legal education for magistrates was initiated in July. The one-week judges' Pre-Bench Orientation Program was expanded to three weeks. The Judicial Conference of Virginia reinstated its voluntary fall conference. Two Hearing Officers' conferences were held for the first time.

Magistrate certification courses were held in March, August and December. By the end of the three programs, 36 new magistrates had been certified. In anticipation of the new mandatory continuing legal education (CLE) program for the magistrates, meetings were held with all the Chief Magistrates to review the proposed procedures for this program. The first CLE regional workshop was held at the Lynchburg Community College in September. By the end of the year, two more had been held, and a total of 152 magistrates had attended. As a result of the new CLE requirements, the October magistrate conferences was the largest ever held in Virginia with 385 magistrates attending.

In April, the expanded Judges' Pre-Bench Orientation Program began three one-week sessions were held; one week in each of the months of April, May and June. The first week was in Richmond and consisted of helping the new judges make the transition from lawyer to judge, acquainting them with some of the other state agencies they would be dealing with, and having them conduct a mock trial. To the regular videotaped criminal mock trial was added a new teaching trial—a civil jury trial with specific teaching points and a critique by an experienced circuit court judge. Each trial consisted of the new judge, the two opposing lawyers and their two witnesses and the experienced circuit judge who functioned as the jury and critiquer.

In May the Pre-Bench Orientation moved to Williamsburg. This was the week where the new judge assessed himself and the "cast of characters" he or she would be working with in the courtroom. Other sessions were held on dealing with lawyers, the media, witnesses and victims, and juries. Effective writing and listening were covered as was decision making. The final session was on the Role of Judicial Leadership in the Court. In June, the new judges went to the University of Virginia Law School for a week of 3-hour mini bar review courses presented by faculty from each of Virginia's law schools.

In July, a specialty course, "Improving the Management Component of the Court," was given to nine teams each consisting of a chief judge, clerk and chief magistrate, and one team from the Executive Secretary's Personnel Office. This program was conducted by the Institute for Court Management and was presented by Dr. Dale LeFever. Each team was required to come to the program with an actual problem or improvement it wanted to make in its own court. The program was then designed to show them how to manage this real problem or change and to return to their court with an actual plan to put into effect.

At the national level, Virginia sent 45 judges and three clerks to courses throughout the country. Two appellate, 16 circuit, 13 general district, and 14 juvenile and domestic relations district court judges took advantage of this national education opportunity. Two circuit court clerks and one general district court clerk also received education at the national level.

Revision of the Magistrate Statistical System

In 1986, the system for collecting and reporting statistical information regarding magistrate activity was changed significantly. The magistrate statistical system was originally implemented in 1975. Under this system, magistrates were required to keep detailed logs concerning their activities and report this information to the Chief Magistrate on a monthly basis. Because of the difficulty in verifying the reporting of activity and given the volume of activity, there was no systematic auditing of the magistrate data. Thus, the accuracy of the data was called into question and its usefulness was limited.

In order to make the statistics more accurate and to make the task of reporting the data more uniform across the state, the magistrate statistical system was revised in 1986. The number of categories of data reported was reduced from 28 to 11. Under the old system the number of processes issued was reported for three categories of arrest warrants, six categories of bonds, and eight categories of other processes. Under the revised system, magistrate activity is reported under only four major categories: probable cause hearings, bond hearings, civil processes, and other processes. By simplifying the reporting process, it is hoped that the accuracy and thus the usefulness of the data will improve.

The review of the magistrate statistical system began in the spring of 1986. Technical assistance staff met with magistrates to determine the needs for revising the system. After the data elements to be collected were agreed upon, a new magistrate log and a new magistrate reporting form was developed. These forms were then tested in magistrates offices in Virginia Beach, Lynchburg, Washington County, Smyth County, and Bristol in order to get feedback from magistrates concerning the use of the new procedures. After evaluation of the use of the reports in the test offices, the new system was implemented on January 1, 1987.

District Court System Personnel Study

During 1986, the District Court System Personnel Study was completed. The study had three major topics: Job evaluation and compensation, recruitment and selection, and staffing allocation systems. Its major thrust was to move from a longevity based system to a "pay for performance" system.

One primary purpose of the job evaluation system is to examine the job to be accomplished in order to determine its value to the organization in relation to all other jobs. The individual performing the job is not to be considered during the job evaluation. A Point Factor System was developed to replace the classification system which has been used for several years. Under the Point Factor System, all jobs are evaluated according to the six factors: environment, management, knowledge requirement, financial responsibility, mental effort, and public relations. A Factor Analysis Worksheet is sent to all clerks, and a worksheet is completed for each position in the office. The clerk evaluates each position in relation to these six factors through a series of questions. Based on the clerk's evaluation, points are assigned for each question. These points are then added together to develop the position's total point value.

There is a series of 15 pay grades with a range of points and a salary scale assignment to each. Each position's total points from the Factor Analysis Worksheet is matched to the pay grade with the corresponding point values. This then becomes the positon's pay grade. The pay grade establishes the monetary value of the position to the organization and its competitive value among other employers. It governs the minimum and maximum salary that can be paid to an individual employee. Employees progress through the salary scales according to performance. New performance evaluation forms were also developed as part of the study and require an overall performance evaluation score. This score determines the amount of the merit increase. Rather than a choice of a 5 percent merit increase or no increase at all as was the case under the former system, there will be options for amounts of merit increases up to 7.5 percent depending on performance evaluation scores and the merit increase budget. Non-exempt employees under the Fair Labor Standards Act will be paid according to a salary with 17 steps with 2.5 percent increments. Exempt employees' salary scales will have a minimum, mid-point, and maximum with no intervening steps.

New policy and procedures were developed for the process of recruitment and selection of court employee procedures. Several standard recruitment steps as well as sample application evaluation forms and interview structures were provided. Complete implementation of these recommendations will be accomplished in 1987 with the development of a procedural manual (incorporating sample advertisements, records retention procedures, references, reference checking forms) and an openings bulletin to be circulated state-wide on a scheduled basis.

The Relative Value Unit system was the statistical evaluation method recommended to address questions of appropriate staffing levels for each court in the state. It takes into account the varying amounts of clerical time required to process different types of cases. Using estimates received in a survey of court personnel, the relative amount of clerical case processing time (values) was determined for each case type currently identified in the District Court Caseload Reporting System. All courts were requested to participate in the survey, with a paired comparison technique used to determine relative values. These values for each case type are then applied to each court's caseload to determine the court's total "relative value units" (RVU). In addition, the actual hours worked in each court are also considered. They are computed by subtracting holidays, vacancies, and leave hours from the authorized staffing level and adding overtime, wage, and hours that a position was "double-filled." Also considered is whether a position was added or deleted during the year. The total RVU's are then divided by the "Worked Hours" to equal the court's "RVU's Per Worked Hour." In theory, those courts with the highest "RVU's Per Worked Hour" are the leading candidates for additional employees. Visits to the courts are still used to examine office needs which are not apparent from statistical considerations alone and will continue to be an important factor in the process.

Implementation of the Personnel Employee Payroll Leave System

During 1986, Phase I of the Personnel Employee Payroll Leave System (PEPALS—pronounced "peoples") was completed. This system establishes the basic personnel file creating employee and leave acounting records. It provides easy access to updated and comprehennsive individual employement records and easy entry of data. Information may be entered the same day it is received, rather than being batch-processed. PEPALS reduces the amount of space required for physical records, reduces duplication between departments, and provides security of records.

PEPALS provides the capability to view information, update, add, delete, and search and employee's past history, current status, and future changes on-line. This system also provides printed reports to aid in managerial decisions, and to review and update court information and leave balances. PEPALS supplies accurate and timely information, eliminating the time consuming manual system previously used. Services to the courts and magistrates include automated management reports of employees' salary and leave histories during their employment as well as turnover ratios. Additionally, the system provides "benefits reminder information" to court system staff in certain deferred compenstion, health insurance, and retirement questions.

Phase II of PEPALS includes the budget and position control function. A position must be authorized by the Judicial Branch budget prior to its being "established" in any office and prior to its being filled by an employee. The major control factor is the position number for each office in the Jucidial Branch. Various reports concerning postion control and vacancy rates will be available from this system which will be implemented during 1987.

Court Automation

During 1986, an additional 24 new courts were added to the Courts Automated Information System (CAIS) bringing the total in the network to 96. In addition to adding courts to the network, the CAIS was further expanded to include a Case Management System for Juvenile and Domestic Relations Courts. Implementation of this systems represented a major milestone in the CAIS implementation effort in that it completed the first major phase of the systems development effort originally planned—The Financial Management System became available in 1983; the General District Court Case Management System in 1984; the Circuit Court Case Management System in 1985 and now the J&DR Case Management System represents the achievement of the primary CAIS objective.

Planning for the second major phase of CAIS system development—Interfacing—was initiated during the fourth quarter of 1986. Specifically this phase will encompass the electronic interfacing of (1) The Financial Management System and the Case Management System; (2) The CAIS System (FMS & CMS) with existing external systems at the state level and (3) The development of a standard interface which could allow the CAIS and local goverment systems to electronically communicate and exchange data. At the close of the year, design on the internal FMS-CMS interface was well underway and the OES staff was busily engaged with personnel from the Department of Motor Vehicles in developing in design of the first of the state level external interfaces. Current plans call for the implementation of these two interfaces in the summer of 1987.

Technical Assistance

A significant milestone in the Technical Assistance area was the creation of a Technical Assistant for Circuit Courts in October. The circuit court technical assistant has already participated in the knowledge and skills analysis as well as a conference in Denver, Colorado on Jury Management. One of the functions of the new position is to visit all the circuit court clerks to determine their educational and technical needs. A Circuit Court Clerk's Manual has been undertaken and will be published. The technical assistant also assists the circuit courts in their automated systems through review of the system in the field and coordinating changes with the Management Information Systems department.

The recently created Internal Audit Division contacted 190 courts and magistrates during their first full year in existence. Each court received a report on its internal strengths and weaknesses, as well as assistance with varous accounting problems. The internal audit supervisor conducted a survey and analysis, on behalf of the comptroller, of all the district courts and the Office of the Executive Secretary. In addition to regular audits and supervisory duties, he participated in accounting training in the C.L.E. programs for magistrates, magistrate conferences and regional training of district court clerks. The supervisor also assisted the M.I.S. department by reviewing the various E.D.P. programs and certifying courts to switch from manual bookkeeping to the "on-line" automated financial system.

The court technical assistants visited 201 clerk's offices in addition to conducting six regional conferences. Seventy-three management analysis visits were conducted to district courts and magistrates. Management analysis visits are in-depth studies that last from three to five days.

The magistrate technical assistants visited 385 magistrates in addition to participating in four annual conferences and serving as instructors in the new continuing legal education for magistrates.

General District Court Rules

Many procedural requirements for the processing of cases are not found in the Code of Virginia, but are found in the Rules of the Supreme Court of Virginia. However, all of these rules do not apply to district court cases, leaving certain procedural steps unaddressed by a statewide rule. Consequently, different practices have been implemented across the state in each district court, thus creating many non-uniform practices that can create problems for the unwary litigant or lawyer. In addition, there is disagreement as to whether certain rules in the Rules of the Supreme Court of Virginia apply in district court cases. Almost since the inception of the district court systems, there has been some effort made to create a set of rules applicable only to district courts or to amend the rules to make more provisions applicable to district courts. To this end, two sets of proposed rules (one for general district courts and another one for juvenile and domestic relations district courts) were prepared by a special study group in the late 1970's and early 1980's. Of these proposals, only the proportion of the general district court set dealing with civil cases was adopted, and then only in part.

Because problems from the lack of rules continued to persist especially strong in the general district courts, the Advisory Committee on Rules of the Judicial Council of Virginia in 1986 created a special committee to study and create a set of proposed rules for use in all types of cases in general district courts. This committee was composed of general district court judges, attorneys in private practice, a Commonwealth's Attorney and representatives from the Office of the Executive Secretary. This committee solicited suggestions from the bench and bar, met numerous times to review and amend drafts during the last half of 1986. The final version was then distributed to all members of the bench and bar for comments in January, 1987, after which it will go to the Advisory Committee on Rules for further considerations.

INDIGENT DEFENSE SERVICES

The cost in FY 1986 of providing counsel for indigents charged with a criminal offense jumped $1,165,971, an increase of 14.8 percent from 1985. The cost of court appointed counsel rose from about $7 million in FY 85 to over $8 million in FY 86. The cost of operating the Public Defender System increased from $819,022 in FY 85 to $933,042 in FY 86. Two new public defender offices were added effective July 1, 1986: one in Portsmouth and the other in Richmond. A small portion of the increase in Public Defender expenses can be attributed to start-up costs associated with these two offices. However, the cost of operating the existing offices increased by 11 percent. As the cost of court appointed counsel went up, so did the amount recouped by the courts. In FY 1985, $538,503 in court appointed attorney fees were recouped from those indigents convicted of a crime. In FY 1986, this figure jumped,11.7,percent to $601,718. Court appointed counsel was provided for 102,948 charges (68,543 individuals).

INVOLUNTARY CIVIL COMMITMENTS (IMC)

In FY 1986, the cost to the Commonwealth of maintaining the involuntary civil commitments process rose from $3.9 million in FY 1985 to almost $4.3 million. This was an increase of 9 percent from the previous year. Since 1979, these costs have risen 226 percent.

The bulk (59%) of IMC expenditures went towards payment of hospital costs. Such costs include charges for room and meals, medication, lab tests, and pharmaceutical supplies. Hospital expenses increased almost 13 percent in 1986. Payments to physicians and psychiatrists, which make up 18 percent of all IMC expenditures, increased 7.4 percent in FY 1986. Attorney fees rose 2.1 percent and accounted for 12 percent of the total expenditures. Payments for special justices (which accounted for 11 percent of the total) declined slightly (-0.1%).

Most (87%) of all IMC expenditures were recorded by the general district courts while the J&DR courts accounted for 8 percent of the total and combined courts only 5 percent. However, IMC expenditures in the J&DR courts jumped 112 percent in FY 1986 while expenditures in the combined courts reported only a 4 percent increase in IMC expenditures.

Over two-thirds (68%) of the expenses paid were for detention costs while 16 percent were costs of the commitment hearing. Preliminary hearings accounted for 13 percent of the total expenses while recommitment hearing costs represented 2 percent of the total. Appeal hearings and certification hearings accounted for less than 1 percent of the total expenditures.

Virginia Courts

THE SUPREME COURT OF VIRGINIA

The Supreme Court of Virginia is one of the oldest continuous judicial bodies in the United States. Its roots are deep in the English legal system dating to the early seventeenth century as part of the Charter of 1606 under which Jamestown, the first permanent English settlement in North America, was established. In 1623, the Virginia House of Burgesses created a five-man appellate court which met quarterly to hear appeals from the lower courts. Meeting on the first day of March, June, September, and December, it became known as the Quarter Court.

The June term became unnecessary over the years, and in 1661, the Quarter Court became the General Court with original and appellate jurisiction on both civil and crimnal matters. It was a court of last resort for the Virginia colonists except in those rare circumstances when an appeal could be made to the King in England. Its members were appointed by the King on the basis of social standing, property, and the proximity of their estates to the Williamsburg capital. Though the judges were generally most capable, the majority possessed no formal legal training.

At the close of the Revolutionary War, the court system was reorganized. An act of the new General Assembly in 1779 created four superior courts, including the Supreme Court of Appeals, to be composed of judges of the other three existing courts: the Admiralty, the General, and the Chancery Courts. The Supreme Court of Appeals, which served as a model for the United States Supreme Court, first convened in Williamsburg on August 30, 1779.

It has been suggested that the first Virginia Court of Appeals served in many ways as a model for the United States Supreme Court. The Court of Appeals later was moved to Richmond and held its sessions in the old Henrico County Courthouse at the corner of 22nd and Main Streets. The court's jurisdiction was primarily appellate, and its members were elected by the legislature. Most judges were not trained in the law, and those who received legal training studied at the College of William and Mary under George Wythe.

Under the Constitution of 1830, the number of judges was not established, but the legislature fixed it at five. By the reformed Constitution of 1851, the judges of all the courts were "elected by the people." Those on the Court of Appeals were elected for 12 years. That Constitution was never abolished as such but was destroyed as the result of the Civil War. Our Supreme Court Justices continue today to be elected for 12 year terms, but there has been no popular election of judges since the Civil War.In 1864 representatives from only a few Virginia counties, but claiming to represent the state, met in convention in Alexandria and adopted an amended Constitution which reduced the number of judges of the Court of Appeals to three. It provided for their election by the legislature upon nomination of the Governor but did not change their tenure.

The Constitution of 1870 restored the number of judges to five. In 1870, the Court began electing one of its members President of the Court and began requiring that at least one member reside at the seat of government. The first court members elected under the Constitution of 1870 began their terms in January 1871. The Constitution of 1870 also reestablished election by joint vote of both houses of the legislature, the method which remains in effect today. This Constitution also required that annual sessions be held away from Richmond in the localities of Wytheville, Staunton and Winchester. This mandate from the days of horse and buggy travel continued until recently with sessions being held in Staunton as late as September 1970.

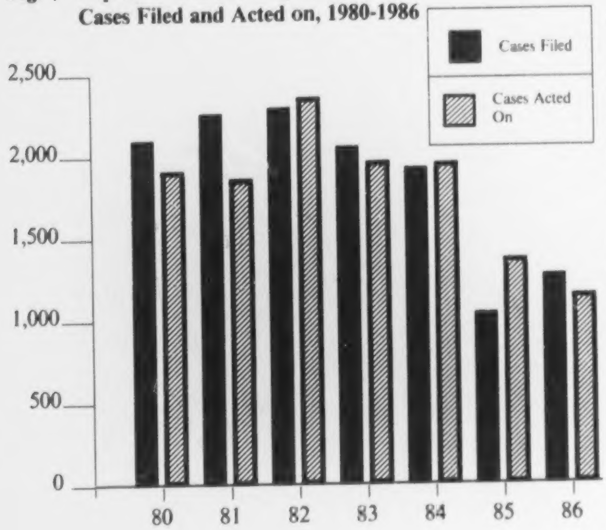
By constitutional amendment in 1928, the number of justices was increased to seven and the title of the presiding officer of the court was changed from President to Chief Justice. Judge Robert R. Prentis, who had been the President of the court beginning March 1925, became the first Chief Justice under the amendment. At the same time, the amendment significantly increased the power given the Supreme Court.

The current Supreme Court sits in Richmond. It consists of seven Justices. The Justice senior in service is the Chief Justice. The Court currently has original jurisdiction in cases of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition and additionally in matters of judicial censure, retirement or removal. Its appellate jurisdiction includes all constitutional cases and those cases involving the life and liberty of any person. The Court also hears appeals from judgments or findings of the State Corporation Commission.

The Court meets for five-day sessions beginning in October and continuing every seventh week thereafter until the completion of the June docket. The Court does not meet in July but holds a three-day session in late August or early September. All sessions are held in Richmond. During the six-week recess between each session, the justices conduct extensive legal research upon the cases awaiting decision, draft and review opinions, study cases in which petitions for appeal have been filed, conduct hearings on petitions for appeal, and attend to administrative duties.

In 1986, 1,232 petitions were filed with the Supreme Court, an 18.1 percent increase over the number filed in 1985. Civil appeals filed increased from 509 in 1985 to 520 in 1986. Criminal appeals filed more than doubled from 121 in 1985 to 287 in 1986. There were 68 habeas appeals recorded in 1986 up from 27 the previous year.

Fig. 7 Supreme Court of Virginia: Cases Filed and Acted on, 1980-1986



While the number of appellate petitions filed increased in 1986, the number of petitions acted on fell 23.7 percent. The number of petitions granted decreased from 218 in 1985 to 156 in 1986, a drop of 28.4 percent. The number of petitions refused declined 22.4 percent from 777 in 1985 to 603 in 1986. The number of civil petitions granted dropped from 181 in 1985 to 138 in 1986. Thus, 28.4 percent of the civil petitions acted on in 1986 were granted by the Court. In both 1984 and 1985, over 30 percent of civil petitions acted on were granted. The number of criminal petitions granted fell from 28 in 1985 to 5 in 1986, or 2.3 percent of all criminal petitions acted on. In contrast, 7.4 percent of the criminal petitions acted on in 1985 were granted. In addition to the civil and criminal petitions granted in 1986, 5 appeals were granted with the case being remanded to the trial court and another 6 cases were certified from the Court of Appeals. Three appeals (1 civil, 2 criminal) from the Court of Appeals were granted while 213 (13 civil and 200 criminal) of such appeals were refused. In addition, 12 habeas corpus appeals from the Court of Appeals were refused.

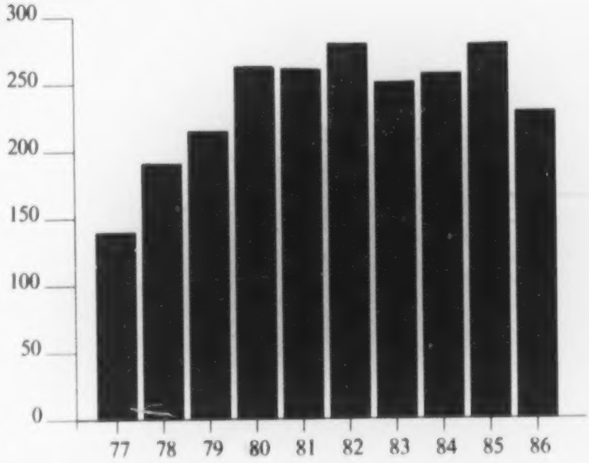
There was a decline in the number of original jurisdiction cases filed with the Court from 386 in 1985 to 357 in 1986. However, the Court acted on 10 more original jurisdiction cases in 1986 than in 1985. The Court awarded 45 (up from 42 in 1985) and refused 291 (up from 284) such cases in 1986.

In sum, the Court acted on 1,095 appellate petitions and original jurisdiction cases in 1986, 226 fewer than in the previous year. There were also 52 petitions withdrawn before being acted on.

At the end of 1986, there were 606 petitions pending before the Court. This was an increase of 130 petitions pending from the end of 1985. Civil petitions pending increased from 257 at the end of 1985 to 264 at the end of 1986. Criminal petitions pending jumped from 58 to 132 during the same period. Habeas corpus appeals pending rose from 17 in 1985 to 26 in 1986 while original jurisdiction petitions pending increased from 144 to 184.

At the end of 1985, there were 281 cases waiting to be argued before the Court. At the end of 1986, this number had fallen to 232, the fewest cases waiting to be argued at the end of a year since 1979.

Fig. 8 Supreme Court of Virginia: Cases Left to be Heard, 1977-1986



The number of cases decided by opinion fell from 174 in 1985 to 152 in 1986. There were 66 opinions in which judgment was affirmed and 84 in which judgment was reversed or remanded. Thus, over half (55%) of the cases decided by opinions were cases in which judgment was reversed. This was the highest such percentage in the last 7 years. The number of cases decided by orders jumped from 38 in 1985 to 88 in 1986.

COURT OF APPEALS

The Court of Appeals began operation in Virginia in 1985. Composed of ten judges, the Court of Appeals sits in panels of three judges in four regional locations. The Chief Judge, whose term is four years, is elected by a majority vote of the judges of the Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals is statutorily empowered to hear appeals from: 1) the Industrial Commission of Virginia; 2) decisions of circuit courts regarding appeals from administrative agencies; and 3) any final judgment, order, or decree of a circuit court involving divorce, custody, spousal or child support, adoption, control or disposition of a child, as well as any other domestic relations matter. The Court of Appeals is authorized also to consider appeals of convictions in criminal and traffic matters except where a sentence of death has been imposed. Criminal appeals are heard upon the granting of a petition or writ of error while domestic relations appeals, appeals from the Industrial Commission, and other administrative agency appeals are heard as a matter of right.

In 1986, 1,536 cases were filed with the Court of Appeals, a decrease of 6.4 percent from 1985. These filings included 1,087 criminal petitions, 26 original jurisdiction petitions, 197 domestic relations appeals, 197 appeals from the Industrial Commmission, as well as 29 appeals involving administrative agencies. Compared to cases filed in 1985, criminal appeals decreased slightly (-0.5%), original jurisdiction cases increased by 44.4 percent, and appeals of right fell 21.4 percent. Domestic relations appeals dropped 21.2 percent while administrative agency appeals declined by 14.7 percent. However, appeals from the Industrial Commission increased by 3.1 percent.

While the number of cases filed declined in 1986, the number of cases acted on increased substantially. There was a 28.4 percent increase in the number of criminal petitions granted and a 46.9 percent jump in criminal petitions refused. The Court granted 26.6 percent of all criminal petitions acted on in 1986. This was similar to the percentage in 1985, when 26.3 percent of the criminal petitions acted on were granted. The 25 original jurisdiction cases disposed of represented a 92.3 percent increase from 1985 while appeals of right cases disposed of jumped 120 percent. Domestic relations cases disposed of increased by 191 percent while appeals from circuit court decisions concerning matters appealed from administrative agencies acted on jumped 245.5 percent. Appeals from the Industrial Commission disposed of rose 103 percent while habeas appeals acted on fell 28.6 percent (due to the fact that statutory changes effective July, 1985 removed jurisdiction of habeas appeals from the Court of Appeals). These substantial increases are due, in part, to the fact that few cases had matured for hearing prior to the Spring of 1985.

Of the 25 original jurisdiction cases acted upon in 1986, only one (a writ of mandamus) was granted: 14 habeas corpus, 5 mandamus, and 5 prohibition writs were refused. There were 328 cases involving appeals of right or granted criminal appeals decided by opinions. Of these 225 were affirmed, 76 were reversed, 17 were affirmed in part and reversed in part, and another 10 cases were dismissed. In 1986, 386 cases were decided by order with 113 being affirmed, 14 reversed, 134 dismissed, and 125 withdrawn or settled.

Total Appellate Capacity

In 1986, the total appellate capacity increased in Virginia's appellate courts. The number of filings in the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals increased by almost 3 percent. The 2,768 petitions filed in 1986 represents the highest number ever filed in Virginia's appellate courts. In addition, 2,479 appellate petitions, original jurisdiction petitions, and appeals of right were acted on by the two courts, up from 2,174 such cases in 1985.

THE CIRCUIT COURTS

The Circuit Court is the trial court of general jurisdiction in Virginia with authority to try a full range of civil and criminal cases. In civil cases, the circuit court has concurrent jurisdiction with the general district court over claims from $1,000 to $7,000 and exclusive original jurisdiction over claims exceeding $7,000. The circuit court also has jurisdiction over all equity matters including divorce cases, disputes concerning wills and estates, and controversies involving property.

In criminal cases, the circuit court has jurisdiction over the trial of all felonies (offenses that may be punished by confinement in a State prison and of those misdemeanors (offenses carrying a penalty of not more than twelve months in jail) originating from grand jury indictments. The circuit court also has jurisdiction over juveniles aged fifteen and older who are charged with felonies and whose cases have been certified by the judge of a juvenile and domestic relations district court for trial in circuit court.

The circuit court has appellate jurisdiction over all appeals from general district court in civil and criminal cases and from juvenile and domestic relations district court in matters originating in that court. Appeals from these district courts are heard de novo, that is the cases are tried from the beginning as though there had been no prior trial. The circuit courts also hear appeals from administrative agencies.

The Virginia circuit court system is composed of thirty-one judicial circuits encompassing one hundred twenty-two separate circuit courts in the various counties and cities of the State. In 1986, there were 122 judges and 122 locally elected clerks serving the court.

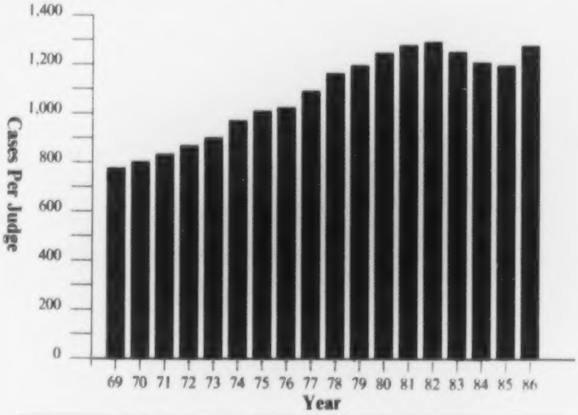
A circuit court judge is elected for an eight-year term by a majority vote of both houses of the General Assembly. Interim appointments are made by the Governor. There are at least two judges serving each circuit and as many as eleven serving in larger circuits. The Chief Judge of the circuit is elected by vote of the judges serving the circuit. Judges are required to reside in the circuit they serve and must have been admitted to the Virginia Bar at least five years prior to their appointment to the bench.

The clerk of the circuit court is a constitutional official and is elected to an eight-year term by the voters of the locality. The clerk handles administrative matters for the court and also has authority to probate wills, grant administration of estates, and appoint guardians. The clerk is the custodian of the court records and the clerk's office where deeds are recorded and marriage licenses issued.

In 1986, 155,572 cases were commenced in Virginia's circuit courts, an increase of 5.7 percent from 1985. The Nineteenth Circuit recorded the highest number of commenced cases (15,459) of any of the 31 circuits while the Sixth reported the fewest cases (1,920). The average caseload was 5,018 cases per circuit, up substantially from the average of 4,748 cases in 1985. Total commenced caseloads increased in 26 circuits while declining in only 5.

Although an additional judgeship was created in 1986 (in the 31st circuit), the average caseload per judge increased from 1,216 cases per judge in 1985 to 1,276 in 1986. This ended a three year decline in the average commenced caseloads of circuit court judges. The average caseload for judges in urban circuits was 1,333 cases in 1986 (up from 1,269 in 1985) while judges in rural circuits averaged 1,199 commenced cases each (up from 1,146).

Fig. 12 Circuit Courts: Commenced Cases Per Judge 1969-1986

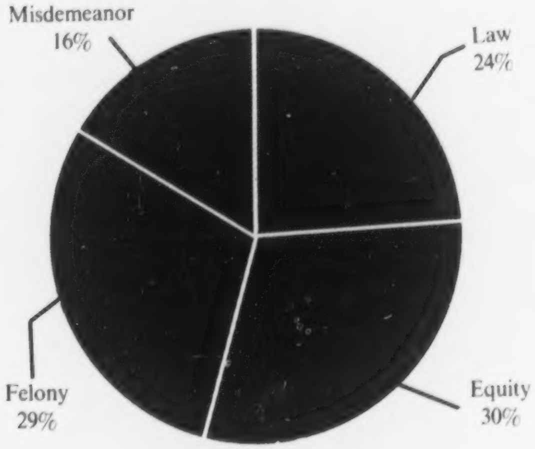


A total of 145,830 cases were concluded in the circuit courts during 1986, a rise of 5.9 percent from 1985. This resulted in an average of 1,195 cases concluded per circuit court judge, up from the average of 1,137 cases per judge in 1985. In urban circuits, the judges concluded an average of 1,255 cases each while in rural circuits the average number of concluded cases was 1,114.

There were 147,820 cases pending in the circuit courts at the end of 1986. This was almost 10,000 more cases than were pending at the end of 1985. An average of 1,212 cases per judge were thus pending in Virginia's circuit courts. Urban circuits averaged 1,313 pending cases per judge while judges in rural circuits averaged 1,073 cases pending each. The Third Circuit reported the highest number of pending cases per judge (2,651) while the 28th Circuit had the lowest pending caseload average (627 per judge).

There were 4,083 juries impaneled in Virginia in 1986, an average of 33 per circuit court judge. Almost half (47%) of the jury trials were in felony cases while another 41 percent involved law cases. Misdemeanor cases accounted for 12 percent of all jury trials while only one percent involved equity matters.

Fig. 13 Circuit Courts: Caseload Distribution



Cases Commenced

Thirty percent of the commenced cases in Virginia's circuit courts involved equity matters while 29 percent were felony cases. Law cases represented 24 percent of the commenced cases while misdemeanors made up the remaining 16 percent.

Civil

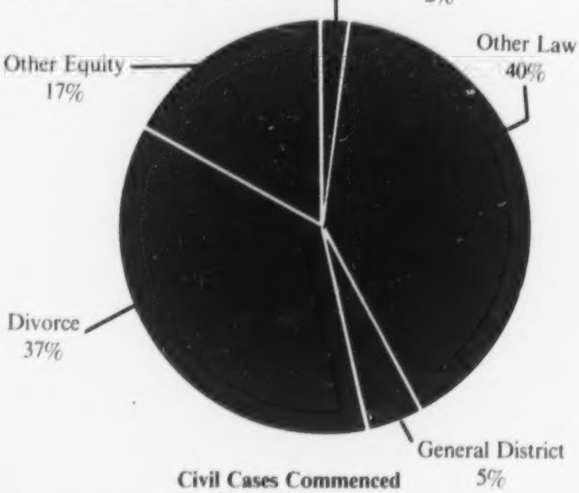
Over 84,000 civil cases were commenced in the circuit courts during 1986. This included 33,368 law cases, 30,981 divorce cases, 14,029 equity cases, 3,943 appeals from the General District Courts, and 2,087 appeals from the J&DR courts. Overall, there was a 5.9 percent increase in civil cases commenced. Law cases increased by 11.9 percent, J&DR appeals by 10.1 percent, appeals from general district courts by 6.2 percent, divorce cases increased by 2.2 percent, and other equity cases by 0.5 percent.

The Nineteenth Circuit reported 10,613 civil cases commenced in 1986, over 4,000 more than any other circuit. In fact, the Nineteenth accounted for 13 percent of total civil cases commenced in the State. The Nineteenth Circuit also had the highest civil case per judge average of 965 cases. The Fifth Circuit had the lowest average, 470 civil cases per judge. Statewide, judges averaged 692 civil cases each. In urban circuits, the average was 741 cases per judge while in rural circuits, the judges averaged 625 cases each.

There were 77,886 civil cases concluded in the circuit courts in 1986, a 6.7 percent increase from the number concluded in 1985. The average number of cases concluded per circuit court judge was 638 cases. Almost 28 percent of the civil cases concluded ended by settlement, non-suit or voluntary dismissal while 18 percent were ended by a decree on deposition and another 15 percent were terminated by a Commissioner's Report. Almost 2 percent were disposed of by jury trial while over 15 percent were concluded with judge trial. In 1985, just over 14 percent ended with judge trials.

Almost 63 percent of the civil cases concluded ended within 12 months of filing. Slightly less than 80 percent reached termination within 2 years. In 1985, 66.5 percent ended within 12 months and 82.3 percent were concluded within 2 years.

Fig. 14 Circuit Courts: Civil Caseload Distribution



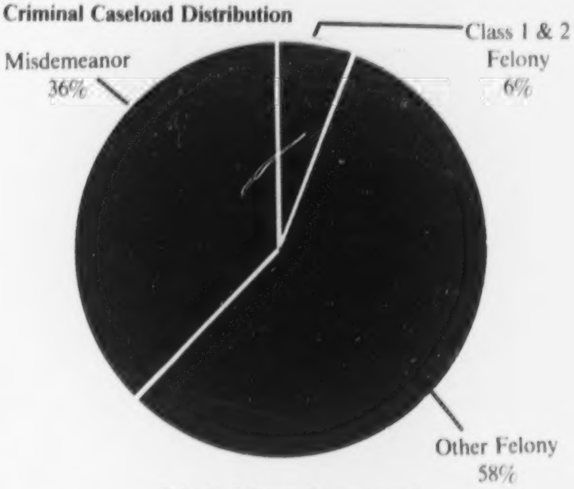
Civil Cases Commenced

Criminal

In 1986, 71,283 criminal cases were initiated in the circuit courts, a 5.5 percent increase from 1985. Of these, 6 percent were Class 1 and 2 felonies, 58 percent were other felonies, and 36 percent were misdemeanors. Fifty-eight percent of these cases were commenced by indictment, presentment, information, or waiver while 31 percent were the result of appeals from the district courts. Another 10 percent of these cases were reinstated cases.

As was the case in 1985, the Fourth Circuit reported the most criminal cases of any circuit (7,134). The fewest cases were reported in the Sixth Circuit where only 825 criminal cases were commenced. The Third Circuit had the highest number of criminal cases per judge, averaging 634. By contrast, the 29th circuit averaged only 367 criminal cases per judge. Statewide, circuit court judges had an average of 584 criminal cases per judge. Judges in urban circuits averaged 592 criminal cases each while rural circuits averaged 574 criminal cases per judge.

Fig. 15 Circuit Courts:
Criminal Caseload Distribution



Criminal Cases Commenced

There was a 5 percent increase in the number of criminal cases concluded, from 64,655 in 1985 to 67,889 in 1986. Class 1 and 2 felony cases concluded increased 8 percent while other felony cases concluded rose almost 6 percent. The number of misdemeanor cases concluded increased by 3.6 percent. Statewide, the average number of criminal cases concluded per judge was 556, up from 534 in 1985.

Of the 67,889 criminal cases concluded in 1986, 47 percent ended by a guilty plea prior to trial, 16 percent were nolle prossed or dismissed, and 3.5 percent were withdrawn prior to trial. Less than one-fourth (23.7%) were concluded by judge trials and almost 6 percent involved jury trials. Seventeen percent of the Class 1 and 2 felony cases concluded ended by a jury trial while 6 percent of other felony cases and only 3 percent of misdemeanor cases were so disposed.

More than a fourth (27.8) of the criminal cases concluded ended within 30 days of initiation. Thirty-eight percent of the misdemeanor cases ended within this time period while 23 percent of the other felonies and 18 percent of the Class 1 and 2 felonies did so. Over 80 percent of all criminal cases reached conclusion within 5 months of initiation. Almost 90 percent of misdemeanors were terminated within this time frame as were 72 percent of Class 1 and 2 felonies and 78 percent of other felonies.

There were 39,041 defendants involved in the 63,860 criminal cases that were commenced by indictment, presentment, information, warrants, or appeals from the district courts. This results in an average of 1.64 charges per defendant. In felony cases, the average was 1.87 charges per defendant while in misdemeanor cases there were 1.36 charges per defendant.

Jury Trials

In 1986, the circuit courts concluded 1,476 civil cases and 3,819 criminal cases by jury trial. There were 1,683 juries impaneled and sworn in civil cases and another 2,400 juries impaneled in criminal cases. The number of law cases and misdemeanor cases concluded by a jury trial declined in 1986 while the number of felony cases concluded by a trial by jury increased, from 3,023 in 1985 to 3,152 in 1986. There were 7.3 felony jury trials for every 100 felony cases concluded but only 4.3 jury trials in law cases for every 100 law cases concluded and only 2.8 misdemeanor jury trials per 100 misdemeanor cases concluded.

The judges in the circuit courts presided over an average of 33 impaneled juries each in 1986, down from 34 in 1985. The Nineteenth Circuit recorded the most (503) juries impaneled while the Seventh Circuit reported the least (40). The Third Circuit had the most juries impaneled per judge (78).

THE DISTRICT COURTS

Nearly 2.7 million cases were filed in the Commonwealth's district courts in 1986. There are 204 district courts classified as general district, juvenile and domestic relations, or combined courts. Combined courts are those courts in which the clerk's office handles both general district and J&DR clerical functions. Except in District 2A, combined courts have separate judges to hear general district and J&DR cases. In 1986, there were 174 judges serving in the district courts as well as 938 staff members working in the clerks' offices.

The general district courts hear criminal, traffic, and civil cases. In criminal matters, the general district courts hear cases in which a person is charged with a misdemeanor. The court also holds preliminary hearings for persons charged with felonies. The court's civil jurisdiction extends to suits involving amounts of money up to $7,000.

The juvenile and domestic relations district courts have exclusive jurisdiction over all matters and proceedings involving delinquents, juveniles accused of traffic violations, children in need of services, children who have been abused or neglected, adults accused of child abuse or of offenses against members of their own family, support, visitation, and custody disputes, abandonment of children, foster care and entrustment agreements, court-ordered rehabilitation services, and court consent for certain medical treatments.

General District Courts

In 1986, 2,456,886 new cases were reported by the general district courts. This was 146,675 more cases than was reported in 1985 and represents a 6.4 percent increase over the previous year. Over half (54%) of the new cases in 1986 were traffic cases while 30 percent were civil cases and another 16 percent were criminal cases. The number of hearings held increased from 2,263,537 in 1985 to 2,423,149 in 1986, a 7 percent rise. The number of cases concluded also increased in 1986, from 2,276,158 cases in 1985 to 2,428,186 in 1986. Of the 3.3 million transactions on the docket, 44 percent represent cases resulting in a judgment, 28 percent were prepaid traffic infractions and waived hearings, and 28 percent were continuances.

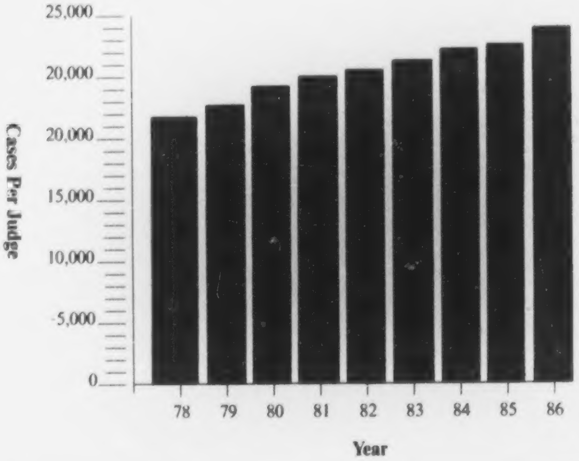
General District court caseloads increased in 25 of the 32 districts in 1986. The district with the largest percentage increase in caseload was the 7th District which experienced a 25.4 percent jump. In contrast, the 17th District experienced the largest percentage drop in new cases, a 4.7 percent decline. The Nineteenth District reported the largest volume of new cases in 1986 (239,952 cases) while the Thirteenth reported 225,889 new cases. District Two-A recorded the fewest cases (22,419) of any of the 32 districts.

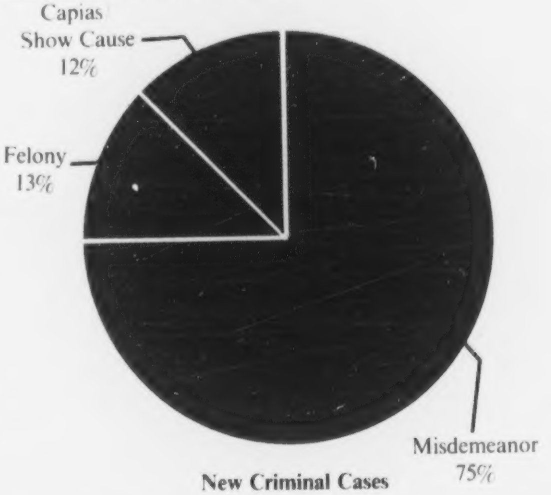
The general district court judges averaged 23,911 new cases each in 1986 and held an average of 23,583 hearings. Both figures were increases from 1985 when judges averaged 22,484 new cases and 22,030 hearings each. In 1986, judges in urban districts averaged 27,080 new cases and 27,487 hearings while the rural districts averaged 20,346 new cases and 19,191 hearings per judge. Thus the urban average for new cases increased by 1,371 cases from 1985 while the rural district average rose by 1,496 cases per judge.

Fig. 21 General District Courts: New Cases Per Judge 1978-1986



The number of new criminal cases increased from 362,228 in 1985 to 394,813 in 1986, a 9 percent rise. Three-fourths of the new criminal cases were misdemeanors while 13 percent were felonies and 12 percent were capias/show cause actions. There were 739,566 hearings held in criminal cases in 1986, a 9 percent increase from 1985. Cases concluded rose 11 percent, totaling 379,739 in 1986. The number of misdemeanors increased 6.7 percent in 1986 while felonies rose 4.9 percent. The number of capias/show cause actions jumped 31 percent.

Fig. 22 General District Courts: Criminal Caseload Distribution



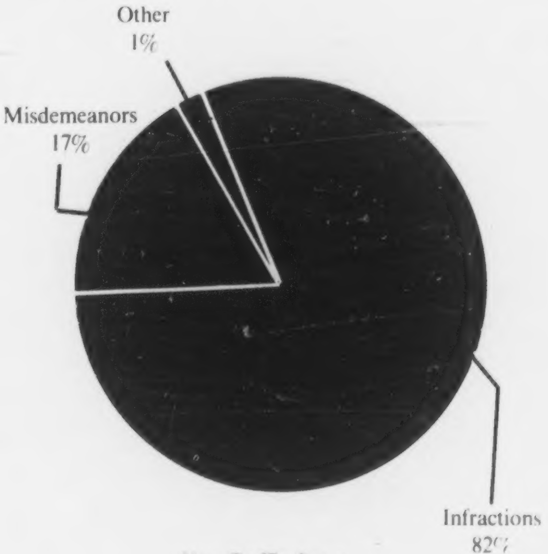
Statewide, general district court judges averaged 3,842 new criminal cases, up from 3,525 the previous year. The average for urban districts was 4,132 new criminal cases while judges in the rural districts averaged 3,517 new criminal cases in 1986.

As was the case in 1985, the Fourth District reported the most new criminal cases (41,085). In fact, the Fourth's criminal caseload was almost 13,000 more than the next highest district, the Second District (with 28,350 new criminal cases). The Second District, however, had the highest criminal caseload per judge (7,088 cases) while the 17th District had the lowest average (2,322 cases per judge). The Eleventh District recorded the most felony cases per judge (761) while the Fourth District had the largest number of misdemeanors per judge (5,856).

Traffic cases totaled 1,331,012 in 1986, a 4.6 percent increase from 1985. Traffic infractions, which made up 82 percent of the total traffic caseload, increased 3.4 percent while traffic misdemeanors rose 8.8 percent. Capias/show cause actions in traffic matters jumped 31.5 percent while traffic felonies fell 7.4 percent. Almost 47 percent of the traffic infractions concluded in 1986 were the result of prepayments. The number of hearings in traffic cases rose from 1,094,140 in 1985 to 1,133,828, an increase of 5.6 percent. Traffic cases concluded increased 5 percent in 1986 and totaled 1,318,126.

The Nineteenth District reported the most traffic cases of any district (175,628 cases) in 1986 and held the most traffic hearings (129,640). The Sixth District, however, recorded the most traffic cases per judge (28,865) while the 21st District averaged the fewest (3,890). The Thirteenth District had the largest number of traffic felonies per judge (50). Statewide, general district court judges averaged 12,954 traffic cases each in 1985. They also averaged 10,610 infractions, 2,159 traffic misdemeanors, 17 traffic felonies, and 168 capias/show cause actions. The judges in urban districts had an average 13,975 traffic cases per judge while the rural district average was 11,805 new traffic cases per judge.

Fig. 23 General District Courts: Traffic Caseload Distribution



New Traffic Cases

The general district courts reported 731,061 new civil cases in 1986, an 8.3 increase from the previous year. The number of hearings in civil cases rose 7.9 percent and totaled 527,755. ~~There were~~ also 730,321 civil cases concluded in 1986 of which 39 percent were by default judgment and 55 percent by dismissal or charge of venue. Garnishments accounted for 12 percent of the civil caseload while motions for judgment represented another 14 percent.

The Thirteenth District reported the largest number of new civil cases in 1986 (121,622), accounting for 16.6 percent of the total civil caseload in the state. The Twenty-Eighth District reported the fewest civil cases (5,054). The Thirteenth District also had the highest average for civil cases per judge (15,203) while the Twenty-Eighth had the lowest average of 2,412 civil cases per judge. The statewide average for 1986 was 7,115 civil cases per judge. The urban district average was 8,973 cases while the average for rural districts was 5,025 civil cases per judge.

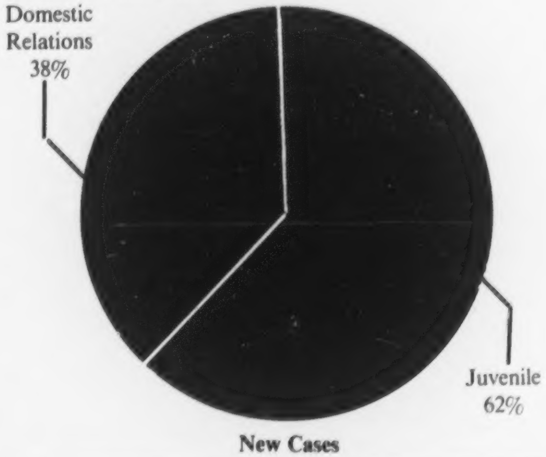
Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts

The juvenile and domestic relations courts recorded a 1.5 percent increase in new cases in 1986, from 232,595 in 1985 to 236,188 in 1986. The number of J&DR hearings increased from 422,433 in 1985 to 431,246 in 1986, an increase of 2.1 percent. Juvenile cases made up 63 percent of the total J&DR caseload while domestic relations cases accounted for the remaining 37 percent. There were 222,461 J&DR cases concluded in 1986, a 2.3 increase from the number concluded in 1985.

Fig. 28 Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts: Caseload Distribution



The Nineteenth District reported the largest number of J&DR cases in 1986, 21,083 cases. The fewest cases were reported in District Two-A with 1,521 J&DR cases. Of the 32 districts, 14 reported caseload decreases in new cases in 1986. The Thirty-First District recorded the largest percentage drop in new J&DR cases (-13.4%) while the Seventh District reported the largest percentage increase of 29.8 percent. The average number of J&DR cases per judge was 3,315, down from 3,359 in 1986. This drop was the result of the addition of two new J&DR judgeships, one in the Fifteenth District and one in the Second District. The average caseload for J&DR judges in urban districts was 3,797 cases (up from 3,756 in 1985) while the rural district average was 2,857 in 1986 (down from 2,982 in 1985). While District Two-A reported the fewest J&DR cases, it had the highest per judge average (6,084 cases) among the 32 districts. By contrast, the Seventeenth District had the fewest J&DR cases per judge (1,456).

New juvenile cases increased by 8.5 percent in 1986, totaling 147,673 cases. There was a corresponding increase in the number of juvenile hearings held, from 243,015 in 1985 to 263,216, an increase of 8.3 percent. Juvenile traffic cases increased by 9.3 percent, delinquency cases rose by 9.8 percent, and custody-visitation cases increased by 8.3 percent. The number of status cases declined from 6,358 in 1985 to 6,069 in 1986, a drop of 4.5 percent. Traffic cases accounted for 34 percent of the juvenile caseload while custody/visitation cases represented 32 percent. Delinquency cases made up 30 percent of the new cases while status offenses constituted only 4 percent of the total.

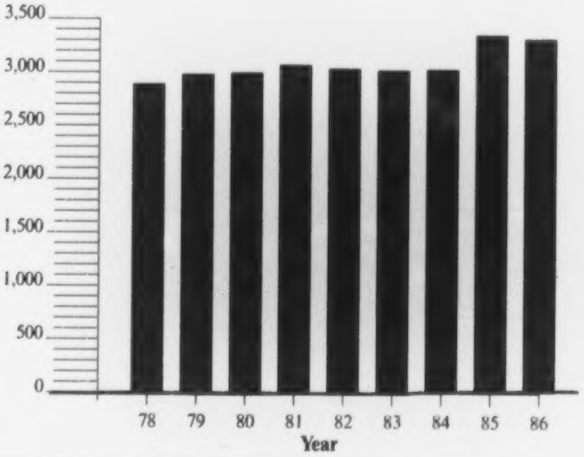
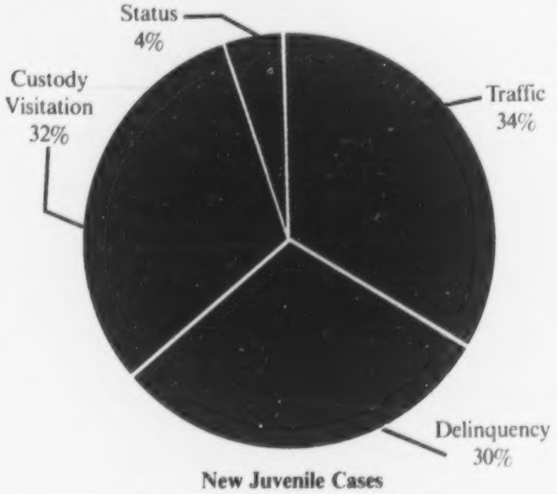
Fig. 30 Juvenile and Domestic Relations Courts: New Cases Per Judge, 1978-1986



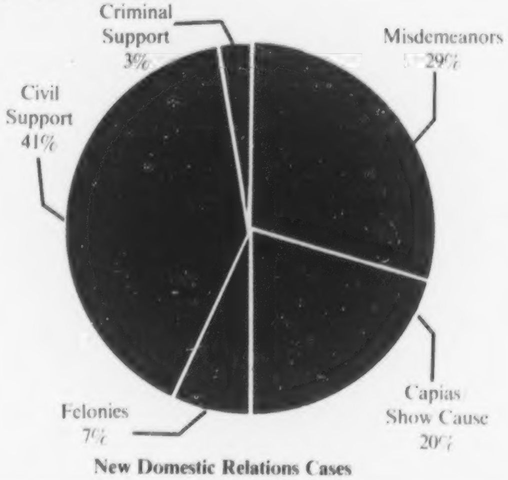
The Nineteenth District reported 16,736 new juvenile cases in 1986, the most of any district. District Two-A reported the fewest with 840. The Thirty-First District recorded the greatest caseload per judge (3,629 cases) while the Eleventh District averaged the fewest (1,096 cases). The statewide average was 2,073 juvenile cases per judge, the average for urban districts was 2,467, and the rural district average was 1,698 juvenile cases per judge. The statewide average in 1986 was an increase from the statewide average in 1985 (1,966 cases per judge).

Fig. 31 Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts: Juvenile Caseload Distribution



The domestic relations caseload decreased 8.3 percent in 1986, from 96,479 new cases in 1985 to 88,515 in 1986. The number of hearings held in domestic relations matters fell 6.3 percent. The number of domestic relations felonies increased by almost 8 percent while the number of misdemeanors rose 1 percent. However, capias/show cause actions dropped 20 percent, criminal support cases by 40 percent, and civil support cases declined by 6.5 percent. Forty-one percent of the domestic relations cases were civil support matters in 1986 while 20 percent were capias/show cause actions. Misdemeanors accounted for 29 percent of the caseload while felonies represented 8 percent of the total number of cases. Only three percent of the cases dealt with criminal support matters.

Fig. 32 Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts: Caseload Distribution



The Second District again reported the greatest number of domestic relations cases (6,601) while the Seventeenth District had the fewest (583). District Two-A had the highest domestic relations per judge caseload (2,724 cases) while the Seventeenth District had only 292 cases per judge. Statewide, judges averaged 1,242 domestic relations cases per judge. Judges in urban districts had an average of 1,330 domestic relations cases per judge while the rural district average was 1,159 cases per judge. Judges statewide also averaged 506 civil support cases, 366 misdemeanors, 253 capias/show cause actions, 84 felonies and 32 criminal support cases per judge in 1986.

MAGISTRATES

In 1986 there were 32 Chief Magistrates and 410 magistrates authorized to serve in the Virginia Magistrate System. Magistrates are appointed by the Chief Circuit Court Judge for a four-year term. Within the first six months of the term of their appointments, magistrates undergo training and a certification process administered locally and through the Supreme Court.

Magistrates are to provide independent, unbiased reviews of complaints brought to their offices by police officers, sheriffs, deputies and citizens. One of the primary duties of magistrates is conducting bond hearings to set bail in instances in which an individual is charged with a criminal offense. Magistrates also issue various types of processes such as arrest warrants, summonses, search warrants, subpoenas, and civil warrants. A magistrate may also accept prepayments for traffic infractions and minor misdemeanors.

Each judicial district has authorization for a number of magistrates and one chief magistrate. Many of the more urbanized areas utilize full-time magistrates who work on a shift basis to maintain an office twenty-four hours a day. On the other hand, most of the rural magistrates work on a fixed schedule during the day and are "on call" in the evenings.

The magistrates reported 1,231,227 duty hours in 1986, providing services to the public during 575,308 of those hours. Magistrates responded to 1,323,584 requests for processes, issuing 1,098,971 of them. Statewide, the number of transactions increased 3 percent while the number of processes issued rose 2.2 percent. In response to requests, magistrates issued 57,144 felony arrest warrants, 311,397 misdemeanor arrest warrants, and 48,583 summonses. This was an increase in the number of arrest warrants and in the number of summonses issued. Bonds issued totaled 217,043, up from 205,144 in 1985. Magistrates issued 3,301 search warrants, 6,776 mental detention orders, 71,911 civil warrants, and 44,322 subpoenas. They also processed 174,527 commitals to and 140,034 releases from jail, and accepted prepayment for 19,264 traffic infractions and 4,669 class 4 misdemeanors. Thus, from 1985, search warrants issued increased by 2.2 percent, mental detention orders by 17.1 percent, commitals 4.8 percent and releases 4.4 percent. However, civil warrants issued declined 25 percent in 1986, while prepayment for class 4 misdemeanors fell 7.4 percent, prepayment for traffic infractions dropped 7 percent, and subpoenas issued decreased slightly (-0.1%).

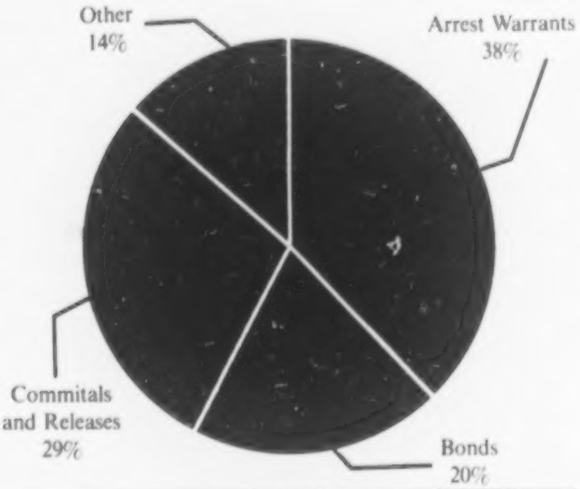
Fig. 38 Magistrates: Process Distribution



The number of processes issued increased in 23 of the 32 districts in 1986. The Nineteenth District issued the largest number of processes of any district 199,188. This was 9 percent of the total number of processes issued in the state. The First District experienced the largest percentage increase in process issued (27.8%) while the Fourth District had the largest percentage drop (-25.4%).

In 1986, magistrates issued 83 processes for every 100 requests. This was a slight decrease from 1985 when they issued 84 percent of the processes requested. They issued 92 percent of all arrest warrants requested and 72 percent of the search warrants requested.

Of the 217,043 bonds issued in 1986, 14 percent were in felony cases while 86 percent were in misdemenor cases. Overall, 35 percent of the bonds issued were secured. However, in felony cases, 64 percent of the bonds issued were secured. Forty-four percent of the total bonds issued were personal recognizance bonds while 21 percent were based on the defendants' promise to appear in court. The issuance of bonds represented 19.7 percent of all processes issued in 1986. This was slightly higher than the percentage in 1985.

Medical Malpractice Review Panels

A system of Medical Malpractice Review Panels was instituted in late 1976. Since this time, over a thousand panels have been requested. During calendar year 1986, 146 panels were assigned, the same number as the previous year. Since the inception of the Medical Review System, an average of 126 panels per year has been processed.

From the first panel assignment on December 6, 1976 through December 31, 1986, 1,258 panels have been requested through the Supreme Court. Of this total, 552 have been concluded, 77 dismissed, 380 withdrawn and 249 remain in a pending or to-be-heard status as of the end of 1986..

The 1977 General Assembly amended the original legislation setting up Medical Malpractice Review Panel System and provided the following opinions which a panel might determine pursuant to Section 8.01-581.7 of the Code of Virginia:

1. Evidence does not support a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care;
2. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is a proximate cause in the alleged damages;
3. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is not a proximate cause in the alleged damages; or
4. Evidence indicates that there is a material issue of fact, not requiring an expert opinion, bearing on liability for consideration by a court or jury (i.e., the case contains a material issue of fact that a court or jury can resolve without an expert opinion).

Of the 661 decisions which had been rendered as of December 31, 1986, 513 (78%) favored the health care provider, 84 (13%) favored the claimant, and the remaining 64 (9%) fell within the last two opinion categories of Section 8.01-581.7.

During 1986, Northern Virginia again led as the section of the state where the greatest number of medical malpractice claims were filed. Northern Virginia was followed by the Tidewater area and then Southwest Virginia. As illustrated, hospital administrators, dentists, general surgeons, and OB-GYN physicians are the groups accounting for the largest number of panel requests.

Supreme Court Designations

During 1986, the Assistant Executive Secretary's office prepared 577 designations for issuance through the Supreme Court of Virginia. This number represented an approximate six percent increase over the number issued in 1985. Of the total designations issued, 525 were for circuit court cases and 52 were for district court requests.

The 525 circuit court designations in 1986 represented slightly more than three percent increase over the number of circuit court assignments in the previous year. There was a slight decrease in requests for assistance (324 versus 330) and a corresponding increase in the number of disqualification requests (150 versus 134). The number of Compensation Board appeal requests jumped 300 percent (8 in 1986 versus 2 in 1985). For the first time, retired circuit court judges were allowed to be designated to sit in Medical Malpractice Review Panels and did so in five instances.

As has been true in preceding years, assistance and disqualification requests accounted for the largest block of Supreme Court designations in 1986. Of the total of 525 circuit court designations, assistance (authorized by §§ 17-7 and 51-178 of the Code of Virginia) accounted for 62 percent and disqualification requests accounted for 29 percent. In both categories, a large number of designation assignments were given to retired, recalled judges.

Two years ago legislation was implemented authorizing district courts to designate retired, recalled judges and substitute judges directly from lists prepared and maintained at the Supreme Court. While this has allowed a dramatic decrease in terms of the Supreme Court's direct issuance of designation orders to courts not of record, 1986 saw a jump from 37 to 52 in the number of general district court assignment orders. The increase was primarily in the assistance category (43 versus 18).

It is significant to note that, even with giving the district court system prime responsibility for handling its own designations in 1984, there has been a dramatic increase in the overall use of designations in the circuit court system. In 1984, 372 circuit court assigments were made. In 1985, this number jumped to 508 and in 1986 reached a total of 525.

First Judicial Circuit and District

The City of Chesapeake is served by the First Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census recorded 114,486 residents for this area of which 36,559 were juveniles. In 1980, it is projected that the population will increase by 24.9 percent to 143,000 and include 40,187 juveniles, an increase of 9.9 percent.

William L. Forbes and Russell I. Townsend, Jr. served the circuit courts in 1986. Assistance was also received from the Fifth Circuit. Judges of the general district court were Stephen L. Comfort and Robert R. Carter. Judge E.P. Grissom and Judge James A. Leftwich presided over the juvenile and domestic relations court. Judge Leftwich also provided assistance to the Fifth District. The district court judges in the First District used 58.6 days for substitue and recalled, retired judges, in FY 86, an average of 14.7 days per judge. This was below the statewide average usage of 24.1 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the circuit court totaled 3,198, a 4.2 percent increase over 1985. The 2,704 concluded cases showed a 3.9 decline of 170 cases. Civil cases increased 13.6 percent while the number of criminal cases fell to 1,223, a decrease of 107 cases or 8 percent from 1985. The caseload distribution for the circuit was 26 percent law, 36 percent equity, 24 percent felony, and 14 percent misdemeanor. There was no significant deviation from the statewide distribution. Ranking eleventh in the state, the 1,333 average caseload per judge was equal to the urban average and 57 above the statewide average. The First Circuit ranked third in the state with an average of 823 civil cases per judge, compared to 692 statewide and 741 in urban circuits. The average number of criminal cases per judge (510) was below the statewide average of 584 per judge and the 592 cases per judge for urban areas. The 2,704 cases concluded was a 3.9 percent) decline from 1985. Of the 1,420 civil cases concluded, 4 percent ended by judge trial and 2.3 percent by jury trial. Twenty percent of the total number of criminal cases (1,284) were terminated by judge trial and 9.7 percent by jury trial. The latter percentage was 4.1 percentage points higher than the statewide percentage. Fifty-six percent of the civil cases ended within twelve months while 80.7 percent of the criminal cases were concluded within five months. The First Circuit experienced a 9.3 percent decrease in juries impaneled resulting in 78 in 1986. At the end of 1986, there were 3,862 cases pending, a 14.7 percent rise over 1985.

The general district court experienced a 7.7 percent increase in new cases with a total of 47,321, 3,384 cases over 1985. Criminal (8,136) and civil (17,162) cases increased by 7.3 percent and 23.7 percent, respectively, while traffic cases (22,023) declined by 2 percent. The distribution of caseload was 17 percent criminal, 47 percent traffic and 36 percent civil. The civil case percentage was 8.2 percentage points higher than the statewide percentage of 28.8. Misdemeanors occupied 21 percent of the traffic caseload as compared to 16.7 percent statewide. Hearings decreased by 4.4 percent with a total of 58,084 for 1986. The district ranked eleventh in the state in terms of the average criminal caseload per judge. This figure was 4,068 cases per judge which is 226 above the statewide average and 64 below the average for urban areas. With an average caseload of 11,012 traffic cases per judge, Chesapeake ranked seventeenth statewide and ranked below the averages for the state and urban localities. The 8,581 civil cases per judge placed the district eighth in the state compared with the state average of 7,115 and the urban district average of 8,973 civil cases per judge.

The 7,043 new cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court was an increase of 13.3 percent from 1985. The number of juvenile cases (4,034) rose 17.1 percent and accounted for 57 percent of the caseload. Domestic relations cases (3,059) occupied 43 percent of the caseload. Of the domestic relations cases, 6 percent pertained to matters of criminal support, a figure twice as high as the statewide percentage. The number of hearings was 16,000, an increase of 15.3 percent for 1986, and resulted in an average caseload per judge of 9,412, which ranked Chesapeake first in the state. The district ranked sixth in the state for the new case average per judge, ninth in terms of the average juvenile caseload per judge, and fourth for the average domestic relations caseload per judge. The average caseload per judge of new cases (4,172) was 857 above the statewide average and 375 above the urban. In juvenile cases, the average caseload per judge (2,373) again placed the first above the statewide average, but below the urban average by 94 cases. Accordingly, the 1,799 average caseload for domestic relations cases was above statewide and urban averages.

The nine magistrates serving the First District recorded 15,118 activity hours. The 41,436 transactions resulted in 34,898 processes issued. Of the 7,473 arrest warrants issued, 1,452 were for felonies and 6,021 were for misdemeanors. Comprising 55.4 percent of the bonds issued, secured bonds totaled 2,973. There were 2,419 unsecured bonds issued. Other magistrate activities included the issuance of 912 subpoenas, 77 search warrants, 39 mental detention orders, 4,958 commitals, 4,099 releases, and the acceptance of prepayment for 67 traffic infractions and 76 class 4 misdemeanors.

Second Judicial Circuit and District

The Second Judicial Circuit serves the City of Virginia Beach and the Counties of Accomack and Northampton. Acoording to the 1980 Census, there were 262,199 residents in Virginia Beach. By 1990, the population is projected to increase by 38.5 percent to 362,600. This will include a juvenile population of 94,828, a 17.8 percent increase over the 1980 Census. The district court judges used 191.6 days for substitue and recalled, retired judges in FY 86 an average of 24 days per judge. This was almost identical to the statewide average.

The circuit court was served by N. Wescott Jacob, Alan E. Rosenblatt, Austin E. Owen, Philip L. Russo, H. Calvin Spain, Kenneth N. Whitehurst, Edward W. Hanson, Jr., and John K. Moore. General District Court Judge Donald H. Rhodes replaced Judge Rosenblatt who was elected to the circuit court effective March 27, 1986. In addition, the general district court was served by John B. Preston, R. Stanley Hudgins and Robert L. Simpson, Jr. Judges Fred P. Aucamp, Jerome B. Friedman, J. Davis Reid and Ronald H. Marks presided over the juvenile and domestic relations court. Judge Marks took the bench on July 2, 1986, the result of the creation of a fourth J&R judgeship.

Commenced cases in the circuit court increased 6.4 percent and totaled 10,965. The 9,443 cases concluded reflected a 1.9 percent rise over 1985. Civil cases totaling 6,451 occupied 58.8 percent of the commenced caseload, a 13.8 percent increase for 1986. Criminal cases rose 5.9 percent to a total of 4,514. The caseload distribution was 24 percent law, 30 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. This was very similar to the statewide percentages. The 10,075 commenced cases in Virginia Beach accounted for 91.9 percent of the total cases in the circuit. Virginia Beach and Northampton experienced increases in commenced cases of 9 percent and 35.2 percent, respectively, while commenced cases in Accomack declined by 27.8 percent. With an average caseload of 1,371 commenced cases per judge the circuit was above the statewide average of 1,276 and the urban average of 1,333 and ranked eigth statewide. The average civil caseload per judge (806) placed the Second Circuit sixth statewide with averages above those of the state and urban areas. The average number of criminal cases per judge (564) was slightly below the state and urban averages of 684 and 592, respectively, and placed the circuit sixteenth statewide. Of the 5,491 civil cases concluded, 13.2 percent ended by judge trial and 1.3 percent by jury trial. Approximately fifteen percent of the criminal cases were concluded by judge trial and 4.5 percent by jury trial. In civil matters, 63.9 percent were disposed of within twelve months while 79.8 percent of criminal cases ended within five months. The number of juries impaneled was 130, a 25.9 percent increase for 1986. Pending cases (12,276) also rose 15.3 percent.

The general district court experienced a 16.6 percent rise in new cases with a total of 133,557 cases. Traffic cases totaling 67,996 increased a significant 20.9 percent. Criminal and civil cases were higher than in 1985, increasing 9.7 percent and 14.9 percent. The caseload distribution of 21 percent criminal, 51 percent traffic and 28 percent civil was similar to the statewide distribution. Hearings totaled 127,419, an 11.5 percent increase over 1985. The Second District ranked fourth in the state in terms of the average caseload per judge (33,389). With the highest average criminal caseload per judge (7,088) in the state, the Second District placed well above the statewide average of 3,842 and the urban average of 4,132 cases per judge. Ranking fifth in the state, the number of traffic cases per judge totaled 16,999, again, well above the averages per judge statewide and in urban areas. Ranking sixth statewide, the district's average of 9,303 civil cases per judge ranked above statewide and urban averages.

The juvenile and domestic relations court experienced a significant increase of 20 percent in new cases which totaled 18,622. While juvenile cases rose 18.3 percent, domestic relations cases increased a significant 23.2 percent. The total number of hearings increased by 3,719, bringing the total to 30,845 for 1986. The distribution of caseload was 65 percent juvenile and 35 percent domestic relations cases. Compared to statewide and urban averages, the district's total caseload per judge (4,656), juvenile caseload per judge (3,005), and domestic relations caseload per judge (1,650) were all higher. In fact, the Second District ranked third in the state in terms of total J&DR caseload per judge. The 3,005 juvenile and 1,650 domestic relations cases per judge placed the district fourth and seventh in the state respectively. There were 1.66 hearings held per case.

The sixteen magistrates in the Second District recorded 27,211 activity hours. The 61,205 transactions resulted in 52,017 processes issued. Arrest warrants issued numbered 14,193 for misdemeanors and 3,076 for felonies. Of the 9,033 bonds issued, 28.8 percent were secured, totaling 2,598 while 6,435, or 71.2 percent were unsecured. Other activities recorded by the magistrates included the issuance of 7,976 subpoenas, 174 search warrants, 298 mental detention orders, 6,483 commitals, 4,570 releases and acceptance of prepayments for 924 traffic infractions and 911 class 4 misdemeanors.

Judicial District Two-A

The counties of Accomack and Northampton form District Two-A. Judge Wescott B. Northam serves both the general district court and the juvenile and domestic relations court in the district. In FY 86, Judge Northam used 34.8 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges. This was above the state average of 24.1 days per judge.

General district court new cases, which totaled 22,419 rose a slight 2.1 percent from 1985. The relatively small increase in the overall caseload was due to a 15.9 percent increase in criminal cases and a 7.2 percent growth in traffic cases combined with an 8.3 percent decrease in civil cases which totaled 7,734. The caseload distribution was 10 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic, and 34 percent civil. The percentage of criminal cases was 6.1 percentage points below the statewide average, while civil cases were 5.2 percentage points above the average for the state. The total number of hearings (14,568) increased only 2.3 percent. With an average caseload per judge of 29,892, the district placed above the statewide average of 23,911, well above the average for rural areas (20,346) and ranked sixth in the state overall. The 3,125 criminal cases per judge were below statewide and rural averages and placed the district 22nd in the state. The traffic case average per judge (16,455) was significantly higher than the statewide average of 12,954 and the rural average of 11,805 and ranked the district sixth overall. The district's 10,312 civil average per judge was twice as high as the rural average and 3,197 more than the statewide average, which ranked the area fourth in the state.

The juvenile and domestic relations court recorded 1,521 new cases, a 7.8 percent increase for 1986. Juvenile cases rose 11.3 percent to 840, while domestic relations increased only 3.8 percent with 681 cases. The total number of hearings experienced a slight 0.3 percent increase. Juvenile cases occupied 55 percent of the cases while domestic relations matters accounted for 45 percent. Adult cases were 7.5 percentage points higher than the statewide measure. There was a smaller percentage of juvenile traffic cases and domestic relation misdemeanors in District Two-A than the state distribution. The district ranked first in the state for the average caseload per judge with 6,084 compared to 3,315 average cases per judges statewide and 2,857 cases per judge in rural areas. Also, the average juvenile caseload per judge (3,360) was 1,287 above the statewide average and 1,662 above the rural average, which placed the district second in the state. District Two-A again ranked first in the average domestic relations caseload per judge with a total of 2,724 cases, twice as high as state and rural averages. The number of hearings per case was 1.37.

District Two-A's five magistrates logged 4,031 activity hours which resulted in 5,320 transactions and 4,539 processes issued. There were 2,179 arrest warrants issued, 426 for felonies and 1,753 for misdemeanors. Of the 941 bonds issued, 41 percent, or 386, were secured. In addition, the magistrates issued 33 subponeas, 24 search warrants, 66 mental detention orders, 612 commitals, 404 releases and accepted prepayments for 148 traffic infractions and 28 class 4 misdemeanors.

Third Judicial Circuit and District

The Third Judicial Circuit serves the City of Portsmouth. The population in 1980 was 104,577, of which 30,024 were juveniles. Portsmouth is expected to experience a 9.8 percent increase by 1990 to 114,800 residents, while the juvenile population is expected to decrease to 26,382, a 12.1 percent decline.

The judges of the ciruit court were Dennis F. McMurran, Willian H. Oast, Jr. and Lester E. Schlitz. Judge L. Cleaves Manning replaced Judge Schiltz who retired February 1, 1987. Serving the general district court in 1986 were Archie Elliott, Jr., Stanley L. Morris, Jr. and James A. Cales, Jr. Judges presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations court were Cecil W. Johnson and Von L. Piersall. The district court judges used 2 days for substitute and recalled retired judges in FY 86, an average of 0.4 days per judge. This was the lowest average for such usage in the state.

New cases in the circuit court rose 14.9 percent totaling 4,815 cases. Concluded cases increased by 377, an 11.1 percent rise over 1985. Civil cases (1,903) and criminal cases (2,912) increased 13.8 percent and 15.7 percent, respectively. The caseload distribution was comprised of 20 percent law, 20 percent equity, 22 percent felonyand 39 percent misdemeanor. The Third Circuit ranked first in the state with an average caseload per judge of 1,605 as compared to 1,276 cases per judge statewide and 1,333 cases in urban circuits. With 634 civil cases per judge, Portsmouth placed eighteenth in the state, 58 cases per judge below the state and 107 below the average for rural areas. However, the average criminal caseload per judge (971) placed the circuit first in the state, well above the state average of 584 and the urban average of 592. Of the 1,631 civil cases concluded, 1.8 percent ended by judge trial compared to 15.3 statewide percentage. Almost 4 percent of civil cases ended by jury trials in comparison to 1.9 percent statewide. Almost a third (32.2%) of criminal cases, were concluded by judge trial while 14.3 percent of the minal cases ended by jury trial, 9.7 percentage points above the statewide percentage. Of the civil cases concluded, 54.5 percent ended within twelve months of filing while 90.7 percent of the criminal cases were concluded within 5 months. The number of juries impaneled (233) increased by 25.9 percent. Pending cases, totaling 7,953, rose 15.3 percent.

New cases in the general district court (59,110) declined one percent in 1986. The 3.3 percent increase in criminal cases (11,387) and the 1.2 percent increase in civil cases (25,992) was offset by the 5.3 percent decline in traffic cases (21,731). The caseload distribution was 19 percent criminal, 37 percent traffic, 44 percent civil compared to the statewide percentage of 16.1 percent criminal, 54.2 traffic and 28.8 percent civil. Hearings, totaling 69,876, rose 2.2 percent. Portsmouth ranked 23rd in the state with an average caseload of 19,703 cases per judge, well below statewide and urban averages. The average number of criminal cases per judge (3,796) placed the district fifteenth in the state, 46 cases below state average and 336 cases below the average for urban areas. Ranking 29th in the state, the district recorded an average traffic caseload per judge of 7,244 as compared to 13,975 cases for judges in urban areas and 12,954 cases per judge statewide. The 8,664 average civil caseload per judge was close to the urban and statewide averages and ranked the district seventh in the state.

A 2.7 percent overall increase in new cases for the juvenile and domestic court resulted in a total of 6,292 cases filed. The number of juvenile cases (6,292) rose 2.7 percent while domestic relations cases increased by only 1 case. The 13,742 total number of hearings represented a rise of 4.2 percent. The caseload distribution was evenly split juvenile cases and domestic relations cases, as compared to statewide percentages of 62.5 percent juvenile and 37.5 percent domestic relations. Custody and visitiation cases accounted for 44 percent of the juvenile caseload, a 12 percentage points higher than was the case statewide. The district ranked in the lower half (19th) statewide in terms of the average caseload per judge (3,146), below both the statewide and urban averages. The average number of juvenile cases per judge (1,571) was below the statewide average of 2,073 and the urban average of 2,467, and ranked the district twenty-fourth in the state. With an average of 1,575 domestic relations cases per judge, Portsmouth's ranked eighth among the 32 districts and was above the urban and statewide averages of 1,330 and 1,242, repectively.

Fourth Judicial Circuit and District

The City of Norfolk is served by the Fourth Judicial Circuit. According to the 1980 Census, the population was 266,876 residents including a juvenile population of 65,613. By 1990 the total number of residents is expected to rise by 2.9 percent to 274,700. However, the juvenile population is projected to decrease to 58,783, a 10.4 decline for 1990.

The Fourth Judicial Circuit is authorized nine judgeships. Presiding in the circuit court were William Moultrie Guerry, John E. Clarkson, Thomas R. McNamara, Jerome James, Robert W. Stewart, Alfred W. Whitehurst, John W. Winston, and Leonard B. Sachs. Judge Charles R. Waters II replaced Judge Morris B. Gutterman effective March 28, 1986. The general district court was served by Lawrence C. Lawless, Fred E. Martin, Jr., Joseph H. Campbell, Reid M. Spencer, Lydia C. Taylor and Charles R. Cloud who replaced Judge Joseph A. Jordan, Jr. upon his retirement effective February 14, 1986. Judges James H. Flippen, Jr., John C. Morrison, Jr., and Lester V. Moore, Jr. Presided in the juvenile and domestic relations court . The judges in the Fourth District used 292 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges in FY 86, an average of 33.2 days per judge. This was above the statewide average of 24.1 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the Fourth Judicial Circuit declined by 1.9 percent to 12,222 cases in 1986. The number of concluded cases (11,060) reflected a 12.6 percent reduction for 1986. Civil cases increased 7.4 percent while criminal cases decreased by 7.6 percent. The caseload distribution was 24 percent law, 18 percent equity, 36 percent felony, and 23 percent misdemeanor. Therefore, the circuit's caseload was more heavily weighted with criminal matters than the caseloads of circuits statewide. Norfolk ranked ninth in the state in terms of average caseload per judge (1,353 cases), a figure close to the statewide and urban averages. The circuit placed fifth in the state with an average criminal caseload per judge of 793, compared to 584 average cases per judge statewide and an average of 592 for urban areas. Of the 4,155 concluded civil cases, 15.8 percent were completed by judge trial and 2.2 percent reached disposition by jury trial. Approximately 10 percent of criminal cases were concluded by judge trial (compared to a statewide percentage of 23.7 percent), while 2.1 percent ended by jury trial. Of the 4,155 civil cases concluded, 2,687 or 64.6 percent ended within twelve months. A total of 5,351 criminal cases, or 87.4 percent, were concluded within five months. Pending cases, totaling 9,544 at year's end, increased 13.9 percent.

The general district court recorded 218,638 new cases, a 10.7 percent increase over 1985. An 11.6 percent rise in criminal cases resulted in 41,085 cases. Traffic cases rose 12.6 percent and reached 92,804 while civil cases (84,742) increased 8.2 percent. The caseload distribution was 19 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic, and 39 percent civil as compared to statewide caseload percentages of 16 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic, 30 percent civil. The total number of hearings (226,407) increased 11.3 percent. The district court ranked first in the state with an average of 36,439 total cases per judge, 12,528 cases above the statewide average caseload per judge and 9,359 cases above the urban average. The average criminal caseload per judge of 6,848 placed Norfolk second in the state. In average civil cases per judge, Norfolk ranked second with a 14,124 caseload average, 7,009 cases above the average for the state and 5,151 cases above the urban average.

The 2.8 percent decline in juvenile and domestic relations court cases was the result of a 12.2 percent decrease in domestic relations cases and a 3.6 percent increase in juvenile cases. Of the 11,862 new cases, 63 percent or 7,521 cases pertained to juvenile matters while 37 percent or 4,341 were domestic relations cases. Seventeen percent of juvenile cases involved traffic matters compared to 34 percent statewide. Custody and visitation cases comprised 41 percent of the domestic relations caseload, 9 percentage points higher than statewide. Forty-two percent of the domestic relations cases were misdemeanors as compared to only 29 percent statewide. With a total average caseload per judge of 3,954 cases, Norfolk ranked eighth in the state, above both urban and statewide average cases per judge. The district averaged 2,507 juvenile cases per judge while the state's average was 2,073. Ranking twelfth statewide, the Fourth District's average domestic relations caseload of 1,447 cases per judge was 205 above the statewide average per judge and 117 higher than the urban average.

The Fourth District's thirteen magistrates recorded 22,800 activity hours. The 91,880 transactions resulted in 73,947 processes issued. Of the 23,236 arrest warrants issued, 19,189, (approximately 83 percent), were for misdemeanors and 4,087 were felony arrest warrants. Sixty-six percent or 7,829 of the bonds were secured and 4,029 were unsecured. In addition, magistrates issued 7 subpoenas, 214 search warrants, 665 mental detention orders, 9,842 commitals, 3,463 releases and accepted prepayments for 233 traffic infractions and 37 class 4 misdemeanors.

Fifth Judicial Circuit and District

The cities of Suffolk and Franklin and the counties of Isle of Wight and Southampton make up the Fifth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census reported 95,263 residents in the four localities, which include a juvenile population of 27,750. By 1990, the population is expected to increase to 106,400 or 11.7 percent, with Suffolk, Franklin and Isle of Wight showing increases while Southampton will experience a 1.8 percent decline in population. The juvenile population will decrease 10.2 percent, down to 24,908 young people.

Serving the circuit court in 1986 were E. Everett Bagnell, James C. Godwin, Benjamin A. Williams, Jr. and Westbrook J. Parker who filled the vacancy created by Judge Williams' retirement on June 30, 1986. Judges Robert B. Edwards and William Wellington Jones presided over the general district courts. Judge William R. Moore, Jr. served in the juvenile and domestic relations court and was assisted by judges from the First District. A new judgeship was created for the juvenile court by the 1987 General Assembly. Judge R. D. Hunter III will fill that position effective July 1, 1987. In FY 1986, the district court judges used 90.8 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges, an average of 30.3 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the circuit experienced a 2.4 percent decline for 1986. New cases declined in all localities except Southampton where there was a 12.4 percent increase. Of the 2,853 new cases, 1,222 cases pertained to civil matters (a 0.2 percent increase) while 1,631 cases were criminal (a 4.2 percent decline). The total number of concluded cases was 2,883. The caseload distribution was 18 percent law, 25 percent equity, 36 percent felony and 22 percent misdemeanor. The average total caseload per judge of 1,097 was 179 cases below the statewide average and 102 below the average for judges in rural areas and ranked the circuit 25th in the state. Ranking tenth statewide, the circuit averaged 627 criminal cases per judge as compared to 584 cases per judge statewide and 574 cases per judge in rural areas. Of the 1,196 civil cases concluded, 35.8 percent ended by judge trial (compared to a statewide percentage of 15.3 percent) and 1.7 percent were completed by jury trial. Almost seventy percent of the civil cases were concluded within twelve months. For the criminal cases, 28.3 percent ended by judge trial and 2.7 percent by jury trial. More than 60 percent of the criminal cases ended within five months. Pending cases totaling 2,968 showed a 1 percent decline.

New cases in the general district courts rose 1.1 percent. Of the 46,895 new cases, 6,818 were criminal, 29,355 were traffic, and 10,722 were civil. Criminal and traffic cases rose 10.3 percent and 1.9 percent, respectively, while civil cases declined 5.6 percent. The caseload distribution was 15 percent criminal, 63 percent traffic, and 23 percent civil. Thus, the traffic caseload was 9 percentage points higher than the state distribution while the civil caseload was 7 percentage points lower. The total caseload per judge average was 23,448 compared to the statewide average of 23,911 cases per judge and 20,346 in rural areas, placing the district thirteenth overall. Ranking in the lower half statewide (19th), the district averaged 3,409 criminal cases per judge, 433 cases below the statewide average and 108 below that for rural areas. The average traffic cases per judge (14,678) ranked the Fifth District tenth overall and was above the 12,954 average cases per judge statewide and 11,805 average rural cases per judge. With an average statewide civil caseload of 7,115 cases per judge and rural average of 5,025, the district ranked seventeenth, showing a caseload per judge of 5,361.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts experienced a 0.4 percent decline in new cases. This was due to the 9.5 percent reduction in domestic relations cases in contrast to the 10.9 percent increase in juvenile cases. Domestic relations cases decreased in all four localities while juvenile cases increased. Of the 4,306 new cases, 2,123 (49%) were juvenile cases and 2,178 (51%) pertained to domestic relations matters. This is the reverse of statewide percentages where juvenile cases accounted for 63 percent of the caseload. The total number of hearings increased 7.6 percent to 10,469. The caseload average of 3,312 total cases per judge was 3 cases below the statewide average caseload per judge and 455 above that for rural areas and ranked the Fifth District sixteenth statewide. Ranking twenty-second in the state, the district averaged 1,637 juvenile cases per judge in comparison to 2,073 cases per judge statewide and 1,698 cases in rural districts. The average of 1,675 domestic relations cases per judge ranked the district fifth overall, 433 above the state average and 516 above the rural average per judge.

The ten magistrates in the Fifth District logged 14,640 activity hours. Of the 31,915 transactions, 24,782 resulted in processes issued. Eighty-nine percent (6,868) of the arrest warrants issued were for misdemeanors and 11 percent (877) were for felonies. Of the 5,057 bonds issued, almost 70 percent (3,383) were secured and 1,674 were unsecured. Additional transactions processed by the magistrates were 59 subpoenas, 77 search warrants, 216 mental detention orders, 3,615 commitals, and 3,358 releases. Prepayments for 284 traffic infractions and 25 Class 4 misdemeanors were received.

Sixth Judicial Circuit and District

The counties of Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Surry and Sussex as well as the Cities of Emporia and Hopewell are served by the Sixth Circuit.The 1980 Census showed a population of 97,425 for the circuit with a juvenile population of 29,085. By 1990, the total population is expected to increase by 5.6 percent to 102,900. While the juvenile population will decline by 12.4 percent to 25,484.

Serving the circuit court in 1986 were Judge William Park Lemmond, Jr. and Robert G. O'Hara, Jr. Judges presiding over the general district court were John C. Baker and James A. Luke. Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court judges were Samuel E. Campbell and C. A. Perkinson. The district court judges used 53.4 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges in FY 86, an average of 13.4 days per judge.

The 1,920 commenced cases in the circuit represented a 5.7 decline in 1986. Civil cases (1,095) and criminal cases (825) declined by 6.3 percent and 4.8 percent respectively. The caseload percentage of 22 percent law, 35 percent equity, 34 percent felony and 9 percent misdemeanor was similar to the civil and criminal caseload percentages in the state. The average caseload per judge (960) was below the statewide average caseload per judge (1,276) and the rural average (1,199). Average civil cases per judge numbered 548 cases, 144 cases below the statewide average per judge and 77 less than the average for rural areas. For criminal cases, the average per judge (413) fell below the statewide average per judge of 584 and 574 in rural areas. The Sixth Circuit ranked thirtieth in the state in total commenced cases per judge, twenty-sixth in civil cases and twenty-eighth statewide for criminal cases. Of the 1,092 civil cases concluded, 160 or 14.7 percent are disposed by judge trials and 2.3 percent (25) were completed by jury trials. Almost 68 percent of the civil cases were concluded within twelve months. Forty (5.2%) of the 766 criminal cases were heard by juries. Over three-fourths of the criminal cases came to completion within five months of initiation. By the end of 1986, the number of pending cases was 1,838, reflecting a 3.5 percent increase over 1985.

New cases in the general district courts rose 5.1 percent in 1986. Criminal (5,279) and traffic cases (57,729) increased 12.5 percent and 5.3 percent, respectively, while civil cases (8216) showed only a slight reduction of (0.5). The total caseload distribution for the district was 7 percent criminal, 81 percent traffic and 12 percent civil which resulted in a much heavier traffic caseload than the 54 percent recorded statewide. Infractions comprised 97 percent of the traffic cases. The 49,149 total hearings rose 5 percent overall. The average total caseload per judge (35,612) was second highest in the state and was well above the statewide average caseload per judge of 23,911 and the rural average of 20,346. The Sixth district ranked twenty-seventh in the state in terms of the average criminal caseload per judge of 2,640 cases, 1,202 cases below the state average and 877 fewer than the rural average per judge. With average traffic caseload per judge of 28,865 cases, the district placed first in the state. The average traffic caseload for the state was 12,954 while that for rural areas was 11,805 cases. Civil cases per judge in the Sixth averaged 4,108 cases ranking the Sixth District 25th overall, below state and rural averages per judge of 7,115 and 5,025, repectively.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased slightly by 0.4 percent. Of the 4,226 cases, 2,611 (62%) were juvenile and 1,888 (38%) were domestic relations cases. The 12.4 percent rise in juvenile caseload for 1986 was offset by the 14.5 percent decline in domestic relations matters. District-wide hearings (totaling 9,199) rose 3.9 percent in 1986. The average total caseload per judge (2,113) was below both the statewide average per judge (13,315) and the rural average (2,857). For juvenile cases, the 1,306 average caseload per judge was 767 cases below the statewide average and 398 behind that for rural areas. The average domestic relations caseload per judge (808) fell below the statewide average of 1,242 and the rural average per judge of 1,159 cases.

The seventeen magistrates in the Sixth District recorded 18,471 activity hours. The 22,619 transactions resulted in 18,253 processes issued. Of the 6,759 arrest warrants, 87.6 percent (5,853) were issued for misdemeanors and 12.4 percent (906) for felonies. Approximately 36 percent (1,505) of the 4,133 bonds issued were secured. Also processed by the magistrates were 1,276 subpoenas, 43 search warrants, 66 mental detention orders, 2,318 commitals and 2,444 releases. Prepayments were received for 926 traffic infractions and 14 class 4 misdemeanors.

Seventh Judicial Circuit and District

The Seventh Judicial Circuit serves the city of Newport News. According to the 1980 Census, the number of residents was 144,903 with a juvenile population of 41,233. By 1990, the population will be 165,100, a 13.9 percent rise. However, the juvenile population will experience a 6.7 percent reduction to 38,442.

The judges presiding in the circuit court in 1986 were Fred W. Bateman, Douglas M. Smith, and J. Warren Stephens. Serving the general district court were Robert W. Curran, James H. Harvell, and Randolph T. West. The juvenile and domestic relations court judges were F. Thompson Wheeler and Robert M. Yacobi. Judge Robert P. Frank filled the vacancy created by the death of Judge Wheeler on August 1, 1986. The district court judges used 106.2 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges in FY 86, an average of 22.1 days per judge. This was below the statewide average of 24.1 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the Seventh Circuit rose by 8.2 percent or 349 cases. A 7.5 percent increase in concluded cases (314 cases) was also recorded. The civil cases for 1986 grew to 2,530, a 4.5 percent increase over 1985. Criminal cases (2,085) rose a significant 13 percent. The distribution of caseload was 24 percent law, 31 percent equity, 30 percent felony, and 15 percent misdemeanor, which is similar to the statewide caseload distribution. The number of commenced cases per judge (1,538) ranked the Seventh second in the state, above the urban and statewide averages. Civil and criminal cases per judge totaling 843 and 695, respectively, were also above statewide and urban averages. These averages placed the circuit second in the state in terms of civil cases per judge and sixth in criminal cases per judge. The Seventh Circuit ranked first in the state in the average number of concluded cases per judge (1,495), well above the state average of 1,115 and the urban average of 1,255. Almost 8 percent of civil cases were concluded by judge trial in comparison to 1.2 percent ended by jury trial. Of the 2,037 criminal cases concluded, 34 percent were terminated by judge trial and 0.8 percent by jury trial. A total of 1,616 civil cases, or 66.0 percent, were concluded within twelve months. Of the criminal cases concluded, 1,638 or 80.4 percent were ended within 150 days. The circuit experienced a significant reduction in juries impaneled from 95 in 1985 to 40 in 1986, or 52.9 percent. Pending cases rose 4 percent from 3,294 in 1985 to 3,425 in 1986.

New cases in the general district court ranked tenth highest in the state and increased by 25.4 percent in 1986. Criminal cases rose to 12,026, a 17.8 percent increase, while civil cases (37,542) increased 11.6 percent. Traffic cases also increased by a significant 22.6 percent. The distribution of caseload was 15 percent criminal, 36 percent traffic and 48 percent civil, as compared to statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. Traffic infractions accounted for 68 percent of the traffic cases, as compared to 82 percent infractions statewide. The total number of hearings (84,329) increased 4 percent. The 4,009 criminal cases per judge ranked the Newport News twelfth in the state and placed the district above the statewide average but below the urban average. The 9,412 traffic cases per judge ranked the Seventh District well below the statewide average of 12,954 and urban average of 13,395. The number of civil cases per judge (12,514) placed the district third highest in the state.

A 29.8 percent increase in new cases for the juvenile and domestic relations court was the result of a rise of 36 percent in juvenile cases (totaling 3,460) and a 23.4 percent increase in domestic relations cases (totaling 3,029). The number of hearings increased by 33.1 percent from 12,336 in 1985 to 16,425 in 1986. Juvenile cases comprised 53 percent of the caseload while domestic relations cases accounted for 47 percent. Statewide, juvenile cases made up 63 percent of the J&DR caseload while domestic relations cases accounted for the remaining 37 percent. The state average (3,315) and urban average (3,797) for cases per judge were both higher than the average in the Seventh of 3,245 cases per judge. The 1,730 juvenile cases per judge were also lower than the statewide and urban averages per judge and ranked the Seventh 18th among the 32 districts. In contrast, the 1,515 domestic relations cases per judge ranked the district ninth highest statewide, 273 cases above the state average and 185 cases above the urban average.

Magistrate activity declined 3 percent in 1986. The six magistrates of the Seventh District logged 10,781 activity hours resulting in 40,603 transactions and 32,738 processes issued. Of the 14,251 arrest warrants issued, 81.6% were misdemeanor warrants and 18.4 percent were felony arrest warrants. Secured bonds totaled 1,697 while 70.8 percent or 412 of the total bonds issued (5,817) were unsecured bonds. The magistrates also issued 214 search warrants, 305 mental detention orders, 6,526 commitals, 5,328 releases and processed prepayments for 6 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Eighth Judicial Circuit and District

The City of Hampton is served by the Eighth Judicial Circuit. According to the Department of Planning and Budget, the 1980 population of 122,617 will increase to 128,700 by 1990. The 1980 juvenile population of 35,639 is expected to decline to 31,895 by 1990, a 10.5 percent reduction.

Judges serving the circuit court in 1986 were Nelson T. Overton, John D. Gray, and Walter J. Ford. General district court judges were Henry D. Kashouty, Thomas H. Wilson, II, and Wilford Taylor, Jr. The juvenile and domestic relations court was served by Judge Nelson T. Durden and Judge Louis R. Lerner who replaced retiring Judge Paul Crider, Jr. on January 1, 1986. The district court judges used 88.2 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges, an average of 17.6 days per judge. This was below the statewide average of 24.1 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the Eighth Circuit (totaling 3,580) increased 8.8 percent as did the number of concluded cases (3,332) at 16.1 percent. The 1,885 civil cases represented a 0.9 percent reduction over 1985 while the 1,695 criminal cases reflected a 22.1 percent increase. The caseload distribution was 21 percent law, 32 percent equity, 22 percent felony and 26 percent misdemeanor. Compared to statewide percentages, the most significant difference was Hampton's higher proportion of misdemeanor cases, (10 percentage points higher). The circuit's 1,193 commenced cases per judge ranked the locality twentieth in the state, below the statewide and urban averages per judge. The average number of civil cases per judge (628) was 64 below the statewide average and 113 below the urban average. The Eighth ranked fifteenth in the state for the average number of criminal cases per judge with 565 in comparison to 584 for the statewide average and 592 for judges in urban circuits. Of the 1,788 civil cases concluded, 14.1 percent ended by judge trial and 1.2 percent by jury trial. Nineteen percent of the 1,544 criminal cases were concluded by judge trial and 3.7 percent by juries. In comparison to the statewide percentage of 80.9 percent, the circuit concluded 95.8 percent of its criminal cases within five months. More than half (52%) of the 1,788 civil cases were terminated within 12 months. The circuit reported a 52.5 percent increase in juries impaneled with a total of 61 in 1986. The 3,210 pending cases represent a 8.4 percent increase for 1986.

The caseload in the general district court decreased 0.5 percent (273) resulting in 60,379 new cases for 1986. The decrease was the result of a 13.2 percent reduction in the number of criminal cases (11,688) and a 1.6 percent reduction in traffic cases (25,084). Civil cases (23,607) increased over 1985 by 8.7 percent. The caseload distribution was 19 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic and 39 percent civil in comparison to statewide percentages of 16 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic and 30 percent civil. The 25.4 percent decline in traffic misdemeanors and 25 percent reduction in traffic felonies contributed to Hampton's lower traffic percentage. The district ranked fourteenth in the state with a caseload average per judge of 3,896, slightly above the state average but 236 below that of urban areas. Ranking 27th in the state for the average caseload per judge for traffic cases, the district averaged 8,361 cases per judge as compared to 12,954 statewide and 13,975 for urban circuits. The 7,869 average for civil cases per judge placed the district ninth in the state, 754 above the state average and 1,104 below the average for urban areas.

The number of juvenile and domestic relations cases decreased by 6.8 percent in 1986 due to the 27.1 percent decline in the number of domestic relations cases. Juvenile cases increased by 6.1 percent, or 243 over 1985. A 5.1 percent decline in hearings resulted in a total of 15,086. Of the 6,108 new juvenile and domestic relations cases, 69 percent were juvenile cases and 31 percent were domestic relations cases, which compares similarly to statewide caseload distribution percentages. Cases involving custody and visitation matters occupied 47 percent of the juvenile cases as compared to 32 percent statewide. The eighth district ranked twenty-second in the state with an average of 3,054 cases per judge, 261 below statewide averages and 743 under the averages for urban areas. The 1986 juvenile caseload per judge (2,123) placed Hampton twelfth in the state with 2,073 statewide average per judge and 2,469 urban average per judge. The domestic relations caseload per judge (932) was well below the statewide and urban averages.

The six magistrates in the Eighth District recorded 10,780 activity hours. A total of 29,673 transactions resulted in 23,307 processes issued, or 78.5 percent. There were 1,626 felony arrest warrants issued and 13,432 misdemeanor warrants. Of the 6,520 bonds issued, 35.4 percent or 2,310 were secured and 4,210 were unsecured. In addition, magistrates issued 2 subpoenas, 95 search warrants, 387 mental detention order, 431 commitals, 2 releases. Prepayments for 199 traffic infractions and 182 Class 4 misdemeanors were received.

Ninth Judicial Circuit and District

The Ninth Circuit serves the Counties of Charles City, Gloucester, King and Queen, King William, Middlesex, New Kent, James City along with the Cities of Williamsburg and Poquoson. In 1980, the total population for the circuit was 143,418 residents of which 39,948 were juveniles. By 1990, an increase of 27.5 percent is expected to raise the population for the localities to 182,800. The juvenile population is predicted to rise only 2.4 percent to 40,899.

In 1986, the circuit court was served by Judges Russell M. Carneal, John E. DeHardit and H. Duane Holloway. Presiding in the general district courts were William T. Bareford and J. R. Zepkin. Judges in the juvenile and domestic relations court were Herbert I. L. Feild and Samuel T. Powell who filled the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge John G. Sowder on January 3, 1986. The district court judges in the Ninth used 154.8 days for substitute and recalled, retired judge days, an average of 43.0 days per judge. This was the third highest such usage per judge in the state.

Commenced cases in the circuit rose 7.5 percent and reached 3,697 as concluded cases (recorded at 3,473) increased 13.2 percent. There was a 7 percent increase in civil cases and an 8.2 percent rise in the criminal caseload. The caseload distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 26 percent felony and 19 percent misdemeanor following closely the statewide percentages for civil and criminal caseloads. The average caseload per judge (1,232) was slightly lower than the statewide average per judge (1,276) and higher than the rural average (1,199) and placed the circuit eighteenth overall. With an average civil caseload per judge of 682 cases, the Ninth Circuit ranked fourteenth statewide, 10 cases above the average per judge for the state and 57 cases higher than the average for rural circuits. The circuit placed 18th with an average of 550 criminal cases per judge as compared to 584 cases per judge statewide and 574 criminal cases per judge in rural areas. Ten percent of the 1,738 civil cases disposed were concluded by judge trials and 0.9 percent were completed by jury trials. Nearly 62 percent of the civil cases were ended within one year. Over seventy percent of the concluded criminal cases were completed within five months. Of the 1,735 concluded criminal cases, 48.1 percent were terminated by judge trials and 2.3 percent by jury trials. At year's end there were 3,472 pending cases, a 6.9 percent increase from 1985.

The general district courts recorded a total of 43,729 new cases for 1986, a 2.1 percent increase over 1985. Criminal (9,158) and civil (7,833) cases rose 13.4 percent and 5.9 percent, respectively while traffic (26,738) cases declined 2.3 percent. The caseload distribution for the district was 21 percent criminal, 61 percent traffic and 18 percent civil, resulting in a higher traffic caseload percentage than statewide (54%) and a lower percentage than the state (30%) for civil cases. Williamsburg/James City County accounted for the highest percentage of the district's caseload with 30 percent of the criminal cases, 24 percent of the traffic cases, 39 percent of the civil cases and 28 percent of the cases overall. Hearings rose 4.6 percent to 44,954 in 1986. The average caseload of 21,865 cases per judge was 2,046 cases below the statewide average and 1,519 above the average per judge for rural areas, ranking the district fifteenth in the state. Ranking fifth in the state, the district's average of 4,579 criminal cases per judge was higher than both the rural and statewide averages of 3,517 and 3,842 cases, respectively. The number of traffic cases per judge (13,369) also was ahead of the state (12,954) and rural (11,805) averages and ranked the district thirteenth. In civil cases, the average of 3,917 cases per judge was well below the state and urban averages of 7,115 and 5,025 cases, resulting in a rank of 27th statewide.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court decreased 3.2 percent. The 13.2 increase in juvenile cases was offset by a 22 percent reduction in domestic relations matters. Of the 5,190 cases, 3,231 pertained to juveniles and 1,959 were domestic relations cases. The 10,266 hearings reflected a 2.7 rise for 1986. Compared to statewide percentages of 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent domestic relations, the caseload distribution for the district was similar (62%, juvenile; 38%, domestic relations). Juvenile traffic cases comprised 46 percent of the juvenile caseload, 12 percent higher than state percentages. The average of 2,595 cases per judge was 720 cases lower than the statewide average per judge and 262 cases below the rural average. For juvenile cases, the average per judge of 1,616 cases fell below the state average of 2,073 and the rural average of 1,698. The domestic relations caseload per judge in the Ninth District was 262 cases below the statewide average and 179 cases below average for rural areas.

The nineteen magistrates in the Ninth District logged 14,119 activity hours resulting in 19,937 transactions and 17,816 processes being issued. Eighty-three percent or 5,897 of the arrest warrants issued were for misdemeanors and 17 percent or 1,250 were for felonies. Of the 3,025 bonds issued, 24.9 percent were secured and 75.1 percent were unsecured bonds. Other magistrate activities included the issuance of 13 subpoenas, 87 search warrants, 16 mental detention orders, and 1,821 commitals to and 1,629 releases from jail. Prepayments were received for 263 traffic infractions and 114 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Tenth Judicial Circuit and District

The Tenth Judicial Circuit serves the Counties of Appomatox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Halifax, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Prince Edward, and the City of South Boston. The 1980 Census reported a population of 139,585 residents of which 39,685 were juveniles. The number of residents is expected to increase by 3.9 percent to a total population of 145,000 by 1990. However, the juvenile population is predicted to decline to 35,000, an 11.8 percent reduction.

Judges serving the Tenth Circuit were Charles L. McCormick III and John R. Snoddy, Jr. The general district court judges were William Hay, Jr., Robert B. Spencer, Jr., and Irvin D. Sugg. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations court were J. Taylor Williams and William L. Wellons. Harry G. Lawson filled the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Williams on February 1, 1987. The Tenth District utilized 69.6 substitute and retired judge days, an average of 13.9 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the circuit court increased 8.4 percent. Civil cases experienced a 2.6 decline while criminal cases increased 26.2 percent. Of the 2,681 new cases, 55.4 percent (1,485) were civil cases and 44.6 percent (1,196) were criminal cases. Concluded cases numbered 2,672, a 16 percent increase for 1986. The caseload distribution was 25 percent law, 30 percent equity, 30 percent felony, and 15 percent misdemeanor, closely tracking statewide percentages for caseload distribution. The average caseload per judge (1,341) was above the average per judge statewide (1,276) and the average in rural areas (1,199) and ranked the circuit tenth in the state. With an average civil caseload per judge of 743 cases, the Tenth Circuit placed ninth overall with 51 cases above the statewide average per judge and 118 cases above that for rural areas. For criminal cases, the average per judge (598) placed the circuit eleventh statewide, above the average per judge statewide (584) and the rural average per judge (574). Of the 1,520 civil cases concluded, 9.7 percent ended by judge trial and 1.2 percent were completed by jury trial. Within twelve months of filing, 56.4 percent of the civil cases were completed. Twenty percent of the concluded criminal cases were tried by a judge and 3.4 percent of the cases ended by jury trial. Of the 1,152 criminal cases concluded, 78.3 percent were completed within five months. By the end of 1986, there were 2,451 cases pending, a 2.6 percent increase over 1985.

The general district court recorded 53,264 new cases in 1986, a 9.2 percent increase. Criminal and civil cases rose significantly with increases of 22.9 percent and 20.6 percent, respectively, while traffic cases were 2.9 percent higher than in 1985. Criminal cases comprised 14 percent of the caseload; traffic cases, 62 percent; and civil cases, 24 percent. Compared to statewide caseload distribution percentages of 16 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic and 30 percent civil, the district's percentages were 8 percent higher for traffic cases and 6 percent lower for civil cases. Hearings rose 12 percent to a total of 46,681. The average caseload per judge (17,755) fell below the average for the state (23,911) and the average per judge for rural areas (20,346), giving the district a rank of 25 statewide. The state and rural averages per judge for criminal cases of 3,842 and 3,517 cases, respectively, were well above the criminal average per judge of 2,487 cases in the Tenth District and placed it 29th overall. The 11,045 case average per judge for traffic cases placed the district 16th in the state. For civil cases, the district's 4,223 average cases per judge was below the state average of 7,115 cases and that for rural areas of 5,025 cases. This gave the district a rank of 24th in the state.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations courts decreased by 1.4 percent. Juvenile cases, which represented 53 percent of the caseload, grew by 7.6 percent while domestic relations cases, comprising 47 percent of the cases, dropped 9.8 percent. Seven of the eight localities reported increases in juvenile caseload. Overall, half of the district's localities experienced decreases in total caseload. Buckingham reported the highest increased total caseload of 33.3 percent. The number of hearings (10,859) rose 3.3 percent. The average caseload per judge of 3,209 cases was below the statewide average of 3,315 and above the rural average of 2,857 cases, resulting in a 18th rank overall. With an average juvenile caseload of 1,696 cases, the district ranked 21st in the state. For domestic relations cases, the 1,513 average cases per judge ranked the district 10th statewide, above the rural and state averages per judge of 1,159 and 1,242, respectively.

The twenty-four magistrates in the Tenth District logged 20,319 activity hours. Transactions totaled 26,735 resulting in 21,996 processes issued. Arrest warrants totaling 7,793 were divided 85 percent misdemeanor and 15 percent felony. Of the 4,205 bonds issued, 46.6 percent (1,959) were secured and 53.4 percent (2,246) were unsecured. Other magistrate activities included the issuance of 246 subpoenas, 66 search warrants, 96 mental detention orders, 2,288 commitals, and 1,833 releases. Prepayments were received for 225 traffic infractions and 83 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Eleventh Judicial Circuit and District

The Eleventh Judicial Circuit encompasses the counties of Amelia, Dinwiddie, Nottoway, Powhatan and the City of Petersburg. The 1980 Census reported a total population of 99,790 residents which included a juvenile population of 28,276. The population is expected to increase by only 1.3 percent to a total of 101,100 residents by 1990. The number of juveniles (25,425) is expected to decline by 10.1 percent.

The two judgeships in the circuit court were held by Oliver A. Pollard, Jr. and Thomas V. Warren. Serving the general district court were James F. D'Alton and Richard E. Lewis, Jr. Judges L. L. Mason, Jr. and Larry G. Elder presided in the juvenile and domestic relations court. Judge Elder filled the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Benjamin L. Campbell on January 1, 1986. The Eleventh District utilized 103.8 substitute and retired judge days, an average of 27.3 days per judge.

The 2,637 commenced cases in the circuit court reflected a 2.4 percent increase. This was the result of an 8.5 percent increase in criminal cases as opposed to a 5.3 percent decline in civil cases. Concluded cases (totaling 2,535) rose 18.3 percent in 1986. The caseload distribution of 19 percent law, 22 percent equity, 43 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor was more heavily weighted with felony cases than was the statewide distribution. Three of the five localities (Dinwiddie, Nottoway and Powhatan) saw a decline in commenced civil cases. The average caseload per judge (1,319) exceeded the average statewide caseload per judge by 43 cases and the average rural caseload by 120 cases and placed the circuit ninth overall. Of the 995 concluded civil cases, 5.4 percent were concluded by judge trials (as compared to a statewide percentage of 15.3 percent) and 2.1 percent were completed by jury trials. Almost 30 percent of the concluded criminal cases were disposed by judge trials and 7.1 percent were concluded by jury trials. Within one year of filing, 67.4 percent of the civil cases were concluded while 82.5 percent of the criminal cases ended within 5 months. By the end of 1986, there were 1,730 cases pending, an increase of 6.3 percent.

The general district courts reported a 3.5 percent increase in new cases for 1986. Of the 43,377 new cases, 8,600 were criminal, 25,564 were traffic and 11,213 were civil. Criminal and traffic cases increased 14.3 percent and 4.6 percent, respectively, while civil cases declined 5.6 percent. Hearings totaling 45,464 rose 10.7 percent. The caseload distribution was 20 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic, and 26 percent civil resulting in a 4 percent higher criminal caseload than statewide percentages. Three of the five localities (Nottoway, Powhatan and Petersburg) reported declines in total caseload. The Eleventh District ranked 16th statewide in terms of average total cases per judge, 7th for the average criminal cases per judge, 15th in average traffic cases per judge, and 15th in terms of average civil cases per judge. With an average caseload per judge of 21,689 cases, the district was lower than the statewide average of 23,911 cases higher than the rural average of 20,346. For criminal cases, the average of 4,300 cases per judge was 458 cases higher than the statewide average and 783 cases above the average per judge for rural areas. The average traffic cases per judge of 11,782 fell well below the 12,954 case average for the state and only 23 cases below the rural average per judge. The civil caseload average per judge (5,607) fell 1,508 cases below the statewide average of 7,115 and was 582 cases above the rural average of 5,025.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts experienced a 7.7 percent rise in juvenile cases and a 14 percent decline in domestic relations cases, resulting in an overall decline of 3.9 percent. Four of the five localities saw reductions in total caseload ranging from 22.9 percent in Amelia to 5.8 percent in Nottoway with Dinwiddie reporting the only increase of 22.5 percent. Fifty two percent of the caseload pertained to juvenile cases compared to 63 percent statewide. Petersburg accounted for 43 percent of the districts juvenile cases, 51 percent of the domestic relations cases and 47 percent of the total caseload. Adult misdemeanors made up for 41 percent of the domestic relations cases (statewide, this figure was 29%) while civil support matters comprised 28 percent (in contrast to 41% statewide). The Eleventh District ranked next to the last statewide for the average caseload per judge (2,102 cases), below the statewide average of 3,315 cases and the rural average of 2,857 cases. For juvenile cases, the average per judge (1,096) was 977 cases below the average for the state and 602 cases behind the rural average per judge and ranked the district 32nd overall. The decline in adult cases resulted in an average of 1,006 domestic relations cases per judge, slightly lower than the 1,242 statewide case average and the 1,159 rural case average per judge.

The Eleventh District's fourteen magistrates recorded 17,743 activity hours resulting in 29,991 transactions and 24,336 processes issued. Almost 80 percent (7,058) of the 8,864 arrest warrants were issued for misdemeanors and 1,806 or 20 percent for felonies. Of the 6,799 bonds issued 34.3 percent were secured and 65.7 percent were unsecured. Additional processes included 741 subpoenas, 104 search warrants, 426 mental detention orders, 3,981 commitals and 2,463 releases. Prepayments were received for 13 traffic infractions and 16 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twelfth Judicial Circuit and District

Chesterfield County and the City of Colonial Heights comprise the Twelfth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 census reported a population of 157,881 residents of which 32 percent, or 49,891, were juveniles. By 1990, the population is expected in increase by 39.1 percent to 219,600. The juvenile population is also expected to rise by 22.8 percent to 61,279.

Serving the circuit court in 1986 were Ernest P. Gates, John F. Daffron, Jr., and William N. Humphries, Jr. Judge William R. Shelton of the general district court filled the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Humphries on April 30, 1986. Judge Gates will retire September 1, 1987 and be replaced by Herbert C. Gill. Judges in the general district court were John E. Dodson, Robert D. Laney and Timothy J. Hauler who replaced Judge Shelton upon his election to the circuit court. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations court were Marvin L. Garner and John H. Thomas. During 1986, 201.8 substitute and recalled retired judge days were utilized, an average of 40.4 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the circuit court totaled 3,647, a 1.2 percent rise over 1985. The 15.2 percent decline in the civil cases in Colonial Heights accounted for most of the 3.4 percent reduction in commenced civil cases overall. Criminal cases rose 12 percent in the circuit , 31.3 percent in Colonial Heights, and 9.7 percent in Chesterfield County. The caseload distribution of 20 percent law, 46 percent equity, 21 percent felony, and 12 percent misdemeanor was 12 percentage points higher in civil cases than the statewide caseload distribution. Chesterfield County accounted for 94 percent of the civil cases and 88 percent of the criminal caseload for the circuit. Concluded cases rose 18.9 percent to a total of 3,567 cases. Five percent of the 2,383 concluded civil cases ended by judge trial (compared to the statewide percentage of 15.3 percent) while 3.9 percent were completed by jury trial. Within 12 months of filing, 68.5 percent of the civil cases were concluded. Thirty-two percent of the criminal cases concluded were disposed by judge trials, (8.3 percentage points above the statewide percentage), and 4.4 percent were heard by jury trials. Almost two-thirds of the criminal cases ended within five months. Pending cases which totaled 3,407 rose 2.4 percent in 1986. An increase of 8.1 percent was recorded in the number juries impaneled (80). In commenced cases, the average per judge of 1,216 cases was 60 cases below the statewide average 117 cases behind the urban average per judge and ranked the circuit 17th overall. The statewide civil average of 692 cases per judge and 741 cases for urban cases were below the averages of 809 cases for the circuit giving the Twelfth a 5th place rank statewide. The lower than average number of criminal cases per judge (407) placed the circuit 29th overall, 177 cases below the state average per judge and 185 cases below the urban average.

The general district courts reported a decline in new cases (-1.9 percent) in 1986. There were 29,465 traffic cases recorded in the district. This represented a decline of 3.6 percent a reduction of 4.9 percent overall. The caseload distribution in the Twelfth was 20 percent criminal, 58 percent traffic and, 22 percent civil cases. Statewide, criminal cases accounted for only 16 percent of the caseload while civil cases made up 30 percent. Traffic misdemeanors comprised 58 percent of the traffic caseload compared to 17 percent statewide. The average caseload per judge of 16,849 ranked the district 27th overall. This was below the statewide and urban averages of 23,911 cases and 27,080 cases, respectively. Placing 20th in the state, the district's 3,327 case average per judge for criminal cases was below the statewide average of 3,842 and the urban case average per judge of 4,132. With statewide and urban traffic averages per judge of 12,954 and 13,975, the district's average of 9,822 traffic cases was 21st in the state. The civil average per judge of 3,700 cases fell below the statewide average of 7,115 cases and the urban average of 8,973 cases and ranked 29th overall.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court rose 5 percent to a total of 8,264 cases in 1986. Juvenile cases increased 11.9 percent while domestic relations declined 5.7 percent. Of the total new cases, 5,367 or 65 percent were juvenile and 2,897 or 35 percent concerned domestic relations matters. Ninety-one percent of the juvenile cases were recorded in Chesterfield County as were ninety percent of the domestic relations cases. The average of 4,132 cases per judge was higher than the statewide average per judge of 3,315 and the urban average of 3,797 and placed the district 7th overall. For juvenile cases, the 2,684 case average per judge was above both the state and urban averages of 2,073 and 2,467 and gave the district a statewide rank of 5th. The district ranked 11th statewide with an average adult caseload of 1,449 cases per judge compared to a state average of 1,242 and an urban average of 1,330 cases.

The ten magistrates in the Twelfth District reported 13,404 activity hours for 1986. The 30,527 transactions resulted in 24,940 processes issued. There were 5,826 misdemeanor arrest warrants issued and 1,515 felony warrants issued. Approximately 37 percent of the total bonds issued (6,254) were secured with the remaining 63 percent unsecured. Additional magistrate duties included the issuance of 232 subpoenas, 90 search warrants, 140 mental detention orders, 5,016 commitals and 3,977 releases. Prepayments were received for 133 traffic infractions and 20 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Thirteenth Judicial Circuit and District

The Thirteenth Judicial Circuit serves the City of Richmond. According to the 1980 census, the city's population was 219,214 of which 49,024 were juveniles. Projections indicate a decline in population to 213,500 by 1990. The juvenile population will also decrease to 41,916 or by 14.5 percent.

There are eight judgeships authorized for the Thirteenth Circuit. The judges presiding in the circuit court in 1986 were Willard I. Walker, James M. Lumpkin, Robert W. Duling, Thomas N. Nance, James B. Wilkinson, Frank A.S. Wright, Melvin R. Hughes, Jr., Robert L. Harris and Theodore J. Markow. Judge Markow replaced Judge Walker who died on September 28, 1986. The eight judges serving the general district court were Jose R. Davila, Walter W. Stout, III, Thomas O. Jones, Edgar L. Turlington, Jr., Gregory L. Rupe, Ralph B. Robertson, William L. Wimbish, and Lemuel E. DeBerry. Serving in the juvenile and domestic relations general district court were Alton E. Bryant, Jr., Willard H. Douglas, Jr., and Arlin F. Ruby. The district court judges used 247.2 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges in FY 1986, an average of 22.5 days per judge. This was below the statewide average of 24.1 days per judge.

The Thirteenth Circuit experienced an increase of 8.5 percent in commenced cases in 1986 totaling 11,029. The total number of concluded cases (10,560) increased by 5.8 percent. Civil cases (6,513) increased significantly (by 22.7 percent) while criminal cases (totaling 4,516) decreased by 340, or 7 percent. The caseload distribution of 42 percent law, 17 percent equity, 32 percent felony, and 9 percent misdemeanor differed significantly from the statewide distribution of 24 percent law, 30 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. With 1,375 cases per judge, Richmond ranked seventh in the state in terms of commenced cases per judge, 103 cases above the statewide average and 36 cases above the average for urban circuits. The average number of civil cases per judge (814) placed the Thirteenth fourth in the state, well above the statewide average of 692 and the urban average of 741 civil cases per judge. However, there was no significant difference from the statewide and urban averages in terms of criminal cases per judge (565) from the statewide and urban averages. Of the criminal cases concluded, 18.2 percent ended by judge trial while 11.6 percent were concluded by jury trial. Statewide almost 24 percent reached conclusion after a trial by judge while only 5.6 percent ended by a jury trial. Of the 4,500 criminal cases concluded, 96.9 percent were terminated within five months of initiation while statewide, only 65.3 percent ended within that time frame. The number of pending cases totaled 7,039, which represented a 7.1 percent increase from 1985.

New cases commenced in the general district courts of the Thirteenth District decreased 1.5 percent. There were 225,889 new cases of which 12 percent were criminal, 34 percent traffic and 54 percent civil. This differs from the statewide distribution of 16 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. New criminal cases in 1986 rose 7.9 percent in the district courts, while traffic cases decreased by 13.1 percent, due mainly to a 16.1 percent drop in traffic infractions. The rise in civil cases was reported to be 5.2 percent, or 5,978 cases over 1985. The total number of hearings (219,057) decreased by 0.4 percent with Richmond ranking seventh in the state in terms of the number of hearings per judge. Ranking first in the state, the Thirteenth's civil caseload per judge (15,203 cases) was well above both the statewide (7,115) and urban (8,973) averages. However, the number of traffic cases per judge (9,531) was below the statewide and urban averages as were criminal cases per judge (3,503) which ranked Richmond 18th in the state.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by 1,293 cases or 12.8 percent in 1986. Juvenile cases rose by 12.9 percent while domestic relations cases increased by almost the same percentage (12.5%). The total number of hearings increased by 7.4 percent. The caseload distribution, comprised of 56 percent juvenile and 44 percent domestic relations cases was quite different from the statewide distribution of 63 percent juvenile and 37 percent adult cases. Juvenile cases per judge, averaging 2,136, ranked Richmond tenth in the state, 63 cases per judge more than the state average and 331 less than the urban average. The district placed seventh in the state with 1,672 adult cases per judge. This was well above both the urban and statewide averages of 1,242 and 1,330.

The nine magistrates of the Thirteenth district logged 16,399 activity hours. There was a 5.4 percent reduction from 1985 in transactions as well as a 3 percent decrease in processes issued. Seventy-five percent of all transactions resulted in issuance of processes. Of the 25,422 warrants issued, 17.8 percent were for felonies and 82.1 percent were for misdemeanors. Almost 36 percent of the bonds issued were secured (3,837) as compared to 6,424 unsecured bonds. Other magistrate activities included the issuance of 205 search warrants, 54 mental detention orders, 18,197 commitals, 10,888 releases, and 2 prepayments for traffic infractions.

Fourteenth Judicial Circuit and District

The Fourteenth Judicial Circuit serves Henrico County. According to the 1980 census, the county includes 180,700 residents of which 46,880 are juveniles. By 1990, a population of 208,000 is projected. This includes a juvenile population of 45,169, a decrease of 3.6 percent from the 1980 census.

The four judgeships authorized for the Fourteenth Circuit were filled by Robert M. Wallace, Buford M. Parsons, Jr., Joseph F. Spinella, and James E. Kulp. Judges Donald R. Howren, George F. Tidey, and H. Ratcliffe Turner presided over the general district court. The juvenile and domestic relations court was served by Judges J. Mercer White, Jr. and Robert J. Smith. The district court judges used 127.2 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges in FY 86, an average of 25.4 days per judge.

The total of 4,549 commenced cases in the circuit court reflected an increase of 4.6 percent. Concluded cases numbered 4,598, and increase of 6.4 percent. Criminal cases grew to 2,594, representing an increase of 15.6 percent, while civil cases (totaling 1,955) decreased by 7.3 percent. The caseload distribution was 13 percent law, 30 percent equity, 34 percent felony, and 23 percent misdemeanor cases. Compared to the statewide distribution, the Fourteenth circuit was more heavily weighted with felony and misdemeanor cases. Commenced cases per judge numbered 1,137 as compared to the average of 1,333 per judge in urban circuits and 1,276 per judge statewide. The average criminal caseload per judge of 649 ranks Henrico eighth in the state and is higher than the statewide average of 584 and the urban average of 592 criminal cases per judge. The civil caseload per judge of 489 ranks it 30th in the state. The statewide average was 692 civil cases per judge while the average for urban circuits was 741 civil cases per judge. Civil cases concluded by judge trial accounted for 5.9 percent of the total compared to 1.2 percent by jury trial. Statewide, 15.3 percent of the cases concluded ended by a judge trial while 1.9 percent ended after a trial by jury. In criminal cases, 23.8 percent were concluded by judge trial and 2.3 percent by jury trial. This compares to the statewide percentages of 23.7 judge trials and 5.6 percent jury trials. The percentage of civil cases concluded within 12 months was 41.9. Statewide almost 63 percent of the civil cases concluded ended within 12 months. Almost eighty percent of criminal cases were concluded within 150 days. The number of juries impaneled totaled 86. As of the end of 1986, there were 4,520 pending cases in the circuit court.

The general district court experienced ~~an increase~~ of 16.9 percent in new cases in 1986 resulting in a total of 63,765 new cases. Criminal cases increased by 9.1 percent with traffic cases increasing significantly by 24.5 percent and civil cases by 3.7 percent. The caseload distribution was 12 percent criminal, 64 percent traffic, 24 percent civil. Compared to the statewide measures, the traffic percentage was 10 percentage points higher while criminal and civil were each 4 percentage points lower. The total number of hearings increased 17.2 percent. The average number of hearings per judge of 20,330 was below the statewide and above the urban district averages. Criminal cases per judge averaged 2,477, again ranking Henrico below the statewide and urban averages. The Fourteenth District ranked thirteenth in average traffic cases per judge with a total of 13,614. This is slightly above the state average and even with the urban average. The 5,164 civil cases per judge in the Fourteenth (ranking 19th) were below both the statewide and urban averages.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court rose 1.5 percent in 1986. Juvenile cases increased 8.9 percent, while domestic relations cases decreased by 6.7 percent. The number of hearings fell by 4.5 percent. The Fourteenth's J&DR distribution of caseload was 59 percent juvenile and 41 percent domestic relations compared to the statewide distribution of 62.5 percent juvenile and 37.5 domestic relations. Ranking fourteenth in the state in the number of new cases per judge (3,342), the district placed almost even with the statewide average (3,315) and slightly lower than the urban average (3,797). The average of 1,973 juvenile cases per judge was lower than the statewide and urban averages of 2,102 and 2,540, respectively. The average of 1,370 domestic relations cases per judge was 128 above the statewide average and 40 above the average for urban districts. Fifty-seven percent of Henrico's domestic relations cases were civil support cases as compared to the statewide average of 41 percent.

The nine magistrates of the Fourteenth District logged 16,074 activity hours. Transactions totaled 47,912 and processes issued totaled 41,884. Thus, 87 percent of the requests resulted in the issuance of a process. There were 1,997 felony arrest warrants issued compared to 6,493 misdemeanor arrest warrants. Of the 6,574 total bonds issued, 3,505 (53,3%) were secured and 3,069 (46,6%) were unsecured. The Fourteenth District issued the highest number of subpoenas (9,517) in the state in addition to 105 search warrants, 271 mental detention orders, 5,646 committals, and 4,047 releases. The magistrates also accepted prepayment for 5,765 traffic infractions and 677 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Fifteenth Judicial Circuit and District

The Fifteenth Circuit serves the ten counties including Caroline, Essex, Hanover, King George, Lancaster, Northumberland, Richmond, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Westmoreland, and the city of Fredericksburg. According to the 1980 Census, the circuit contained 218,886 residents and included a juvenile population of 64,698. The Department of Planning and Budget projects that the population will increase by 24.3 percent by 1990 to a total of 272,100 residents. The juvenile population is expected to rise 10.2 to 71,304 young people.

Serving the circuit court in 1986 were Judges John A. Jamison, Dixon L. Foster, Richard H. C. Taylor and J. M. H. Willis, Jr. Judge William H. Ledbetter, Jr. filled the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Jamison on January 1,1987. Presiding in the general district courts were Tristram T. Hyde, IV, James W. Haley, Jr., James Peyton Farmer, and J. L. Savage, Jr. The juvenile and domestic relations court were served by William J. Cox, Walther B. Fidler and J. Dean Lewis. Judge Lewis filled the additional judgeship created by the General Assembly effective July 1, 1986. The district court judges used 196 substitute and retired judge days in 1986, an average of 28 days per judge.

The circuit court caseload increased 9.4 percent in 1986. Civil cases commenced rose by 10.3 percent while criminal cases grew by 8.1 percent. The 4,669 concluded cases represented a rise of 6.9 percent for 1986. Twenty-three percent of the cases were law, 35 percent were equity, 25 percent were felony and 17 percent were misdemeanor cases. The distribution of civil and criminal caseload was similar to statewide caseload distribution percentages. Eight of the eleven localities reported increases in civil caseloads. The Fifteenth Circuit ranked fifteenth in the state for the average caseload per judge (1,292), ranked slightly higher than the statewide average caseload per judge of 1,276 and the rural average of 1,199. The 750 average civil cases per judge placed the circuit eighth in the state, 58 cases above the statewide average and 125 cases higher than the rural average per judge. With 542 criminal cases per judge, the circuit ranked 20th in the state. Of the 2,700 civil cases concluded, 12.5 percent were disposed by judge trials and 1.9 percent were heard by jury trial. Within twelve months of filing, 71.4 percent of the civil cases were concluded. For criminal cases, 40.8 percent or 803 of 1,967 concluded cases were completed by judge trials and 7.6 percent or 150 ended by jury trials. Pending cases totaled 4,636, a 12.1 percent increase over 1985.

New cases in the general district courts rose 18.2 percent in 1986. Criminal cases increased a significant 35.3 percent while civil cases rose 21.3 percent and traffic cases grew by 12.8 percent. Of the 119,764 new cases, 14 percent were criminal, 54 percent were traffic and 32 percent were civil. The City of Fredericksburg reported 31 percent of the district's criminal caseload and 65 percent of the civil cases. The district ranked fifth in the state with an average caseload per judge of 29,941 cases, well above the average cases per judge statewide of 23,911 and the rural average of 20,346. For criminal cases, the average per judge of 4,150 was 308 cases higher than the statewide average and 633 cases above the average for rural areas. The average number of traffic cases per judge was 16,089 cases, above the state and rural averages of 12,954 and 11,805 cases, respectively. Civil cases averaged 9,703 cases per judge and placed above the statewide average (7,115) and rural average per judge (5,025). The Fifteenth District ranked 10th in the state in terms of criminal cases per judge, 7th for traffic cases per judge and 5th for civil cases per judge.

New juvenile and domestic relations cases increased by 3.3 percent in 1986. Juvenile cases rose 18.3 percent while a 14.1 percent reduction was recorded in domestic relations cases. Of the 10,387 new cases, 6,377 or 61 percent were juvenile cases and 4,010 or 39 percent related to domestic relations matters. Ten of the eleven localities reported increases in juvenile cases. The average caseload per judge (3,462) was higher than the statewide average per judge (3,315) and the average per judge for rural areas (2,857). Juvenile cases per judge averaged 2,126. This was 53 cases above the average per judge for the state and 428 cases higher than the rural average per judge. In spite of the decline in domestic relations cases, the average per judge (1,337) was still higher than the statewide average per judge (1,242) and the rural average (1,159). The Fifteenth District ranked 13th in the state in terms of average caseload per judge, 11th for juvenile cases per judge and 16th for domestic relations cases per judge.

The twenty-four magistrates in the Fifteenth District logged the 3rd highest number of activity hours in the state with 30,875 hours. Of the 37,691 transactions, 31,965 resulted in processes issued. Misdemeanor arrest warrants totaled 12,248 and felony warrants numbered 2,211. Of the 8,329 bonds issued, 28.9 percent or 2,021 were secured and 6,308 were unsecured. Other magistrate duties included the issuance of 953 subpoenas, 62 search warrants, 193 mental detention orders, and 4,674 commitals and 3,627 releases from jail. Prepayments were received for 208 traffic infractions and 106 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Sixteenth Judicial Circuit and District

The counties of Albemarle, Culpeper, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greene, Louisa, Madison, and Orange and the City of Charlottesville comprise the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 census registered a population of 194,069 for this circuit, of which 49,615 were juveniles. By 1990, an increase of 15.5 percent in population will raise the total to 224,200 residents. The juvenile population is expected to increase 5 percent to 52,114.

Serving the Sixteenth Circuit were judges Lloyd C. Sullenberger, E. Gerald Tremblay, F. Ward Harkrader, Jr., and Herbert A. Pickford III. The general district court judges were William A. Talley, Jr., Stephen H. Helven, Franklin J. Jenkins and Paul M. Peatross, Jr. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations courts were William D. Reams, Jr. and Ralph P. Zehler, Jr. Jannene L. Shannon will replace Judge Zehler who retired on January 1, 1987. The district court judges utilized 252.3 substitute and retired, recalled judge days in 1986, an average of 42.1 days per judge.

The circuit court recorded a 5.5 percent increase in commenced cases for 1986. New civil cases totaling 2,617 rose 5.5 percent while the 2,039 new criminal cases reflected a 0.5 percent decline for 1986. Concluded cases (4,098) also decreased 7 percent with six of the nine localities reporting reductions. The composition of the commenced cases was percent law, 35 percent equity, 26 percent felony and 18 percent misdemeanor, resulting in little deviation from statewide caseload percentages. Commenced cases per judge averaged 1,164 cases, 112 cases below the state average per judge and only 35 cases behind the rural average resulting in a 21st rank statewide. For civil cases, the average per judge of 654 cases was 38 cases lower than the statewide average and 29 cases higher than the rural average and placed the circuit 17th in the state. The 510 criminal cases average per judge placed the circuit 21st statewide and slightly below the state and rural averages of 584 and 574 cases, respectively. Of the 2,130 concluded civil cases, 15.9 percent ended by judge trial and 2.3 percent were concluded by jury trial. Almost 70 percent of the civil cases were concluded within twelve months of filing. The percentage of criminal cases concluded by judge trial was 36.9 percent while six percent ended by jury trial. Of the 1,968 criminal cases concluded, 1,742 or 88.5 percent were completed within five months. Pending cases increased by 19.9 percent to 3,689. The 153 juries impaneled showed a 29.5 percent decrease from 1985.

New cases in the general district court increased 3.4 percent overall due to increases of 3.4 percent in new criminal cases, 5.5 percent in traffic cases, and 12 percent in civil cases. Of the 77,339 new cases, 20 percent (15,796) were criminal, 56 percent (43,425) were traffic, and 23 percent (18,118) were civil. Cases in Charlottesville comprised 45 percent of the district's criminal caseload and 40 percent of the civil caseload. New cases per judge averaged 19,335 cases, 4,576 cases below the state average and behind the rural average resulting in a 24th rank overall. The district placed 13th in the state for criminal cases per judge of 3,949 cases as compared to the statewide average of 3,842 and the 3,517 case average for rural areas. The 10,856 traffic cases per judge placed the district 20th statewide, 2,098 cases below the state average and 949 cases behind the rural average. For civil cases, the average per judge of 4,530 was below the statewide average of 7,115 cases and the rural average of 5,025 cases and ranked the district 22nd overall.

Increases in juvenile cases (6.4 percent) and decreases in domestic relations cases (17.3%) resulted in a 4.2 percent reduction in new cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court. Of the new 6,659 cases 4,077 or 61 percent were juvenile and 2,582 or 39 percent were domestic relations cases. The percentages were similar to those for the statewide caseload distribution. New cases per judge averaged 3,330 cases, 15 cases above the average per judge for the state and 473 cases over the rural average resulting in a rank of 15th in the state. For juvenile cases per judge, the average (2,039) placed 13th statewide, 34 cases below the statewide average and 341 above the rural average. The average domestic relations caseload per judge of 1,291 was higher than the statewide average of 1,242 and the rural average of 1,159 cases and placed the district seventeenth overall.

The Sixteenth District's twenty magistrates recorded 20,135 activity hours. Transactions totaling 41,626 resulted in 37,236 processes issued. Eighty-eight percent of the 17,508 arrest warrants issued were for misdemeanors and the remaining 2,098 or 12 percent were for felonies. Of the 8,357 bonds issued, 24.5 percent or 2,049 were secured leaving a total of 6,308 unsecured bonds. Additional magistrate duties included the issuance of 103 subpoenas, 90 search warrants, 264 mental detention orders, 4,794 commitals and 3,758 releases. Magistrates received prepayments for 452 traffic infractions and 237 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Seventeenth Judicial Circuit and District

The Seventeenth Circuit serves Arlington County. The 1980 Census reported 152,599 residents in the county and a juvenile population of 24,969. By 1990, the population is projected by the state Department of Planning and Budget to increase 2.4 percent to include 156,300 residents. The juvenile population is expected to decrease 16.9 percent to 20,757. However, the 1987 General Assembly adopted a measure to change the circuit's jurisdiction to include the City of Falls Church. This is expected to increase the population by 9,515.

Judges serving the circuitry court were William L. Winston, Paul F. Sheridan, Thomas R. Monroe and Benjamin N. A. Kendrick. Judges Francis Everett Thomas, Jr., Joseph C. Gwaltney and Eleanor S. Dobson presided in the general district court. Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court judges were Benton V. Kramer and Andrew B. Ferrari. Judge Frank J. Ceresi replaced Judge Kramer who retired November 16, 1986.

Commenced cases in the Seventeenth Circuit rose 6 percent and totalled 3,791. Concluded cases (4,283) increased 23.5 percent, 816 more than in 1985. Civil cases (2,162) and criminal cases (1,629) rose 5.1 percent and 7.1 percent, respectively. The caseload distribution was 26 percent law, 31 percent equity, 40 percent felony and 3 percent misdemeanor. Arlington County placed 31st in the state with an average caseload per judge of 948 cases compared to 1,276 average cases per judge statewide and 1,333 cases per judge in urban areas. The average civil caseload per judge of 541 cases was below statewide and urban averages per judge of 692 and 741, respectively, and ranked the circuit 28th statewide. The Seventeenth Circuit ranked second lowest statewide with an average of 407 criminal cases per judge, 185 cases below the urban average per judge and 177 cases below tne statewide measure. Of the 2,750 civil cases concluded, 9.2 percent were completed by judge trial and 1.2 percent by jury trial. Of the total of 1,533 concluded criminal cases, 17.1 percent ended by judge trial and 5.5 percent by jury trial. The number of civil cases concluded within 12 months increased from 728 in 1985 to 833 in 1986, an increase of 14.4 percent. Sixty-seven percent of the criminal cases terminated within five months. Pending cases totaled 6,514, a seven percent reduction.

The general district court recorded 80,639 new cases, or a 4.7 percent decline. Criminal cases fell 12.4 percent due to a 16.5 percent decline in misdemeanor cases and a 9.5 percent decrease in felony cases. However, capias and show/cause actions rose 40.3 percent. Traffic cases also declined 9.3 percent while civil cases increased 26.2 percent. The caseload distribution was 9 percent criminal (6,967 cases), 73 percent traffic (59,061 cases) and 18 percent civil (14,611 cases). The heavy caseload percentage for traffic cases was 19 percentage points higher than the statewide distribution caseload. Ninety-three percent of the traffic cases were infractions. The district ranked ninth in the state in terms of the average caseload per judge of 26,880 cases. This was 2,969 cases above the statewide average per judge but 200 cases below the urban average. The average traffic caseload per judge (19,687) was well above urban and statewide averages and ranked the district fourth in the state. Compared to the urban and statewide averages of 8,973 and 7,115 civil cases per judge, the district's 4,870 average caseload ranked Arlington County twenty-first statewide.

The juvenile and domestic relations court experienced a 3.3 percent decrease in new cases for 1986. The overall case reduction was due to a 2.8 percent decline in juvenile cases and 5.2 percent drop in domestic relations cases. Of the 2,911 new cases, 80 percent or 2,328 pertained to juvenile matters and 20 percent, or 583, were domestic relations cases. The 39 percent misdemeanor caseload in domestic relations cases was 10 percentage points higher than the statewide distribution. A total of 1,456 cases per judge was reported in 1986. This was considerably lower than the statewide average of 3,315 cases per judge and the urban average of 3,797 cases per judge. With an average juvenile caseload per judge of 1,164 cases, Arlington County ranked 31st in the state. The average domestic relations caseload per judge of 292 placed the district last in the state, 950 cases below the statewide average domestic relations caseload and 1,038 cases below the average urban caseload. Hearings declined 12.6 percent to 7,898.

The eight magistrates in the Seventeenth District recorded 10,781 activity hours. Transactions numbered 40,603 and resulted in 32,738 processes issued. Of the 7,810 arrest warrants issued, 6,064 or 77.6 percent were for misdemeanors and 1,746 were for felonies. Approximately 48 percent or 3,488 of the 7,292 bonds issued were secured, leaving 3,804 unsecured bonds issued. Other magistrate activities included the issuance of 80 search warrants, 233 mental detention orders, 4,957 commitals, and 5,022 releases. There were 780 prepayments for traffic infractions and 4 prepayments for class 4 misdemeanors.

Eighteenth Judicial Circuit and District

The Eighteenth Judicial Circuit serves the City of Alexandria. The 1980 Census for the city recorded 103,217 residents of which 18,938 were juveniles. By 1990 the resident population is expected to increase by 6.3 percent to 109,700. The juvenile population is predicted to decline to 17,157 or 9.4 percent.

Presiding over the Eighteenth Circuit in 1986 were Judges Donald Hall Kent, Donald M. Haddock, and Alfred D. Swersky. The general district court was served by Robert T. S. Colby and D. F. O'Flaherty. Judge Joseph L. Peters, Jr. served the juvenile and domestic relations court. The district court judges used 63 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges in FY 1986, an average of 21 days per judge. This was below the statewide average of 24.1 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the circuit court rose 5.1 percent. Of the 3,743 new cases, 2,095 were criminal cases, a 5.2 percent increase over 1985. The 1,648 criminal cases reflected a 5 percent increase for 1986. Concluded cases decreased by 1.8 percent totaling 3,381. The caseload distribution of 25 percent law, 31 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 12 percent misdemeanors was similar to the statewide caseload distribution percentages. With a total average caseload per judge of 1,248 cases, Alexandria ranked seventeenth statewide, or 28 cases below the statewide average caseload per judge and 85 cases below the urban average. The average of 698 civil cases per judge was 6 above the statewide caseload per judge and 43 below the average urban caseload and placed the circuit twelfth in the state. Ranking nineteenth statewide in terms of average criminal caseload per judge (549 cases) Alexandria's caseload average was slightly below the urban caseload average per judge of 592 and the statewide average of 584. Of the 1,675 civil cases concluded, 7.2 percent ended by judge trials, (compared to 15.3 percent statewide), and 3.4 percent were concluded by jury trial. A total of 723, or 43.2 percent of the civil cases were concluded within 12 months. This was a decline from 1985 when 53.1 percent of the civil cases concluded ended within 12 months. Approximately 14 percent of criminal cases ended by judge trial and 3.5 percent by jury trial. Of the 1,706 criminal cases concluded, 90.9 percent, or 1,552 were completed within five months. There were 3,175 cases pending at the end of 1986, a 12.9 percent increase from the end of 1985. The 99 juries represented an 8.3 percent decline for 1986.

The general district court recorded 42,299 new cases in 1986, or a 9 percent increase. Criminal cases (5,061) and civil cases (15,518) rose significantly by 36.7 percent and 32.3 percent, respectively. The caseload distribution was 12 percent criminal, 51 percent traffic and 37 percent civil. Alexandria ranked nineteenth statewide with an average of 21,150 cases per judge, as compared to a statewide average caseload per judge of 23,911 and 17,080 cases for judges in urban areas. The average of 2,531 criminal cases per judge was lower than the statewide criminal caseload average per judge of 3,842 and the urban average of 4,132 and placed the district 28th overall. The district ranked nineteenth statewide in terms of traffic cases per judge (10,860) and reflected an average lower than both statewide and urban averages per judge of 12,954 cases and 13,975 cases, respectively. Alexandria ranked 10th statewide for the average number of civil cases per judge (7,759), 644 cases above the statewide average per judge and 1,214 below the average for urban areas.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court were recorded at 3,855, a one case increase for 1986. Juvenile cases (1,950) reflected an 11.9 percent rise, while domestic relations cases (1,905) declined by 9.8 percent. The total number of hearings (6,621) increased by only 0.2 percent. The caseload distribution was almost evenly distributed with 51 percent juvenile cases and 49 percent domestic relations. Domestic relations misdemeanors cases occuped 13 percent of the caseload compared to 29 percent statewide. The average caseload per judge of 3,855 was 540 cases above the average statewide caseload per judge and 58 above the urban average, placing the district in the upper third for the state. Alexandria ranked sixteenth statewide with an average of 1,950 juvenile cases per judge as compared to 2,073 average juvenile cases per judge for the state and 2,467 cases for urban areas. The 1,905 domestic relations cases per judge placed the district third in the state, 662 above the statewide average per judge and 575 above the urban average.

The Eighteenth District's seven magistrates recorded 9,067 activity hours. The 24,533 transactions resulted in 21,239 processes issued. Of the 4,767 arrest warrants issued, 3,807 or 80 percent were misdemeanor warrants and 960 were for felonies. Twenty-six percent or 1,183 of the 4,538 bonds issued were secured, leaving 3,355 unsecured bonds issued. In addition, magistrates issued 109 search warrants, 83 mental detention orders, 3,134 commitals, 2,746 releases and received prepayments for 111 traffic infractions and 1 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Nineteenth Judicial Circuit and District

The Nineteenth Judicial Circuit includes Fairfax County and the Cities of Fairfax and Falls Church. As of July 1, 1987, Falls Church will be included within the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit and District. The 1980 Census reported a population of 625,806 residents including 182,215 juveniles. According to the Department of Planning and Budget, the number of residents is expected to increase by 1990 by 22.7 percent to 768,000. However, the juvenile population is predicted to rise only 0.2 percent to 182,582.

The eleven judges serving the circuit court, the largest statewide, are F. Bruce Bach, Lewis H. Griffith, Richard J. Jamb-orsky, Barnard F. Jennings, Thomas J. Middleton, Jr., Jack B. Stevens, J. Howe Brown, Jr., William G. Plummer, Johanna L. Fitzpatrick, Quinlan H. Hancock and Thomas A. Fortkort. The general district court judges were Michael P. McWeeny, Richard T. Horan, Robert M. Hurst, Stewart P. Davis, Frank B. Perry III, Thomas J. Rothrock, and J. Conrad Waters, Jr. The 1987 General Assembly created an additional judgeship for the general district courts which will be filled by Marcus D. Williams on July 1, 1987. Presiding over the juvenile and domestic relations court were Jane Pritchard Delbridge, Arnold B. Kassabian, Michael J. Valentine, Gaylord L. Finch, Jr. and James W. Fourqurean. The district court judges in the Nineteenth District used 305.9 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges, an average of 25.5 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the Nineteenth Circuit increased 6.2 percent to reach 15,459 cases, the highest number in the state. The civil caseload totaled 10,613, a 6.1 percent increase and was the largest in the state. Criminal cases rose 6.4 percent to 4,846 cases. Concluded cases, which totaled 15,465 cases, increased 17.3 percent. The caseload distribution was 30 percent law, 39 percent equity, 18 percent felony, and 13 percent misdemeanor. The Nineteenth ranked fifth in the state with an average caseload per judge of 1,405 cases as compared to 1,276 cases per judge statewide and 1,333 cases per judge for urban areas. The 965 average civil cases per judge was the highest in the state. Of the 10,708 civil cases concluded, 21.5 percent ended by judge trial and 2.3 percent were concluded by jury trial. Fifty-seven percent of the civil cases were concluded within twelve months. Almost 41 percent of the concluded criminal cases were completed by judge trial as compared to a statewide percentage of 23.7 percent. Interestingly, pending cases decreased to 15,627 cases, 6 cases below the total for 1985.

The general district courts recorded the highest number of new cases in the state (239,952) a 4.9 percent increase for 1986. Traffic cases were up 7.5 percent and accounted for 73 percent of the caseload with 175,623 cases. The 43,023 civil cases represented a decline of 2.5 percent and accounted for 18 percent of the total caseload. Criminal cases rose 0.3 percent to 21,301 cases, representing 9 percent of the caseload. The percentage of traffic cases (73%) was significantly higher than the statewide percentage of 54 percent, while the civil caseload was 12 percentage points below the statewide percentage of 30 percent. The 34,279 cases per judge placed the Nineteenth District third in the state, 10,368 more cases per judge than the statewide average, and 7,199 more cases per judge than the average for urban districts. Ranking twenty-third in the state with 3,043 average criminal cases per judge, the district was 799 cases below the statewide average and 1,089 below that for urban districts. The statewide average caseload per judge for civil cases (7,115) and the urban average civil caseload per judge (8,973) were above the district's average per judge of 6,146 and ranked the Nineteenth District fourteenth overall.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court rose 2.8 percent. The 9.9 percent increase in juvenile cases was offset by the 17.6 percent decline in domestic relations cases. Of the 21,083 new cases, 16,736 pertained to juvenile matters and 4,347 were domestic relations cases. The caseload distribution was 79 percent juvenile cases and 21 percent domestic relations cases. New cases rose 2.8 percent in Fairfax County and 9.6 percent in Falls Church. The district ranked fourth in the state with 4,217 cases per judge, 902 cases above the statewide average per judge and 420 cases above the urban average. In comparison to the statewide juvenile caseload per judge average of 2,073 and the urban average per judge of 2,467, the district's 3,347 cases per judge were higher and ranked third in the state. With an average domestic relations caseload of 869 cases per judge, the Nineteenth District placed 28th overall as compared to the statewide average of 1,242 domestic relations cases per judge and 1,330 cases per judge in urban areas.

The thirty-one magistrates in the Nineteenth District recorded 43,492 activity hours. The 119,935 transactions resulted in 99,188 processes issued, the highest number in the state. There were 22,626 arrest warrants issued for misdemeanors and 4,708 felony arrest warrants issued. Thirty-four percent of 7,335 of the bonds issued were secured and 14,219 were unsecured bonds. Other magistrate duties included the issuance of 120 subpoenas, 157 search warrants, 489 mental detention orders, 20,332 commitals and 19,230 releases. Prepayments were received for 6,430 traffic infractions and 870 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twentieth Judicial Circuit and District

The Northern Virginia counties of Fauquier, Loudoun, and Rappahannock are served by the Twentieth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 Census population of this area was 99,409 which included 31,228 juveniles. An increase of 25.2 percent in population is expected by 1990 which will raise the population to 124,500. The juvenile population is predicted to increase 11.7 percent to 34,881.

Three judgeships were authorized for the Twentieth Circuit. Serving in 1986 were Thomas D. Horne, William S. Robertson and Carleton Penn. James H. Chamblin filled the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Penn effective February 1, 1987. Judges Archibald M. Aiken, Jr., John Alexander and Charles B. Foley presided over the general district courts in 1986. Judge Foley replaced Judge Alexander who retired February 1, 1986. Judge A. Burke Hertz served in the juvenile court. Judge Jean H. Clements was elected to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge John P. Ryan from the juvenile and domestic relations court on January 28, 1986. District court judges utilized 178 substitute and retired, recalled judge days, an average of 50.9 days per judge.

The Twentieth Circuit experienced a 15.7 percent increase in commenced cases, which totaled 3,116 cases. Civil cases numbering 1,714 rose 10.9 percent and criminal cases rose 22.2 percent to 1,402 cases. The increase in civil cases was the result of a 19.8 percent increase in Fauquier and 9.3 percent in Loudoun while Rappahannock's civil caseload fell 31.6 percent. The caseload distribution of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 13 percent misdemeanor was weighted more heavily with felony and equity cases than the statewide percentages. The statewide caseload average per judge of 1,276 cases and the rural average per judge of 1,199 cases were above the average for the Twentieth Circuit of 1,039 cases. In civil cases, the average per judge of 571 cases was 121 cases below the state average and 54 cases behind the rural average. The circuit's average criminal caseload per judge of 467 cases was lower than both the statewide and rural averages of 584 and 574, respectively. The resultant statewide rankings for the circuit were 28th in the state for the total average caseload per judge, 21st for the average civil cases per judge and 25th for the average criminal caseload per judge. Almost 74 percent of the civil cases were concluded within twelve months of filing. Of the 1,094 criminal cases, 864 or 69.9 percent ended within five months. Pending cases rose 30.1 percent to a total of 3,028 cases.

New cases in the general district court rose 21.2 percent for 1986 as a result of increases in criminal (17.9%), traffic cases (23.6%), and civil cases (14.2%). Hearings (totaling 39,902) rose 21.5 percent in 1986. Of the 44,237 new cases, 12 percent (5,439) were criminal, 71 percent (31,329) were traffic and 17 percent (7,469) were civil. The traffic percentage was 17 percentage points higher than statewide. Loudoun carried 63 percent of the total caseload for the district, 66 percent of the criminal cases, 63 percent of the traffic and 60 percent of the civil cases. The average caseload per judge of 22,119 cases placed the district 14th statewide, 1,792 cases below the state average and 1,773 cases above the rural average. With an average criminal caseload of 2,720 cases, the district was below the state average of 3,842 cases and the rural average of 3,517 cases and placed 25th overall. The traffic caseload average per judge (15,665) was above the statewide (12,954) and rural (11,805) average and ranked the district 8th in the state. For civil cases, the average per judge (3,735) placed the district 28th overall, 3,380 cases below the state average and 1,290 cases behind the rural average.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court increased by 4.3 percent in 1986. Juvenile cases, which represented 70 percent of the caseload, grew by 12.3 percent, while adult cases dropped by 10.7 percent. Juvenile cases (totaling 3,004 district-wide) rose 22.4 percent in Loudoun and 10.7 percent in Rappahannock while decreasing 4.1 percent in Fauquier. Adult cases (1,272) experienced reductions of 25.6 percent and 18.1 percent in Fauquier and in Rappahannock and increased 0.9 percent in Loudoun. The average caseload per judge of 2,138 cases was below the statewide average (3.315) and the rural average (2,857) and placed the district 29th overall. For juvenile cases, the 1,502 average cases ranked the district 26th statewide, 571 cases below the state average and 196 cases behind the rural average. The Twentieth District ranked next to the last (31st) in terms of average adult caseload per judge of 636 cases and was well below the statewide and urban averages of 1,242 and 1,159 cases, respectively.

The district's nine magistrates recorded 9,352 activity hours. Of the 16,500 transactions, 14,260 processes were issued. Of the 5,265 arrest warrants issued, 88 percent (4,615) were for misdemeanors and the remaining 12 percent (650) were for felonies. Almost sixteen percent or 458 of the bonds issued were secured and 2,426 were unsecured. Other magistrate duties included the issuance of 69 subpoenas, 44 search warrants, 72 mental detention orders, 2,675 commitals, and 2,308 releases. Prepayments were received for 11 traffic infractions and 10 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-First Judicial Circuit and District

Henry and Patrick Counties and the city of Martinsville comprise the Twenty-First Judicial Circuit. According to the 1980 census, the number of residents was 93,450 which included a juvenile population of 26,573. By 1990, the population is projected to increase by 2.5 percent to 95,800 residents. The juvenile population is expected to decline by 14 percent down to 22,848.

The circuit court was served by Frank I. Richardson, Jr. and Kenneth M. Covington. Judges J. Frank Greenwalt, Jr. and Charles M. Stone presided in the general district court. The juvenile and domestic relations court was served by Junius P. Warren. The district courts utilized 41.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days, an average of 13.9 days per judge.

Commenced cases in the circuit rose 5.9 percent in 1986. The 1,138 new civil cases reflected a 3.1 percent increase as the 1,861 new criminal cases rose 7.7 percent. Civil cases increased 2.1 percent in Henry County, 8.8 percent in Patrick County, and 1.8 percent in Martinsville. Concluded cases (totaling 2,935) rose 13.4 percent due to increases of 54.1 percent in Patrick and 28.7 percent in Martinsville. The caseload distribution was 13 percent law, 25 percent equity, 30 percent felony and 32 percent misdemeanor, resulting in a higher percentage of criminal cases than the statewide caseload percentages of 24 percent law, 30 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. Civil cases in Henry County comprised 62.4 percent of the circuit's total civil cases and criminal cases in that county accounted for 49 percent of the total criminal cases. The average of 1,500 cases per judge ranked the circuit third in the state compared to the average statewide of 1,276 cases and the rural average of 1,199 cases. The average civil caseload per judge of 569 cases was lower than the statewide and rural averages of 692 and 652 cases, respectively, and placed the circuit 22nd overall. For criminal cases, the average per judge (931) was higher than the statewide average (584) and the rural average (574) and ranked the Twenty-First Circuit second in the state. Of the 1,111 concluded civil cases, 5 percent (56) ended by judge trial and 2.9 (32) percent were completed by jury trial. Within 12 months of filing, 67.3 percent of the civil cases were completed. Three hundred or 16.5 percent of the 1,824 concluded criminal cases were completed by judge trial while 2.3 percent ended by jury trial. Approximately 94 percent of the criminal cases ended within five months. Pending cases rose 3.2 percent over 1985 to a sum of 2,056 cases.

In 1986, the general district court experienced an 8.8 percent increase in new cases. Criminal cases (4,772) rose 5.6 percent while the 7,779 traffic cases reflected a 4.3 percent growth. Civil cases rose 12.6 percent to 12,855. The number of hearings (22,695) increased 2.8 percent over 1985. The districts's caseload composition of 19 percent criminal, 31 percent traffic and 51 percent civil indicated traffic caseload 23 percentage points lower than statewide and a 21 percent higher civil caseload. Traffic infractions comprised only 47 percent of the traffic cases compared to 82 percent statewide while traffic misdemeanors accounted for more than half of the traffic caseload as compared to a statewide percentage of 17 percent. The district ranked 31st statewide for average caseload per judge (12,703 cases), compared to 23,911 average cases statewide and 20,346 average cases per judge for rural areas. In civil cases, the district ranked twelfth statewide with an average per judge of 6,428 cases, below the state average of 7,115 and higher than the average for rural area of 5,025 cases.

The juvenile and domestic relations court experienced a 2.3 percent decline in new cases in 1986, due to an overall reduction in juvenile cases of 3.4 percent and in domestic relations cases of 1.4 percent. Of the 4,217 new cases, 48 percent (2,033) were juvenile and 52 percent (2,184) were adult cases, resulting in a higher percentage of domestic relations matters than statewide. The overall new case decline resulted from a 12.2 percent fall in Henry and a 6.6 percent decrease in Patrick while cases rose in Martinsville by 17.2 percent. In spite of its caseload decline, Henry County still recorded over half of the juvenile and adult cases for the district. The average caseload per judge of 4,217 cases placed the district fifth overall compared to a statewide average of 3,315 cases and a rural average of 2,857 cases. For juvenile cases, the average per judge was 2,033 cases, 40 cases below the state average and 335 cases above the rural average and placed the district 14th overall. The Twenty-First District ranked 2nd in the state for the average domestic relations caseload per judge of 2,184 cases, above both the state and rural averages of 1,242 and 1,159 cases respectively.

The nine magistrates in the Twenty-First District logged 10,266 activity hours. Transactions numbering 28,750 resulted in 26,412 processes being issued. Of the 5,502 arrest warrants issued, 4,731 were for misdemeanors and 771 were for felonies. Approximately 54.2 percent (1,330) of the bonds issued were secured while 45.8 percent (1,108) were unsecured. Other magistrate duties included the issuance of 4,911 subpoenas, 52 search warrants, 21 mental detention orders, 2,054 commitals and 1,841 releases. Prepayments were received for 22 traffic infractions and 14 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit and District

The Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Pittsylvania and Franklin counties and the city of Danville. The 1980 census recorded a total population of 147,529 residents of which 40,000 were juveniles. By 1990, the population is projected to increase 4 percent to 153,000 while the juvenile population is expected to decline by 8.1 percent to 36,746.

Serving the circuit court were Beverly A. Davis III, Samuel M. Hairston and James F. Ingram. Judges in the general district court were T. Ryland Dodson and William N. Alexander II. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations court were Spiros B. Skenderis and Robert F. Ward. Coleman B. Yeatts, Jr. filled the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Ward on January 1, 1987. The district courts utilized 60 substitute and recalled retired judge days, an average of 15 days per judge.

The 12.2 percent increase in commenced cases in the circuit courts was the result of a 2.4 percent decline in civil cases and a 23.9 percent increase in criminal cases. Of the 4,369 new cases, 61.3 percent (2,677) were criminal and the remaining 38.7 percent (1,692) were civil. Concluded cases totaling 4,019 rose 10.1 percent for 1986. The caseload composition of 14 percent law, 25 percent equity, 39 percent felony and 22 percent misdemeanor differed significantly from the statewide percentages of 24 percent law, 30 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. The average caseload per judge of 1,456 placed the circuit 4th in the state compared to 1,276 average cases statewide and 1,199 average cases per judge for rural areas. For civil cases, the average per judge of 564 cases was 128 cases below the statewide average and 61 cases below the rural average and ranked the circuit 25th overall. With an average criminal caseload per judge of 892 cases, the circuit ranked 3rd in the state, 308 cases above the state average and 318 cases higher than the rural average. Of the 1,589 concluded civil cases, 24.3 percent (386) were completed by judge trial and 2.3 percent (37) ended by jury trial. Eighty-seven percent of the civil cases were concluded within twelve months. For criminal cases concluded, 31.7 percent ended by judge trial and 5.7 percent were completed by jury trial. Of the 2,430 criminal cases concluded, 86.2 percent (2,094) ended within 5 months. Pending cases totaling 2,219 rose 22.3 percent over 1985.

The Twenty-Second District experienced an 11.9 percent increase in new cases in 1985. The 41,658 new cases were 22 percent criminal, 45 percent traffic, and 33 percent civil. New criminal cases rose 6.9 in the district. Traffic cases increased by 8.3 percent, the result of a 38.2 percent rise in Danville and a 3 percent increase in Franklin followed by a 9.2 percent decline in Pittsylvania. Civil cases rose 28.9 percent in Danville, 7.3 percent in Pittsylvania County and 5.5 percent in Franklin County, resulting in a 21.3 percent overall increase in civil cases. The average caseload per judge of 20,829 cases was below the statewide average of 23,911 cases and above the average for rural areas of 20,346 cases and ranked the Twenty-Second District 20th statewide. For criminal cases, the district's average cases per judge of 4,632 was higher than both the state and rural averages of 3,842 and 3,517, respectively and placed it fourth overall. Ranking twenty-fourth statewide for the average traffic cases per judge, the district's average of 9,362 cases was lower than the state average of 12,954 cases and the rural average of 11,805 cases. The average civil caseload per judge of 6,836 cases was 279 cases behind the state average and 1,811 cases higher than the rural average and ranked the district eleventh overall.

New cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court dropped 10.7 percent in 1986, due entirely to a 22.5 percent decrease in domestic relations cases. Juvenile cases experienced a slight 1.6 percent increase, 54 cases over 1985. Of the 6,209 new cases, 55 percent (3,428) pertained to juvenile matters and 45 percent (2,781) were domestic relations cases. The average caseload per judge (3,105) was below the statewide caseload average (3,315) and above the average for rural areas (2,857) and placed the district 21st overall. For juvenile cases, the average per judge of 1,714 cases was 359 cases below the state average and 16 cases higher than the rural average. Ranking fourteenth statewide for the average domestic relations cases per judge, the district's average of 1,391 cases was above the statewide and rural averages of 1,242 and 1,159 cases, respectively.

The eleven magistrates in the Twenty-Second District recorded 18,785 activity hours. Transactions totaling 42,418 resulted in 33,604 processes being issued. Ninety percent (7,927) of the 8,807 arrest warrants issued were for misdemeanors while 10% (880) were for felonies. Of the 6,098 bonds issued, 28 percent (1,706) were secured and 72% (4,392) were unsecured. Additional magistrate duties included the issuance of 415 subpoenas, 124 search warrants, 240 mental detention orders, 4,858 commitals, and 4,155 releases. Prepayments were received for 14 traffic infractions and 68 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Third Judicial Circuit and District

The Twenty-Third Circuit consists of the cities of Roanoke and Salem and Roanoke County. In 1980, the population of this area was 197,123 persons of which 49,895 were juveniles. By 1990, the population is expected to increase 4.5 percent to 205,900. The number of juveniles is projected to decline to 46,904.

Five judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Third Circuit. Serving in 1986 were Ernest W. Ballou, Jack B. Coulter, Kenneth E. Trabue, Roy B. Willett, and G. O. Clemens. Judge Ballou retired at the end of 1986. His position was filled by Clifford R. Weckstein. The district court judges in 1986 were George W. Harris, Julian H. Raney, Jr., Edward S. Kidd, Jr., John L. Apostolou, and James P. Brice. Judge Brice retired in January, 1987. Diane McQ. Strictland was selected to fill the vacancy. The general district court judges provided regular assistance to the judges of the 27th District. Three judges are authorized for the J&DR courts. Presiding in 1986 were James W. Flippin, Frederick L. Hoback, Jr., and Philip Trompeter. The district court judges used 174.2 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges in FY 86, an average of 21.8 days per judge. The state average was 24.1 days per judge.

The caseload in the Twenty-Third's Circuit courts increased 20 percent in 1986. Civil cases commenced increased by 19.7 percent while criminal cases commenced jumped 20.3 percent. The number of total cases concluded rose 30.8 percent. Caseload increases occurred in each of the localities. The caseload distribution was 21 percent law, 30 percent equity, 35 percent felony and 14 percent misdemeanor. The percentage for felonies was somewhat higher than the statewide percentage (29%). The judges in the Twenty-Third averaged 1,385 commenced cases each in 1986, the 6th highest in the state. They ranked 11th in terms of civil cases per judge with 707 and ranked 7th in terms of criminal cases per judge (678 cases). The 1,448 cases concluded per judge was third highest among the 31 circuits, 253 cases higher than the state average and 193 cases per judge greater than the average for urban circuits. At the end of 1986, there was an average of 1,276 cases pending per judge in the Twenty-Third, above the statewide average of 1,212 but below the average for urban circuits of 1,313. Surprisingly, the judges in the Twenty-Third had an increase of 28.6 percent in juries impaneled although the per judge average was only 22, well below the state (33) and urban (31) averages. Of the 3,883 civil cases concluded in 1986, 42.5 percent ended by a trial by judge while only one percent reached conclusion by a jury trial. Statewide, only 15.3 percent ended by a judge trial although 1.9 percent were concluded by a jury trial. Over half of the civil cases concluded ended within 12 months of filing. Statewide, 62.6 percent were so terminated. Almost one-fourth of the criminal cases concluded had a judge trial while jury trials represented another 5.6 percent.

In the general district courts, total new cases increased 4.3 percent in 1986. Traffic cases jumped 12 percent while new criminal cases rose 8.3 percent. The number of civil cases fell 7.2 percent. The total number of hearings increased almost 10 percent, reaching 91,919 in 1986. Total new cases, criminal cases and total hearings increased in each of the localities. Criminal cases represented 23 percent of the Twenty-Third district's caseload while traffic cases accounted for 45 percent and civil 32 percent. Statewide, the caseload distribution was 16 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic, and 30 percent civil. The judges in the Twenty-Third averaged 20,057 new cases each in 1986, below the state average of 23,911 and the urban district average of 27,080. The district had the 3rd highest average number of criminal cases per judge (4,665) while it ranked 25th in terms of traffic cases per judge (with 8,972). There were 6,420 civil cases per judges in the Twenty-Third, 695 cases fewer than the statewide average and 2,553 cases fewer than the average for urban districts.

The caseload of the juvenile and domestic relations courts increased 3.8 percent due to a 4.6 rise in juvenile cases and a 2.2 percent increase in domestic relations cases. The district's caseload distribution was 65 percent juvenile and 35 percent domestic relations, containing a slightly higher percentage of juvenile cases than districts statewide. The judges in the J&DR courts averaged 3,658 cases, ranking 12th among the 32 districts. The 2,394 juvenile cases per judge was the 8th highest in the state although the Twenty-Third district ranked 20th in terms of domestic relations cases per judge. The district's caseload averages were above the statewide average but fell below the average for urban districts.

The 12 magistrates in the Twenty-Third District reported 63,113 transactions in 1986, an increase of 2.8 percent. The number of processes issued also increased, from 50,696 in 1985 to 52,572 in 1986. The Twenty-Third district ranked 5th in the state for the number of processes issued. The magistrates issued 18,211 arrest warrants (2,783 felony, 15,428 misdemeanor) and processed 8,810 bonds. Almost 31 percent of the bonds issued were secured. Other magistrate activity included the issuance of 178 search warrants, 228 detention orders, 10 civil warrants, 1,819 subpoenas. The magistrates also processed 11,332 commitals to and 10,037 releases from jail. They also accepted prepayment for 86 traffic infractions and 29 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Fourth Judicial Circuit and District

The Twenty-Fourth Circuit serves the counties of Amherst, Bedford, Campbell, and Nelson as well as the cities of Bedford and Lynchburg. In 1980, the population of this area was 194,411. By 1990, it is projected that the population will increase to 214,800, a 10.5 percent jump. Population increases are expected to occur in all of the localities. The 1980 population included 52,538 juveniles. The number of juveniles is expected to decline by 1990 to 51,825.

Four judges serve the Twenty-Fourth Circuit. In 1986, Judges J. Samuel Johnston, Jr., Robert C. Goad, William W. Sweeney, and Richard S. Miller presided in the circuit courts. Four judgeships also are authorized for the general district courts. Serving in 1986 were James S. Farmer, Jesse C. Crumbley III, Coy M. Kiser, Jr., and Paul Whitehead, Jr. The three judges presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations courts were Lawrence Janow, W. Raymond Minnix, and Dale H. Harris. The district courts used 144 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges in FY 86, an average of 20.6 days per judge. The statewide average was 24.1 days per judge.

In the circuit courts, 5,245 cases were commenced in 1986, an increase of 4.2 percent from 1985. Civil cases rose by 5.6 percent while criminal cases increased 2.7 percent. The number of cases concluded jumped 10.9 percent and totaled 5,048. Law cases accounted for 23 percent of the circuit's caseload, while equity cases made up another 28 percent. Over one-third (35%) of the total cases were felony cases while 14 percent were misdemeanors. Statewide, the distribution was 24 percent law, 30 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanors. The judges in the Twenty-Fourth Circuit averaged 1,311 commenced cases each, the 14th highest caseload average in the state. They averaged 669 civil cases and 643 criminal cases, ranking 16th and 9th respectively. The 1,262 cases concluded was the 9th highest average among the 31 circuits. The judges averaged 745 pending cases each at the end of 1986, the 3rd lowest such average in the state. Of the 2,478 civil cases concluded, 24 percent were terminated after a judge trial while 3.1 percent ended by a trial by jury. Statewide, only 15.3 percent were concluded by a judge trial and only 1.9 percent ended by a jury trial. Of the 2,570 criminal cases concluded, over 30 percent were ended by a trial by judge while jury trials accounted for another 5.3 percent. Statewide, judge trials accounted for less than 24 percent of the criminal cases concluded while jury trials made up another 5.6 percent. Over 80 percent of the civil cases concluded ended within 12 months of filing while statewide only 63 percent did so. Only the Twenty-Second Circuit concluded a higher percentage of civil cases within 12 months. The Twenty-Fourth concluded 83 percent of the criminal cases within 5 months of initiation. This is similar to the percentage concluded within that time frame statewide.

New cases in the general district courts increased 4.3 percent in 1986 and totaled 62,365. Traffic cases rose 6.3 percent while civil cases increased 3.4 percent. New criminal cases rose by about one percent. Total new cases increased in all the localities except Bedford where a 1.5 percent decline was reported. The caseload distribution in the Twenty-Fourth District was 21 percent criminal, 49 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil cases. Compared to district courts statewide, the Twenty-Fourth had a higher proportion of criminal cases and fewer traffic cases. Within the category of traffic cases, the Twenty-Fourth also had a much smaller proportion of infractions than did districts statewide. The judges in this district averaged 17,234 cases each, ranking 26th among the 32 districts. This average was well below both the state average (23,911 cases) and the average for rural districts (20,345 cases). The district ranked 17th in terms of criminal cases per judge (3,573 cases), 26th in traffic cases per judge (8,424 cases), and 18th in terms of civil cases per judge.

The caseload in the juvenile and domestic relations courts declined by a 3.8 percent in 1986. Total new cases fell from 9,722 in 1985 to 9,350 in 1986. New juvenile cases rose 2.9 percent while domestic relations cases fell 12.1 percent. The number of J&DR hearings dropped 8.3 percent. Sixty percent of the J&DR cases in the Twenty-Fourth were juvenile cases. Statewide, the distribution was 62 percent juvenile and 38 percent domestic relations. The Twenty-Fourth ranked 20th in the state with regard to new J&DR cases per judge (3,117 cases) and 17th in terms of hearings per judge (5,913). The judges averaged 1,878 juvenile cases per judge, below the state average but above the average for rural districts. Although the number of domestic relations cases dropped in 1986, the average of 1,239 cases was only slightly below the statewide average of 1,242 cases.

The 18 magistrates in the Twenty-Fourth issued 27,177 processes in response to 33,685 requests. Transactions declined 3.3 percent in 1986 while the number of processes issued fell by 2.9 percent. The magistrates issued 10,892 arrest warrants and 2,476 summonses in 1986. Of the 7,063 bonds processed, 1,036 or 14.7 percent were secured. Other magistrate activities included the issuance of 146 search warrants, 103 detention orders, 13 civil warrants, and 2,692 subpoenas. Magistrates also processed 2,060 commitals to and 1,586 releases from jail in addition to accepting prepayment for 102 traffic infractions and 44 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Fifth Judicial Circuit and District

The Twenty-Fifth Circuit encompasses the counties of Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Craig, Highland and Rockbridge as well as the cities of Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lexington, Staunton, and Waynesboro. The 1980 census reported that this area had 187,295 residents which included a juvenile population of 49,309. By 1990, the population is expected to increase by 4.1 percent to 194,000 residents. An 8.3 percent decline to 45,215 is projected for the juvenile population.

Four judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Fifth Circuit. Serving in 1986 were Rudolph Bumgardner III, Thomas H. Wood, Duncan M. Byrd, Jr., and George E. Honts III. Judges Joseph E. Hess, Elmer C. Westerman, Jr., William E. Carson, Sr., and Talmage N. Cooley presided in the general district courts and continued to receive assistance from the Twenty-Fourth District. Continuing to serve the juvenile and domestic relations court were Robert S. Culpepper, John B. Curry II and Harrison May. The district court judges in the Twenty-Fifth used 127.6 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges FY 86, an average of 18.2 days per judge. The state average was 24.1 days per judge.

The courts in the circuit reported a total increase of 6.7 percent in commenced cases. Of the 4,633 new cases, 2,332 pertained to civil matters, which reflected a four percent rise over 1985. During the same time period 2,301 criminal caseswere commenced, a 9.5 percent increase for 1986. The caseload distribution for the circuit was 18 percent law, 32 percent equity, 33 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. The highest percentages in caseload for the circuit were recorded for Augusta which accounted for 22.6 percent of the total cases and 29.3 percent of the civil caseload and Rockbridge which recorded 21.5 percent of all the criminal cases in the circuit. The average total caseload per judge (1,158) was lower than the average for the state (1,276) and that for rural areas (1,199), and ranked the circuit 22nd in the state. For civil cases, the average per judge of 583 cases was 109 cases below the state average and 42 behind the rural average, resulting in a 10th standing statewide. The circuit placed thirteenth statewide in terms of the average number of criminal cases per judge of 575, compared to the statewide and rural averages of 584 cases and 574 cases, respectively. Of the 2,357 civil cases concluded, 16.3 percent were completed by judge trial and 1.6 percent by jury trial. Approximately 64 percent of the civil cases concluded ended within one year of filing. Eighty-seven, or 4.1 percent, of the 2,143 criminal cases concluded were disposed by jury trial while 29.5 percent (633) were completed by judge trial. Thirty-nine percent of the criminal cases were concluded within five months. By the end of 1986, there were 5,203 pending cases, a slight 2.6 increase over 1985.

New cases in the general district courts increased 7 percent to total 70,390 in 1986. The 11,894 criminal cases reflected a 13.3 percent increase over 1985. There was a 6.3 percent rise in traffic cases which reached a total of 48,424 cases. Civil cases (totaling 10,612) rose only 1.6 percent. The caseload distribution was 17 percent criminal, 68 percent traffic and 15 percent civil. The district's traffic caseload percentage was 14 percentage points higher than the traffic caseload distribution statewide, while the percentage of civil cases was 15 percentage points lower than the state's. The 17,962 total cases in Botetourt County comprised 25 percent of the district's total caseload. The average total caseload per judge of 16,120 gave the Twenty-Fifth District a rank of 28th statewide. For criminal cases, the 2,703 average cases per judge was 1,139 cases below the statewide average and 814 cases below the rural average per judge resulting in a 26th statewide ranking. The 11,005 average traffic cases per judge ranked the district 18th overall.

The 6,992 new cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court rose a slight 1.8 percent over 1985. Juvenile cases rose 14 percent, while domestic relations cases declined at the same rate. Juvenile cases numbering 4,420 comprised 63 percent of the caseload and the remaining 2,572 (37%) pertained to domestic relations matters. Nine localities reported increases in juvenile cases with Buena Vista recording the largest increase of 40.9 percent. In contrast, eight of the jurisdictions reported reductions in domestic relations cases. The Twenty-Fifth District ranked 28th in the state in terms of the average caseload per judge (2,331). This was below the statewide (3,315) and rural (2,857) averages per judge for total cases. For juvenile cases the average per judge of 1,473 ranked the district 27th overall. The 857 average domestic relations cases per judge resulted in a statewide rank of 29, again below the state and urban averages of 1,242 cases and 1,159 cases, respectively.

The twenty-six magistrates in the Twenty-Fifth District recorded 24,399 activity hours. The 29,712 transactions resulted of 25,597 processes being issued. A total of 10,375 misdemeanor arrest warrants were issued along with 1,736 felony arrest warrants. Of the 5,169 bonds issued, 21.1 percent were secured and 78.9 percent were unsecured. Magistrates issued 715 subpoenas, 115 search warrants, 202 mental detention orders, 3,580 commitals and 2,922 releases. Prepayments were received for 30 traffic infractions and 7 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Sixth Judicial Circuit and District

The Twenty-Sixth Circuit serves the counties of Clarke, Frederick, Page, Rockingham, Shenandoah, and Warren as well as the cities of Rockingham and Winchester. In 1980, the population of this area was 209,201 residents. By 1990, this population is expected to grow to 236,900, an increase of 13.2 percent. Population growth is projected for all of the localities served by the Twenty-Sixth. The 1980 population of this area included 54,937 juveniles. This is expected to rise 0.8 percent by 1990 to 55,375.

Four judges are authorized for the Twenty-Sixth Circuit courts. Serving in 1986 were Henry H. Whiting, Joshua L. Robinson, Robert K. Woltz, and Perry W. Sarver. In April, 1987, Judge Whiting was named to the Supreme Court of Virginia. Four judgeships are also authorized for the general district courts. Serving were Judges David G. Simpson, Norman DeV. Morrison, John A. Paul, and John F. Ewell. Judge Ewell replaced Judge R. E. Hayes who retired in January, 1986. Carle F. Germelman, Jr. and B. Beverly Bowers presided in the juvenile and domestic relations courts. The district court judges used 157.8 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges in FY 1986, an average of 28.7 days per judge. Statewide, the average was 24.1 days per judge.

The caseload of the circuit courts fell in 1986. Cases commenced declined by 2.0 percent while the number of cases concluded dropped by 8.6 percent. Civil cases commenced increased by 1.4 percent but this was more than offset by a 5.6 percent decrease in criminal cases commenced. Total cases commenced increased in Clarke, Winchester, Frederick, and Rockingham/Harrisonburg but declined in Page, Shenandoah, and Warren counties. The judges in the Twenty-Sixth averaged 1,075 cases commenced each in 1986, ranking 27th among the 31 circuits. This average was below both the statewide average (1,276 cases) and the average for rural circuits (1,199 cases). The 935 cases concluded per judge was the 28th highest in the state. The number of juries impaneled per judge was 44 in the Twenty-Sixth Circuit, above the statewide average of 33 juries per judge. While the distribution of cases between civil and criminal was similar to that statewide, the Twenty-Sixth had a much greater percentage of felony cases. Of the 2,007 civil cases concluded in 1986, 14 percent ended by a judge trial while 1.5 percent were completed by a trial by jury. More than 70 percent of the civil cases were concluded within 12 months of filing while statewide only 63 percent ended within that time frame. Of the 1,731 criminal cases concluded, judge trials accounted for 10.2 percent while 9.4 percent ended by a jury trial. Statewide, almost 24 percent of the criminal cases concluded were completed by a judge trial but only 5.6 percent ended by a trial by jury.

The caseload in the general district courts increased 17 percent in 1986, from 80,367 new cases in 1985 to 86,303 in 1986. New civil cases increased almost 31 percent while criminal cases jumped 28.1 percent and traffic cases rose 9.7 percent. The number of hearings held increased by 6.1 percent. New traffic cases accounted for 59 percent of the caseload in the Twenty-Sixth while civil cases made up 24 percent. Statewide only 54 percent of the new cases were traffic cases while 30 percent were civil cases. Total new cases increased in all of the localities except Clarke with the largest percentage increases occurring in Winchester (70.6%) and Page (18.8%). The judges of the Twenty-Sixth averaged 21,576 total cases each in 1986, below the statewide average of 23,911 but above the average for rural districts (20,346). Among the 32 districts, the Twenty-Sixth ranked 17th. The judges averaged 3,842 criminal cases, 12,778 traffic cases, and 5,144 civil cases ranking 16th, 14th and 20th, respectively. In terms of hearings per judge, the 20,308 in the Twenty-Sixth ranked 20th in the state.

In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, total new cases rose 0.9 percent. New juvenile cases jumped 15.3 percent while domestic relations cases dropped by 19.8 percent. Caseloads increased in Clarke (39%), Winchester (14%), and Rockingham/Harrisonburg (9.1%) while declining in the other localities. Of the 5,296 new J&DR cases, 68 percent involved juvenile matters while 32 percent were domestic relations cases. Statewide, 62 percent of the J&DR caseload was made up by juvenile cases. The judges in the Twenty-Sixth averaged 3,942 J&DR cases each in 1986, above the state average of 3,315 and the average for rural districts of 2,857. Thus the Twenty-Sixth had the 9th highest J&DR caseload per judge. The Twenty-Sixth ranked 6th in terms of juvenile cases per judge (with 2,648 cases) and 19th for domestic relations cases per judge (with 1,274). In both cases, the Twenty-Sixth exceeded the statewide average. However, the 5,379 hearings held per judge was below the state average of 6,053 hearings.

The 26th District has 17 authorized magistrates. In 1986, these magistrates issued 32,037 processes in response to 38,153 requests. The district ranked 14th in terms of the number of processes issued. The number of transactions increased 8.9 percent while processes issued rose 8 percent. The magistrates issued 13,489 arrest warrants and 2,504 summonses. Of the 7,482 bonds issued, 20 percent (1,498) were secured. In addition, the magistrates issued 171 search warrants, 399 detention orders, 7 civil warrants, and 102 subpoenas. They processed 4,315 commitals to and 3,208 releases from jail and accepted prepayment for 31 traffic infractions and 59 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Seventh Judicial Circuit and District

The Twenty-Seventh Circuit serves the Counties of Bland, Carroll, Floyd, Giles, Grayson, Montgomery, Pulaski, and Wythe along with the Cities of Galax and Radford. In 1980, the population of this area was 223,628 persons. By 1990, the population is expected to grow to 240,600, an increase of 7.6 percent. The population of each locality is expected to increase by 1990 with the largest increases occurring in Montgomery and Carroll Counties. The juvenile population of the Twenty-Seventh circuit and district is expected to be 54,299 in 1990, a decline of 2.8 percent from 1980.

Four circuit judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Seventh Circuit. In 1986, the circuit was served by Judges Kenneth I. Devore, A. Dow Owens, Duane E. Mink, and Willis A. Woods. There are three judgeships authorized for the general district courts. Serving in 1986 were George B. Cooley, James H. Joines, and John C. Snidow, Jr. Judge Snidow retired January 1, 1987 and was replaced by Thomas D. Frith, Jr. The judges in the general district courts also receive assistance from the judges of the Twenty-Seventh District (0.6 judges) and from the judges in the Twenty-Ninth District (0.65 judges). However, the 1987 General Assembly created an additional general district court judgeship effective February 1988. The juvenile and domestic relations courts are authorized three judgeships and were served by Judges William F. Thomas, Jr., Jacque Wayne Pierce, and James L. Tompkins. The district court judges in the Twenty-Seventh used 130.6 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges in FY 1986, an average of 43.5 days per judge. This was the second highest average among the 32 districts. The state average was 24.1 days.

Circuitwide, the number of cases commenced increased 3.8 percent in 1986. Civil cases rose by 5.6 percent while the number of criminal cases increased 1.8 percent. However, the number of cases concluded fell by 2 percent. Total commenced cases increased in all of the localities except Giles and Wythe. The circuit's caseload distribution was 20 percent law, 35 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 14 percent misdemeanor. Compared to the statewide distribution, the Twenty-Seventh has a higher percentage of equity and felony cases. The judges in the Twenty-Seventh averaged 1,268 commenced cases in 1986, slightly below the state average (1,276 cases) but above the average for rural circuits of 1,199. The judges concluded an average of 1,192 cases and presided over an average of 29 impaneled juries. Of the 2,509 civil cases concluded in 1986, 8.3 percent were disposed by a trial by judge. Statewide, 15.3 percent of civil cases concluded were terminated by a judge trial. Almost 70 percent of the civil cases concluded ended within 12 months of filing compared to 63 percent statewide. Of the 2,260 criminal cases concluded, 14 percent were disposed by judge trials and another 3.4 percent were concluded by a jury trial. Statewide, almost 24 percent of all criminal cases concluded were disposed by judge trials while 5.6 percent were terminated by jury trials.

The number of new cases in the general districts courts increased 5.9 percent in 1986. New civil cases jumped 15.7 percent, criminal cases rose 10.6 percent, while traffic cases increased by 1.3 percent. Except in Bland, Carroll and Grayson Counties, there were increases in total new cases in each of the localities. Of the 86,528 new cases reported in the Twenty-Seventh, 59 percent were traffic cases, 22 percent were civil cases, while 18 percent were criminal cases. Statewide, civil cases made up 30 percent of all new cases while traffic cases accounted for 54 percent and criminal 16 percent. The judges in the Twenty-Seventh General District courts averaged 20,360 new cases each in 1986. This was below the state average of 23,911 but above the average for rural districts of 20,346. The Twenty-Seventh averaged more criminal and traffic cases per judge than the rural average but fewer civil cases. The number of hearings held in the Twenty-Seventh increased by 5.6 percent.

In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, total new cases decreased by 1.8 percent due to a 6.7 percent drop in domestic relations cases. The number of juvenile cases increased by 1.5 percent. While the total number of domestic relations cases fell, the number of domestic relations felonies jumped by almost 27 percent. The J&DR judges in the Twenty-Seventh averaged 2,344 cases and 4,099 hearings in 1986. These averages were below both the statewide and rural district averages. In relation to the 32 districts, the Twenty-Seventh ranked 26th in total J&DR cases per judge, 28th in terms of juvenile cases per judge and 27th in domestic relations cases per judge. However, they ranked 9th in the number of domestic relations felonies per judge. The number of J&DR hearings declined by 2.3 percent in 1986 to 12,296.

The 28 magistrates in the Twenty-Seventh District issued 54,701 processes in response to 66,051 requests in 1986. This represented a 4.3 increase in the number of processes issued and a 6.3 percent rise in transactions. The Twenty-Seventh had the 4th highest number of processes issued among the 32 districts. The magistrates issued 21,137 arrest warrants and summonses and processed 11,160 bonds. Of the bonds issued, 23.3 percent were secured. The Twenty-Seventh's magistrates also issued 122 search warrants, 237 detention orders, 4,135 civil warrants, 2,402 subpoenas, processed 7,554 commitals to and 7,405 releases from jail, and accepted 318 prepayments for traffic infractions and 231 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Eighth Circuit and District

The Twenty-Eighth circuit serves the counties of Smyth and Washington and the city of Bristol. The 1980 population of this area was 98,895 residents and is expected to increase to 103,400 by 1990, an increase of 13.6 percent. Population increases are anticipated in Smyth and Washington Counties while Bristol is expected to experience a decline in total population. In 1980, 26,953 juveniles resided in the Twenty-Eighth circuit. By 1990, this number is expected to decrease to 25,464.

Two judgeships are authorized for the Twenty-Eighth Circuit. Serving in 1896 were Charles B. Flannagan II, J. Aubrey Mathews, and Charles H. Smith, Jr. Judge Smith replaced Judge Mathews who retired in August, 1986. Serving the general districts courts were David D. Brown and T. L. Hutton, Jr. In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, judges Eugene E. Lohman, Charles H. Smith, Jr., and Paul D. Greer presided. Judge Greer replaced Judge Smith who was appointed to the circuit bench. The district court judges in the Twenty-Eighth used 59.4 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges in FY 1986, an average of 14.9 days per judge. This was well below the statewide average of 24.1 days per judge.

There were 2,182 cases commenced in the Twenty-Eighth Circuit in 1986, an increase of 5.6 percent. Civil cases rose by 7.7 percent while criminal cases increased 2.4 percent. The number of cases concluded totalled 2,322, an increase of 20.3 percent. Increases in total cases commenced were experienced in Washington County (15.5%) and Bristol (19.7%) while Smyth County reported a 16 percent decline in caseload. Circuitwide, the number of pending cases dropped 10 percent and the number of juries impaneled fell 15.2 percent. The caseload distribution was 26 percent law, 35 percent equity, 30 percent felony, and 8 percent misdemeanor. Thus, the Twenty-Eighth's caseload was more heavily weighted with civil cases than the statewide distribution of 24 percent law, 30 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. The judges in the Twenty-Eighth averaged 1,091 cases each in 1986, below both the statewide average (1,276) and the average for rural circuits (1,199). The circuit ranked 15th in terms of civil cases per judge (670 cases) and was above the average for rural circuits. The Twenty-Eighth was below the statewide and urban averages in terms of criminal cases per judge (421). The judges in the circuit averaged 1,161 cases concluded each in 1986, below the state average but above the average for rural circuits. Of the 1,340 civil cases concluded, 15.6 percent ended by a trial by judge while 1.5 percent were terminated after a jury trial. Statewide, 15.3 percent of all civil cases concluded ended in a judge trial while juries concluded 1.9 percent. In criminal cases, 16.3 percent of the 982 cases concluded were disposed by judge trials while 4.9 were concluded by jury trials. These percentages were below the statewide percentages of 23.7 percent jury trials and 5.6 percent jury trials.

The caseload in the general district courts increased 6.7 percent in 1986, totalling 26,507 cases. Civil cases increased 16.7 percent while traffic cases rose 6.4 percent. New criminal cases increased 0.6 percent. The number of hearings held rose by 4.7 percent. Caseload increases were recorded in all of the three localities. Smyth had the largest percentage increase (10.2%) while Bristol's caseload rose 3.4 percent and Washington's caseload increased 2.2 percent. The judges in the Twenty-Eighth averaged 13,254 cases each in 1986, well below the state and rural district averages. The district ranked 31st in terms of civil cases per judge, 28th in terms of traffic cases per judge, and 21st in criminal cases per judge. The district ranked 31st in the number of hearings held per judge, holding 11,319 fewer hearings per judge than the statewide average and 6,927 fewer than the average for rural districts. The distribution of new cases in the Twenty-Eighth was 25 percent criminal, 56 percent traffic, and 19 percent civil. Statewide, 16 percent of the new cases were criminal matters, 54 percent were traffic, and 30 percent were civil.

There were 4,901 new juvenile and domestic relations cases initiated in 1986, a drop of almost 12 percent. The number of juvenile cases rose by 7.2 percent while domestic relations cases fell 32.4 percent. The number of hearings dropped 5.8 percent. The increase in juvenile cases was due entirely to a 23.9 percent increase in Washington County. Juvenile cases in both Smyth County and Bristol fell in 1986. The number of domestic relations cases declined in all three localities. The J&DR judges in the Twenty-Eighth averaged 2,451 new cases each in 1986 below both the statewide average (3,315 cases) and the average for rural districts (2,857 cases). The judges averaged 1,545 juvenile cases (ranking 25th among the 32 districts) and 906 domestic relations cases each (ranking the district 26th in the state).

The 10 magistrates in the Twenty-Eighth District reported a 9.6 percent increase in the number of transactions and an 8.1 percent rise in processes issued. The magistrates issued 23,201 processes in response to 27,213 requests. They issued 7,457 arrest warrants, 361 summonses, and 4,811 bonds. Of the bonds issued, one-third were secured. In addition, the magistrates issued 11 search warrants, 209 detention orders, 9 civil warrants and 1,866 subpoenas. They processed 4,243 commitals to and 4,176 releases from jail. Prepayment was accepted for 1 traffic infraction and 37 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Twenty-Ninth Circuit and District

The Twenty-Ninth Circuit serves the counties of Buchanan, Dickenson, Russell and Tazewell. In 1986, the counties of Bland and Giles were transferred from the jurisdiction of the Twenty-Ninth to that of the Twenty-Seventh. The 1980 population of the four localities in the Twenty-Ninth was 140,067 persons, an increase of 24.5 percent from 1970. By 1990, the population is expected to grow another 7.9 percent to 151,000 persons. The juvenile population of this area was 44,569 in 1980 and is expected to increase to 46,761 by 1990.

Three judgeships are currently authorized for the Twenty-Ninth Circuit. Serving in 1986 were judges Nicholas E. Persin, Donald A. McGlothin, Jr., and Donald R. Mullins. Judge Mullins replaced Judge Robert Lee Powell who retired in February 1986. Three judgeships also are authorized for the general district courts. Serving are Judges Thomas J. Bondurant, Frederick H. Combs, and Keary B. Williams. These judges also provide assistance to the judges of the 27th general district courts. The juvenile and domestic relations courts are authorized to have two judges. Judges J. Wesley McClintock III and Susan Bundy presided in the J&DR courts in 1986. The district court judges in the Twenty-Ninth District used 98.8 days for substitute and retired, recalled judges in FY 1986, an average of 20.2 days per judge.

The number of commenced cases in the circuit court declined 1.2 percent, from 3,367 in 1985 to 3,327 in 1986. Civil cases decreased 1.5 percent while criminal cases fell 0.5 percent. The number of cases concluded dropped substantially (-27.5%) from 3,946 cases in 1985 to 2,861 in 1986. The caseload distribution in the Twenty-Ninth was 34 percent law, 33 percent equity, 18 percent felony, and 13 percent misdemeanor. This distribution is quite different from the statewide distribution of 29 percent law, 30 percent equity, 29 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor. Of the 1,697 civil cases concluded in 1986, 8.4 percent ended by a trial by judge while another 2.1 percent were concluded by a jury trial. Statewide, 15.3 percent of the civil cases concluded ended by a judge trial while 1.9 percent were terminated by a trial by jury. More than seventy percent of the civil cases concluded were disposed within 12 months of filing. Statewide, only 63 percent were concluded within that time frame. There were 1,164 criminal cases concluded in 1986, of which 8.3 percent ended by a trial by judge while 14.1 percent were concluded by a jury trial. Statewide, almost 24 percent of the criminal cases concluded ended by a judge trial while jury trials accounted for another 5.6 percent of the criminal cases concluded. The judges of the Twenty-Ninth Circuit averaged 1,109 commenced cases each in 1986, below both the state and rural circuit averages. The Twenty-Ninth ranked 10th in terms of civil cases per judge and 31st in terms of criminal cases per judge. This circuit averaged 58 juries impaneled per judge, the second highest such average among the 31 circuits.

In the general district courts, the number of new cases increased 12.1 percent. Civil cases jumped 21.1 percent, criminal cases rose by 9.2 percent while traffic cases increased 6.2 percent. The total caseload increased in each of the four localities. The Twenty-Ninth District averaged 15,165 cases per judge in 1986. The judges of the Twenty-Ninth averaged 3,486 criminal cases, 5,942 traffic cases, and 5,737 civil cases each. These averages were below those of judges statewide and, with the exception of the civil caseload per judge average, were below the averages for judges in rural districts. The caseload distribution in the Twenty-Ninth also was quite different from the district statewide distributuion. In the Twenty-Ninth District, 23 percent of the caseload was made up of criminal cases while 39 percent were traffic cases and 38 percent were civil cases. Statewide, traffic cases accounted for over half (54%) of all new cases while civil cases represented 30 percent and criminal cases 16 percent.

New cases in the J&DR courts increased 4.8 percent, from 5,746 in 1985 to 6,024 in 1986. New juvenile cases increased 7.6 percent while domestic relations rose by 1.4 percent. Juvenile hearings increased by 12.4 percent. Compared to J&DR courts statewide, the Twenty-Ninth District had a larger proportion of domestic relations cases (43 percent vs 38 percent). The judges of the Twenty-Ninth averaged 3,012 juvenile cases and 1,289 domestic relations cases in 1986. Thus, they had more domestic relations cases and fewer juvenile cases per judges than the statewide average. Overall, the Twenty-Ninth ranked 23rd among the 32 districts in terms of J&DR cases per judge.

Serving the courts of the Twenty-Ninth District are 14 magistrates. In 1986, these magistrates issued 34,214 processes in response to 39,026 requests. This was an 8.9 percent increase in transactions and an 8.3 percent rise in processes issued. The Twenty-Ninth ranked 11th among the 32 districts in number of processes issued. They issued 8,961 arrest warrants and summonses as well a 5,695 bonds. Over one-third of the bonds issued were secured. The magistrates of the Twenty-Ninth also issued 24 search warrants, 108 detention orders, 8,104 civil warrants, and 1,444 subpoenas. They also processed 4,866 commitals to and 4,554 releases from jail and payment for 134 traffic infractions and 324 Class 4 misdemeanors.

Thirtieth Circuit and District

Three counties, Lee, Scott, and Wise, and one city, Norton are served by the Thirtieth Judicial Circuit. In 1980, the population of this area was 99,644 persons. By 1990, it is projected that the population will grow 9.5 percent to 109,100. The juvenile population, which was 29,586 in 1980, is expected to increase to 31,370 by 1990.

The Thirtieth Circuit courts are authorized 3 judgeships. Serving in 1986 were William C. Fugate, John Robert Stump, Robert T. Winston, Jr. and M. M. Long. Judge Winston replaced Judge Long who retired in February 1986. Two judgeships are authorized for the general district courts. Serving in 1986 were Judges R. Larry Lewis and Montie S. Meeks. Judge Meeks retired April 1, 1987 and has been replaced by James C. Roberson. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations courts were David B. Summerfield and James C. Roberson. Judge Roberson, who moved to the general district courts, has been replaced by Judge Suzanne Fulton. The district court judges in the Thirtieth District used 92.6 days for substitute and recalled judges in FY 1986, an average of 23.2 days per judge. The state average was 24.1 days per judge.

There were 3,029 cases commenced in the Thirtieth Circuit in 1986, an increase of 3.2 percent from 1985. Criminal cases commenced rose 8 percent while the number of civil cases commenced declined by 1 percent. However, the number of cases concluded jumped 10.3 percent. Caseload increases occurred in Scott (18.2%) and Wise (2.3%) while the total caseload declined in Lee County (-4.0%). Twenty-two percent of the cases were law cases, 29 percent were equity cases, 19 percent were felony cases, and 29 percent were misdemeanors. Statewide, 20 percent of the cases involved law matters, 35 percent were equity cases, 32 percent involved felonies and 14 percent were misdemeanors. The judges in the Thirtieth averaged 1,010 cases each in 1986. This was below the state and rural circuit averages and ranked the circuit 29th among the 31 circuits. The 901 cases concluded per judge was the second lowest average in the state. The Thirtieth Circuit had the 2nd highest number of pending cases per judge (1,800). Of the 1,228 civil cases concluded, 20.4 percent were disposed with a trial by judge while 2.1 percent were concluded by a jury trial. These percentages were above those for circuits statewide where 15.3 percent of the civil cases concluded were completed by a judge trial while another 1.9 percent ended by jury trial. Almost 11 percent of the circuit's 1,476 criminal cases concluded in 1986 ended by a judge trial while 8.6 percent were concluded by a trial by jury. Statewide, almost 24 percent of the criminal cases terminated in a judge trial while 5.6 percent ended in a trial by jury. Sixty-three percent of the civil cases concluded in the Thirtieth ended within 12 months of filing while almost 40 percent of the criminal cases concluded reached termination within 30 days.

In the general district courts, 26,157 new cases were recorded, a drop of 0.3 percent from 1985. New civil cases dropped 8.9 percent, criminal cases fell 3.2 percent, while traffic cases rose 3 percent. The number of hearings declined slightly (0.9%) totalling 5,321 in 1986. Total new cases decreased in Scott (-9.1%) and Wise (-0.6%) counties but increased in Lee County (10%). The judges in the Thirtieth averaged 13,079 new cases in 1986, ranking 30th among the 32 districts. The district was 9th in terms of criminal cases per judge with 4,236 but 30th in terms of both traffic cases and civil cases per judge. While the judges averaged more criminal cases per judge than did judges statewide, they had less than half the number of traffic and civil cases each that judges statewide had. The Thirtieth ranked 1st in the state for the number of traffic felonies and criminal capias/show cause actions per judge.

The juvenile and domestic relations district courts reported 4,679 new cases in 1986, an increase of 2.1 percent. The number of new juvenile cases rose 12.7 percent while domestic relations cases fell 8.1 percent. Hearings held jumped 8 percent totalling 11,049. Overall, J&DR caseloads increased in Wise (7.3%) but decreased 7.8 percent in Lee and 2.7 percent in Scott. The judges in the Thirtieth averaged 2,340 J&DR cases per judge in 1986, ranking 27th among the 32 districts. They had an average of 1,264 juvenile cases and 1,076 domestic relations cases each, ranking 30th and 22nd respectively. These averages were below both the statewide and rural district averages. The judges in the Thirtieth also averaged 5,525 hearings held each ranking 20th in the state. This was above the average for rural districts of 5,144 but below the statewide average of 6,053.

The twelve magistrates reported 16,890 hours of activity in 1986. During that time, they issued 24,986 processes in response to 32,122 requests. Processes issued included 7,970 arrest warrants, 222 summonses, and 4,961 bonds. Over one-third (34%) of the bonds issued were secured. In addition, the magistrates issued 71 search warrants, 130 detention orders, 3,055 civil warrants, and 328 subpoenas. They also processed 4,117 commitals to and 4,059 releases from jail. Prepayment was accepted by the magistrates for 11 traffic infractions and 62 class 4 misdemeanors.

Thirty-First Judicial Circuit and District

Prince William County and the cities of Manassas and Manassas Park are served by the Thirty-First Circuit. According to the 1980 Census, 166,665 residents were reported which included 60,048 juveniles. The population is expected to increase by 32.4 percent by 1990 and will result in a total of 220,700 residents. The juvenile population projection for 1990 is projected to be 70,855, an 18 percent increase.

Judges serving the Thirty-First in 1986 were H. Selwyn Smith, Percy Thornton, Jr., Herman A. Whisenant, Jr. and Frank A. Hoss, Jr. Presiding in the general district court were William R. Murphy, Joseph A. Gallagher, and William D. Hamblen who was elected to fill the vacancy created by Judge Hoss' move to the circuit court. Juvenile and domestic relations court judges were Raymond O. Kellam and Patrick D. Molinari. A new juvenile and domestic relations court position created by the 1987 General Assembly will be filled by William A. Becker effective July 1, 1987. The district court judges used 75.2 days for substitute and recalled, retired judges in 1986, an average 15 days per judge. This was well below the state average of 24.1 days per judge.

The 5,275 new cases in the circuit court in 1986 reflected a 7.7 percent increase over 1985. Civil cases (3,037) increased 3.5 percent while criminal cases (2,238) rose 14 percent. Cases concluded (totaling 4,456) rose 2.8 percent. The caseload distribution was 23 percent law, 35 percent equity, 27 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor. These percentages were similar to those statewide. The 1,319 average total caseload per judge ranked the circuit thirteenth in the state as compared to the statewide average caseload per judge of 1,319 and the urban average of 1,333 cases per judge. The circuit ranked 7th statewide with an average civil caseload per judge of 759, 67 above the average statewide and 18 above the average for urban areas. In criminal cases, the average of 560 cases per judge was 24 cases below the state average and 32 below the urban average per judge and placed the Thirty-First Circuit seventeenth overall. Of the 2,355 concluded civil cases, 11.4 percent ended by judge trial and 1.8 percent by jury trial. Approximately 77 percent of the civil cases were completed within twelve months, 15.8 percentage points above the overall state figures. Twenty percent of the criminal cases concluded with a judge trial while 4 percent ended by a jury trial. Of the 2,101 concluded criminal cases, 55.2 percent were terminated within five months.

New cases in the general district court rose 2.5 percent. Criminal and civil cases increased 15 percent and 12.4 percent, respectively, while traffic cases decreased 4.3 percent. Of the 85,000 new cases, 12,832 pertained to criminal matters, 59,930 cases were traffic, and 12,238 were civil cases. The caseload distribution was thus 15 percent criminal, 71 percent traffic, and 14 percent civil. Hearings increased 12.4 percent to a total of 74,594. The average total caseload per judge of 28,333 placed the Thirty-First District seventh in the state, 4,422 average cases per judge above the statewide average, and 1,253 cases above the urban average. Ranking eighth in the state, the district averaged 4,277 criminal cases per judge as compared to the statewide average per judge of 3,842 and the urban average of 4,132. The 19,997 traffic cases per judge ranked the district third statewide, 7,023 average cases above the statewide average and 6,002 cases per judge above the average for urban districts. In civil cases, the 4,079 average cases per judge was lower than that for urban areas and statewide and placed the district twenty-sixth in the state.

The Thirty-First District experienced a decline overall in cases in the juvenile and domestic relations court. New cases (10,092) decreased 13.4 percent as the 7,257 juvenile cases fell 11.5 percent, and the 2,835 deomestic relations cases showed an 18 percent reduction. Juvenile cases accounted for 72 percent of the caseload with domestic relations cases representing 28 percent. The district placed second highest in the state with an average of 5,046 cases per judge, well above state and urban averages per judge of 3,315 and 3,797, respectively. The average number of juvenile cases per judge (3,629) ranked the district first in the state with 1,556 cases per judge over the state average and 1,162 above the average for urban areas. Ranking thirteenth statewide, the district recorded an average domestic relations caseload of 1,418 cases as compared to the state average of 1,242 and the 1,330 average per judge for urban areas.

The eleven magistrates in the Thirty-First District logged 17,464 activity hours. Of the 56,995 transactions, 47,491 or 83.3 percent resulted in processes issued. Eighty-three percent of the 11,234 arrest warrants issued were for misdemeanors. Approximately 32.2 percent, or 3,278, of the bonds issued were secured and 6,890 were unsecured. The magistrates issued 4,616 subpoenas, 112 search warrants, 162 mental detention orders, 8,641 commitals, and 8,504 releases. Prepayments were received for 1,321 traffic infractions and 377 Class 4 misdemeanors.
